P. STEINMETZ, NOTED ELECTRICAL ENGINEER, DIES

Death Due to Physical Breakdown, Suffered as Result of Recent Trip to Pacific Coast.

BORN IN BRESLAU, GERMANY, IN 1865

Fled to Switzerland Because of Persecution of Socialists and Came to America in 1889.

By the Associated Press.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Dr. Charles Proteus Steinmetz, electrical wizard, died at his home here today of a physical breakdown due to a recent trip to the Pacific Coast.

The attending physician said breakfast was being served the patient when suddenly his heart seemed to give way and he died immediately.

There was no one with Dr. Steinmetz when the end came, his nurse having left the room a few moments before. One of his adopted grandsons, William Hayden, who had entered the room with his breakfast, was the first to notice his condition.

Soon after he awoke this morning Dr. Steinmetz told his nurse that he was feeling fine. Last night he spent much time chatting with members of his family about technical matters. This morning, after his death, there was found on his desk a scientific book, with several passages marked for his grandson to read.

Trip Proved Strenuous.

The trip which Dr. Steinmetz had made to the West started Sept 1 and proved much more strenuous than either he or members of his adopted family had planned. As a result he was compelled to take to his bed soon after his return on Oct. 1. At the same time physicians announced that a rest was advisable, although it was emphasized that his condition was not serious.

He awoke today in a cheerful mood, expectant that he would soon be allowed the freedom of the house. But as preparations were being made to serve his breakfast, a sudden heart attack seized him.

The exact cause of death was given by Dr. Steinmetz's physician as "acute dilation of the heart, following a chronic myocarditis of many muscles."

It was known before Dr. Steinmetz's trip to the Pacific Coast that his heart was weak, and his program was so arranged that brief rest periods might be allowed. Hundreds of invitations to deliver addresses were received by him, but he was forced to decline most of them.

Because it was his first trip to the Pacific Coast, Dr. Steinmetz and his party included a wide territory and virtually all of the large cities of the Rocky Mountains and the Western slope. Accompanying him were his adopted son, J. L. R. Hayden, General Electric engineer, and members of the Hayden family.

The American career of Charles P. Steinmetz had its beginning in New York in 1889, where, penniless and able to speak but little English, he arived from Zurich, Switzerland. He was accompanied by a young American who had been his fellow-student at the Zurich Polytechnicum.

One side of Steinmetz's face was badly swollen as the result of a trifling illness aboard ship and the immigration authorities at Ellis Island at first refused to allow him to enter the country. He was sent to the "detention pen" and was only released by the eloquence and persuasion of his American companion. A few years later he became a naturalized citizen.

At the time of his death Dr. Stenmetz was regarded not only as one of the foremost authorities on electrical engineering, but one of the greatest mathematicians in the world. Strangely enough, one of his greatest difficulties as a child was in learning the multiplication table.

Born in Germany.

Born in Breslau, Germany, on April 9, 1865, and educated at its famous university, young Steinmetz early became interested in socialism at a time when vigorous steps were being taken against it by the Government. An issue of a socialist publication in which the students were interested and in which Steinmetz had several articles was confiscated, the publication suspended and the editors arrested and imprisoned. Steinmetz fled from Germany and found refuge with a friend, a clergyman, near the Austrian border. From there he went to Zurich.

Two weeks after landing in America, Steinmetz obtained employment in the manufacturing establishment of Rudolph Eickemeyer at Yonkers, N. Y., as a draftsman. At that time

BRITAIN ACCEPTS IN PRINCIPLE LIQUOR SHIP 12-MILE LIMIT

Imperial Conference Committee Report Framed to Meet Essential Points in U. S. Plan.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The British Government has accepted in principle the proposal of the American Government that vessels in American waters be searched for contraband liquor within 12 miles of the American shore.

The expert committee of the imperial conference, which has been studying the question under the chairmanship of Foreign Secretary Curzon, has drawn up plans which are believed to meet the essential points of the American request. The plans will be submitted next week to the full conference, which is expected to approve them.

Hughes' Proposal in Form of Treaty Draft.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The decision of the British Government to accept in principle Secretary Hughes' proposals for a 12-mile right of search in suppressing liquor smuggling does not come as a surprise to Washington officials, although the British Foreign Office indicated its disapproval of the project in the last communication on the subject made public. In that rejoinder the Foreign Office disclosed that the question was to be laid before the imperial conference, a move which officials here construed as a hopeful sign.

Pending receipt of the plans shaped by the British committee, no official can say whether the essential points raised in Hughes' proposal have been met. For the sake of convenience the Secretary's plan was incorporated into a draft treaty which covered not only the right of searchr but provisions which would release from existing regulations the stores of ship liquors brought into American waters under seal.

It is not clear to officials here whether the stipulations of the American draft treaty have been substantially accepted. Presumably the agreement must in in treaty form and must be ratified by the Senate before it can become effective.

LIQUOR FOUND 11TH TIME IN RAID ON BAR

Prohibition Agents Seize Whisky and Beer in the Central National Bank Building.

Federal prohibition agents yesterday, for the eleventh time in a year, raided the saloon of Joseph M. Cody and Irving Lee, in the Central National Bank Building. As a result of their visit supposed beer from smashed bottles oozed out to the lobby of the building.

The agents reported finding 14 quarts of whisky and 156 pints of beer. They seized the whisky and two bottles of the beer and proceeded to hurl the rest of the beer bottles on to the tile floor in front of the bar. Neither proprietor was present. Harrison Jordan and Louis Gazzolo, bartenders, and the lunch counter man were arrested. Cody and Lee have pleaded guilty several times of violations of the Volstead act and paid fines. A proceeding is pending against them in Federal Court now, based on a previous raid, seeking to have the place padlocked for a year under the nuisance clause of the Volstead act.

GOT INTO $4000 HOLE PULLING MOTORIST OUT

Missouri Farmer Signed Name 'for Correspondence' for Stranger and Bank Tries to Collect.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 26.—The unfortunate plight of a wealthy Audrain County farmer, who pulled a motorist out of a mudhole and refused compensation, but signed a memorandum "for future correspondence," only to learn later that he had signed a $4000 promissory note, has been placed before the State Finance Department.

Attorneys for the farmer decline to disclose his name or that of the Kansas City bank demanding payment on the note.

The motorist, who said he lived in St. Louis, was driving a large automobile, which, by design or accident, became mired in a road in front of the farmer's home, near Vandalia. The farmer brought a team, pulled the car out, and refused a $10 bill. Effusive thanks followed and the farmer did not object to a suggeston by the new friend that upon his return to St. Louis he would send some gifts for the children of the farmer. The latter readily signed his name and address in the motorist's notebook.

Some days later a bundle of oil stock, in a company not now existing, arrived, without explanation. Shortly thereafter, came a demand from a Kansas City bank for payment of a $4000 note, bearing the signature of the farmer. The note stated it was executed for purchase of the oil stock. It apparently had been folded into the motorist's note book in such a fashion that the "memorandum" was written on the note.

B. T. Hurwitz, Deputy Finance Commissioner, in charge of "blue sky" law enforcement, today, said his department could offer no relief, except to charge fraudulent sale of oil stock against the confidence man whose whereabouts, however, are unknown.

YOUNG STINNES ARRIVES IN U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Hugo Stinnes Jr., son of the German industrial magnate, today arrived with his wife on the steamship Resolute for a tour of the United States. Young Hugo, who at 26 is head of his father's great shipping interests, refused to give any clew to his father's ideas or personality. He refused also to air his own views on the political situation in his native country.

He said he came here to visit parts of the United States, going as far West as the Pacific Coast, to renew business associations and to gather personal impresions of life and business in this country. He will remain here as long as business requirements necessitate.

FORD TO BUILD 30,000 HOMES

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 26.—Erection of 30,000 homes on a 5000-acre tract of land south of the Dearborn plant of the Ford Motor Co., is planned it is explained by the company, as a step toward relieving the housing shortage.

The houses are to be constructed of cement according to a plan perfected by Thomas A. Edison. They will be sold to any persons who desire to buy at a price which is close to cost, Ford said. Purchasers will be given the benefit of the increase in land values over the price at which the tract was purchased eight years ago.

FORBES DIVORCED FORTNIGHT AGO IN SECRET HEARING

Every Effort Made to Conceal Suit in Washington State Against Former Veterans' Bureau Head.

HE DENIES CHARGES OF CORRUPTION

Says "Story of $5000 Loan Is So Absurd as to Be Ridiculous"—Asks That Judgment Be Withheld.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 26.—It was discovered today in a search of court files that Mrs. Kate Forbes, wife of Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce by Judge Mitchell Gillianm of the King's County Superior Court, on Oct. 11.

The suit was handled here with the utmost secrecy and efforts were made to conceal both the action and the granting of the divorce.

Neglect Charged.

"As I recall Mrs. Forbes' testimony," Deputy Prosecutor Mecham said, "she accused Forbes of preferring the company and society of others to that of herself and their 10 year-old daughter, Marcia. She stated that he neglected his home to a greater extent than the traveling occasioned by his position necessitated. Her health, she testified, was very poor as the result of her husband's treatment. Her physician corroborated her testimony in regard to her health, as a perfunctory hearing on Oct. 6."

Judge Gilliam's order directed Forbes to pay $75 a month for the next two years for the support of Mrs. Forbes and an additional $75 monthly to maintain their daughter, who was placed in her mother's custody until she should be 18 years old. All community property was awarded to Mrs. Forbes.

Forbes in Statement Denies Alleged Bribery Story of Mortimer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—From his place of seclusion here, Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, issued a statement today denying as "utterly and absolutely false" the story of Elias H. Mortimer of Philadelphia before the Senate investigating committee of alleged bribery and corruption in connection with contracts for Veterans' Bureau hospitals.

"I do not feel that I ought to make any statement in advance of the full and complete testimony which I shall give under oath on the witness stand," said Forbes' statement. "However, at the insistent urging of my friends and in response to inquiries from the press, I cannot refrain from saying that every charge and every word of testimony especially that of Elias H. Mortimer, reflecting on my personal or official integrity are utterly and absolutely false and without the slightest foundation.

"The story of the receipt by me of a $5000 bribe was not only false, but so absurd as to be ridiculous. The only thing I ask of the public is to withhold judgment until my witnesses and I are heard and the full documentary evidence produced.

"In reply to inquiries as to when I will testify, I do not know, as that is entirely within the discretion of the committee."

The committee has decided to hear Forbes next week, if he desires.

Meantime the former director is resting on the advice of his physicians, who have warned him against a probable recurrence of a serious heart attack unless he rests for a while.

FRANK B. KELLOGG NEW AMBASSADOR TO GREAT BRITAIN

Former United States Senator From Minnesota Selected to Go to Court of St. James.

LONG ACTIVE IN REPUBLICAN POLITICS

Successor to Harvey Has Been Attorney for U. S. Steel; Defeated for Senate by Shipstead.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Frank B. Kellogg, former United States Senator from Minnesota, has been selected for American Ambassador to Great Britain.

He will succeed George Harvey, who recently resigned, and the appointment is expected to become effective in the near future.

Kellogg, who was one of the coterie of personal friends who accompanied the late President Harding on most of his trips away from Washington and was a frequent guest at the White House during the Harding administration, is a lawyer. During his single term in the Senate he devoted considerable attention to foreign affairs, was a leader of the "mild reservationists" in the Versailles treaty fight, and served as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

In the 1922 campaign he was renominated for the Senate by the Republicans, but failed of re-election in the sweep of the Farmer-Labor party which sent Henrik Shipstead to the Senate from Minnesota by more than 80,000 over his nearest opponent.

Kellogg's Career From the Farm to Post in London.

By the Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 26.—Frank B. Kellogg, whose selection for Ambassador to Great Britain has been announced in Washington, has accepted the post and will leave Nov. 10, for England, it was announced today.

Five considerations are said to have moved the President to select Kellogg as American representative at the Court of St. James. They are:

Kellogg's knowledge of international law and affairs.

His wide public experience and his wide acquaintance abroad.

His understanding of the foreign policies of President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes and his thorough accord with them.

The fact that Kellogg is from the Northwest, a district which the President is said to be glad to honor.

The fact that Kellogg is well able financially to accept the position.

City Attorney at Rochester, Minn., for three years; County Attorney of Olmstead County for five years, special counsel for the Federal Government in trust dissolution cases, delegate to the Republican National conventions in 1904 and 1908, member of the Republican National Committee, United States Senator from Minnesota from 1916 to 1922, friend of Presidents Roosevelt, Taft, Harding and Coolidge—that is his record.

He was born at Potsdam, N. Y., Dec. 22, 1856, and when 9 years old removed with his father to Olmstead County, where he attended rural schools. At 19 he decided to leave the farm and take up the study of law at Rochester. His first case was that of "The Towns of Plainview and Elgin versus Winona & St. Peter Railway Co." in which the villages sought to recover the value of bonds issued to the railroad as a bonus.

Experienced attorneys of that vicinity had refused to take the case but Kellogg accepted it, won in the District Court, the State Supreme Court and finally the United States Supreme Court, getting judgment in favor of the villages for $200,000.

The newly selected Ambassador then rose to national prominence as special counsel for the Federal Government in its anti-trust suits during the Roosevelt administration. Among the proceedings of this character he prosecuted were those against the Standard Oil Co. and the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger.

In 1912 Kellogg was elected president of the American Bar Association for a term of one year.

At various times he has been general counsel for the United States Steel Corporation and counsel for large railways.

THREE ALLIES ACCEPT CONFERENCE PLAN WITH RESERVATION

Washington Officials Believe Bridge Has Been Created of Such a Nature as Might Lead Eventually to Practical Adjustment of Question.

CAPITAL EXPECTS PROMPT ACTION

American Authorities Confident That Commission Will Be Able to Begin Work on Problem at an Early Date.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The view expressed in official circles here was that a bridge had been created in the European reparations negotiations of such a nature as might lead eventually to a practical plan of adjustment.

This comment was made after the French conditional acceptance of the British suggestion for a commission of economic experts had been communicated informally to the State Department by Paris.

The French position was understood here as contemplating participation of American economic experts in the advisory commission, to be named subject to the approval of the Washington administration.

American officials obviously are confident that details of the arrangement can be promptly completed and that some sort of a commission will begin at an early date.

Curzon Outlined Three Methods.

An analysis of the British-American correspondence shows that three possible methods of dealing with the reparations matter were outlined by Lord Curzon. They were, first, through the calling of an international conference; second, through the appointment of an economic commission, representative of all the Powers concerned in German reparations, and the United States; and third, through the calling of a conference or appointment of an economic commission representative of only a part of the reparations Powers and the United States.

Mr. Hughes replied categorically. He expressed the willingness of the United States to join in a conference in which all of the reparations Powers participated, but stipulated certain conditions as to the scope and nature of such a conference. He expressed again the American belief that the economic commission plan afforded the most probable way to success, but pointed out that the United States could not appoint a member to the Reparations Commission, although American experts undoubtedly could participate in an economic commission. On any suggestion that a conference or commission plan be followed by the Powers in agreement on that course but without French and probably Belgian participation, Mr. Hughes reserved decision.

State Department Position.

That Hughes replied in the negative to Lord Curzon's question on the possibility of American representation on the Reparations Commission is held by officials to be a natural and inescapable result of the policy followed by the United States ever since it refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles. American representation on this commission as set up by the treaty was an issue in the treaty ratifying fight, and even temporary assignment of an American "observer" to serve unofficially with the commission was assailed in Congress as unwarranted interference in the affairs of Europe.

An effort at the last session to pass a Senate resolution authorizing full representation failed almost in its inception.

The position of the State Department is that Hughes' reply to the British Foreign Minister should be left to speak for itself as a redefinition of the American policy. It is pointed out that the communication covered the whole field of current discussion on the subject, by renewing the pledge of the United States to help in any way practical by reemphasizing the Secretary's declaration at New Haven, last December in favor of "an advisory solution by impartial experts" and by setting forth against this Government's strong conviction that all the allied nations must participate if the reparations' conference proposal is to be crowned with success.

There are indications that the

France, Belgium and Italy Accept Proposal for Fixing Germany's Capacity to Pay, but Condition as to Appointing Conferees Awaits London's O K.

BERLIN MAY BE PLACE OF MEETING

French Government, Paris Dispatch Says, Welcomes Participation of America in Proposal to Clear Up European Situation.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—France, Belgium and Italy have accepted the British invitation for a reparations conference, with the understanding that it shall take the form of a committee of experts under the authority of the present Inter-Allied Reparations Commission.

It is understood the British members, if the conference is held, will be the same as those who served last year on the Bankers' Commission, on which the United States was represented by J. P. Morgan.

It is thought Berlin will be chosen as the seat of the conference, since the chief function of the committee will be to inquire into Germany's financial assets.

Selection of the French, Belgian and Italian personnels is expected to be completed shortly.

No official announcement has been made by the British Government that it accepts the condition laid down by the allies regarding the manner of naming members of the commission of experts.

France Accepts Plan if Commission Names Experts.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The French Government is willing that an international conference of experts, named by the Reparations Commission be called to consider the question of reparations in conformity with the Treaty of Versailles.

The French Government, it was said in official circles this morning, would be most happy if the United States would name an expert to participate in such a conference.

It was announced that Premier Poincare, in the name of the French Government, already had informed Secretary of State Hughes that he would accept an international commission of experts to determine Germany's capacity to pay, but that they must be named by the Reparations Commission. The British Government, it was added, has not yet accepted this condition.

Premier Poincare maintains the attitude he has taken from the day he retired from the presidency of the Reparations Commission, which is that this body alone is qualified under the treaty of Versailles to take up such questions as the examination of Germany's capacity for payment.

May Oppose any Revision

There is no reason to suppose, either, that the French Premier is ready to accept any revised estimate, even if it were made by the commission. It was declared by high officials of the Foreign Office today that he still held to the schedule of payment adopted in London in 1921, with a total of 132,000,000,000 gold marks.

The French Government thus remains intrenched behind the treaty of Versailles as a defense against the British offensive in favor of a revision of the reparation figures. The French viewpoint is that if an international conference were held under conditions not provided for in the treaty, no one could tell where such a step might lead, as were a revision of the treaty to be thus undertaken the precedent would be likely to be used by all former enemy Powers to escape the war settlements as made at Versailles.

EDGAR T. WALLACE GIVES TESTIMONY FOR MRS. STOKES

Contradicts Stories of Witnesses That He and Mrs. Stokes Were Together at Bunceton, Mo., in 1904.

FIRST MEETING IN 1906, HE SAYS

Denies Emphatically That Defendant Ever Had Been in His Apartment at New York City.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Edgar T. Wallace, co-respondent mentioned by counsel for W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy hotel owner, in the retrial of his suit for divorce from his wife. Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, today took the witness stand as a witness for the defense.

Since 1906, Wallace said, he had seen Mrs. Stokes but twice, once in 1907 or 1908 at an accidental meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in this city and once in 1909 for a few minutes at some place he said he had forgotten. He denied emphatically that she had been in his apartment or with him at any other place in this city.

Contradicting testimony regarding the alleged presence in Bunceton of Mrs. Stokes and himself in 1904, the witness declared he had been in Bunceton but three days during that year and those in April. The rest of the year, he asserted, he had not been out of New York City except for a visit of a few days at Atlantic City, N. J.

Wallace declared he first met Mrs. Stokes in the spring of 1906 at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, contradicting testimony of witnesses for Mr. Stokes that he and Mrs. Stokes were together in Bunceton, Mo., Wallace's home town, during the summer of 1904.

Martha Jones, cook for Wallace, testified today that Anna MacIntosh, a negress who recently testified she saw the defendant at breakfast parties in Wallace's home, had never set foot in the apartment.

The MacIntosh woman said she had been present when these early morning breakfast parties were held and described some of the scenes. The cook declared that she herself had prepared and served the breakfasts alluded to and that she had never seen the MacIntosh woman.

Defense Plans Speed.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Mrs. Stokes, evidently is planning a speedy ending to the five-year legal battle represented by the phrase "Stokes vs. Stokes."

Witnesses for Mrs. Stokes have denied all charges that she was with Wallace either in Bunceton, Mo., or in Bethel, Conn. Three of the six witnesses who appeared yesterday said they had never seen Mrs. Stokes at Bethel and that so far as they knew she never had been there.

One of the witnesses, a farmer named Rufus E. Stillman, offered testimony that apparently was intended to reflect upon Stokes' methods of obtaining evidence against his wife. Stillman originally had been subpoenaed to testify for Stokes.

Stillman once worked as a gardener for Thomas W. Brander, manufacturer of railway supplies, with a summer home near Bethel and a town house at 68 East Ninety-second street. Stillman now resides at Croton on the Hudson, where he said he was visited several times in the last year by Stokes and Daniel F. Nugent, one of his counsel.

He was shown several photographs by his visitors, Stillman said, and asked whether he could identify Mrs. Stokes from them as a woman who had visited at Bethel during the time he worked there. On one of the pictures he recognized "Tex" Rickard, sports promoter, beside a woman described to him as Mrs. Stokes. He said he could not identify Mrs. Stokes from such pictures; he would have to see her.

"Did he show you," he was asked by Untermyer, "a picture of a negro and a negro child?"

"Yes," Stillman replied. "Mr. Stokes told me it was a picture of Mrs. Stokes' child."

"Did he say she was the child's mother?"

"He said she had had a negro child and that she was a vile woman in a resort in Chicago years ago. Mr. Stokes told me the negro was the father of Mrs. Stokes' child."

"Did Mr. Stokes tell you that Mrs. Stokes was the vilest woman in Chicago?"

"He did."

Stillman then said Stokes had drawn up an affidavit for him to sign. Untermyer immediately demanded its production, but Max Steuer, attorney for Stokes, said curtly, "I refuse." Also, Stillman said, he had been subpenaed by Stokes to testify at this trial but "I was told later that they wouldn't use me, and Stokes told me I'd get in trouble if I stayed around."

"Have you ever seen Mrs. Stokes anywhere save in this courtroom?" Mr. Untermyer then asked.

Stillman answered, "No, sir, never."

"Did you ever see a picture of a lady and two children on Mr. Brander's dresser?"

"Yes, I have seen it."

"Is this the picture?" asked Untermyer, handing him a photograph said to be that of a Mrs. Ross, now deceased, who had been a friend of Mr. and Mrs. Brander.

"Yes, I recognize it at once," said Stillman.

Untermyer then pressed the witness for a detailed description of the picture of the negro baby. And Stillman said: "It was a baby of from 5 to 7 years old. Mr. Stokes then showed me a negro man's picture and said he was the father. Mrs. Stokes wasn't in that photograph."

Cross-Examined by Prosecution.

Steuer discarded his usual calm manner when he started to cross-examine Stillman. He went at him hot and heavy, with all the spirit he could command. He was asked many questions about the statements he had made to representatives of both Mr. and Mrs. Stokes.

"What name did you think was written on the picture of a lady with two children you saw in Mr. Brander's house?" Mr. Steuer demanded.

"I thought the name was Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes."

"Then when you said to Mr. Nugent that the picture you saw at Mr. Brander's was marked 'Mrs. Stokes' you were mistaken?"

"Yes, but they (meaning Mr. Nugent and Mr. Stokes) led me to make the mistake."

"After you were subpenaed by Mr. Stokes' side didn't you say to Mr. Nugent that you couldn't give any testimony about identifying Mrs. Stokes, whom you'd seen many times at Bethel, because you were afraid you'd lose your job?"

"No, I never did," protested Stillman, his voice rising. "I told two men who served me with a subpena that I'd never seen Mrs. Stokes in my life, so I couldn't identify her."

Brander's Testimony.

Brander preceded Stillman on the witness stand and it was he who identified the photograph on his dresser as that of Mrs. Ross and her children. At no time did he have a photograph, he testified, which was inscribed "Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes."

Both Mrs. Stokes and Wallace were known to Brander. He met her when she was still Miss Elwood, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel 13 or more years ago. With Wallace he shared an apartment for a time at Twenty-ninth street and Fifth avenue and he visited Wallace after Wallace moved to 13 East Thirty-fifth street.

"I never saw Wallace and Mrs. Stokes together at either of those places," he said, "or at my summer home in Bethel or anywhere else." Nor did he ever see her at the summer home of L. Leon Pepperman, near his, in Bethel.

"What portrait in your home most nearly resembled a picture of Mrs. Stokes?" Steuer asked in cross-examination.

Brander replied: "One of Mrs. Brander and our two children."

Brander denied the testimony of his two former negro servants, Jane Carter and Azariah Epps, who said that they had seen Mrs. Stokes in Bethel. The Carter girl, he said, he had discharged for the theft of two barrels of apples, two barrels of potatoes "and something else."

Henry McMullan, a negro who worked for Wallace as a valet and also for Pepperman, testified he had npever seen a picture of Mrs. Stokes in the Wallace apartment nor had she ever been there, so far as he knew. Nor, so far as he knew, had she ever visited Pepperman.

Untermyer asked McMullan if he knew Hattie Johnson, the negro woman who assisted Stokes in gathering testimony. He said that he did, that she told him she was Mrs. Stokes' hairdresser.

"Were you offered any money for an affidavit?" he was asked.

"Yes," McMullan replied. "Hattie Johnson said there would be $200 in it if I'd sign one. She had one all made out. I told her I didn't want the money and I refused to sign."

Assistant District Attorney Pecora was on the stand just long enough to deny the allegation of Joseph A. Thornton, negro janitor, that Pecora and others in the District Attorney's office had attempted to force Thornton by coercion to change his identification of Mrs. Stokes as a woman who had visited Wallace.

Text of British Note Urging U. S. Co-Operation on Reparations Issue and Hughes' Reply

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Following is the text of Lord Curson's note of October 12 to the British charge d'affaires at Washington:

The information which reaches America will have acquainted the American Government with the extremely critical economic position that has arisen in Europe, owing to failure to find any solution for the reparation problem, which daily becomes more acute as the financial and political condition of Germany grows worse.

There does not appear to be among European Powers that unity of thought which either renders common action feasible or will be successful in finding an early solution. His Majesty's Government have during the past nine months made a series of proposals to their allies for meeting these difficulties, none of which has been so fortunate as to meet with a measure of acceptance sufficient to bring about common actions. And yet without such action, not merely Germany, but Europe, appears to be drifting into economic disaster.

In these circumstances His Majesty's Government have for long entertained the belief that the co-operation of the United States Government is an essential condition of any real advice toward a settlement. America, by reason of her position and history, is more disinterested than any of the European Powers; at the same time she is directly and vitally concerned with the solution of the European problem, if, for no other reason, because in it is involved the question of the interallied debt.

When Mr. Hughes made his declaration in December last, both Great Britain and Germany made it clear that they would warmly welcome proffered assistance. And whenever the suggestion has been revived, it has met with the hearty approval of His Majesty's Government.

The French Government hitherto has taken a different view. This lack of unanimity is, so far as His Majesty's Government are aware, the sole reason why the proposal has not been proceeded with.

His Majesty's Government were already engaged in formulating an inquiry to the United States as to the manner in which in the opinion of the latter united action, which is the common desideratum, could best be brought about, when they read in the press yesterday morning a declaration reported to have been made by President Coolidge that the American government would rest on their proposal of December last.

The British Charge at Washington telegraphed to Lord Curzon on Oct. 16, saying that the Secretary of State had handed him a memorandum in reply to the communication which the Charge had made to him in pursuance of instructions contained in Curzon's telegram of Oct. 12. Following is the text of the memorandum:

Welcomes American Co-operation.

The Government warmly welcomes this declaration and hope that they are justified in deducting from it that if the European Powers will join in such an inquiry America will render the promised co-operation. If the Government have rightly interpreted the President's statement, and if they may count upon an encouraging reception being given to such a proceeding they will not hesitate to invite the immediate co-operation of their allies in Europe in an invitation to the United States Government to assist in the proposed inquiry by deputing a delegate, whether official or unofficial, to participate therein.

If, on the other hand, it were proposed to hold such an inquiry, although complete unanimity had not been forthcoming at this end, might His Majesty's Government and the majority of allies still hope for American co-operation?

Alternatively, if it were proposed that such an inquiry should be entrusted to the Reparations Commission or to a body appointed by it, would America still be willing to participate?

It is in the firm belief that the American Government have in their power to render great services to the security and peace of the world; that His Majesty's Government, speaking in the name of the whole British Empire, as represented in the imperial conference now assembled in London, desire to associate themselves with the renewed proposal of the President, and they will be glad to receive from the American Government any suggestion that the latter may be disposed to offer in reply to the questions I have ventured to put.

Reply of Secretary Hughes.

In reply to the communication for His Majesty's charge d'affaires on Oct. 13, the Secretary of State desires again to express the deep interest of the Unied States in the economic situation of Europe and its readiness to aid in any practical way to promote recuperation and re-establishment of economic stability.

The Government of the United States has viewed with deep concern the lack, as His Majesty's Government expresses it, of that unity of thought on the part of European Powers essential to common action. The views of the Government of the United States as to the importance of agreement among the allies and the relations of the Government of the United tSates to the questions involved were set forth in the statement of the Secretary of State to which His Majesty's Government refers, and these views are still held.

It is observed that His Majesty's Government states that Great Britain and Germany made it clear that proffered assistance would be warmly welcomed by them and that His Majesty's Government has always heartily approved the suggestion then made by the Secretary of tSate, whenever it has been revived,, and that His Majesty's Government is aware that the sole reason why the proposal has not been proceeded with has been lack of unanimity among the interested Powers. It is believed that present conditions made it imperative that a suitable financial plan should be evolved, to prevent economic disaster in Europe, the consequences of which would be world-wide.

America Willing to Take Part.

It is to be hoped that the existing circumstances are propitious for the consideration of such a plan, inasmuch, as the abandonment of resistance on the part of the German Government will present freer opportunity and an immediate necessity for the establishment of an economic program. The Government of the United States is therefore entirely willing to take part in an economic conference in which all the European allies chiefly concerned in German reparations participate for the purpose of considering questions of the capacity of Germany to make reparations and an appropriate financial plan for securing such payments. It is deemed advisable, however, to emphasize the following points.

Firstly, confirming what was said by the Secretary of State in his statement of last December, to which you refer, the Government of the United States has no desire to see Germany relieved of her responsibility for the war, or of her just obligations. Theer should be no ground for the impression that a London conference, if called, should have any such aim, or that resistance to the fulfillment of Germany's obligations has any support. It should be evident that in an effort to obtain the ends in view regard must be had to Germany's capacity to pay and to the fundamental condition of Germany's rehabilitation, without which reparation payment is impossible.

Secondly, such conference should be advisory; not for the purpose of binding Governments who would naturally be unwilling to pledge their acceptance in advance, but to assure appropriate recommendations by a thoroughly informed and impartial body intent upon solving the difficult pending problems upon their merits.

Thirdly, the Secretary of State notes the observation in the communication of his majesty's Government that the European problem is of direct and vital interest to the United States, if for no other reason, because the question of the interallied debt is involved there in quantity. The Government of the United States has consistently maintained the essential difference between the questions, of Germany's capacity to pay and of the practicability of methods to secure reparation payments from Germany, and payment by the allies of their debts to the United States, which constitute distinct obligations.

Separate From Allied Debts.

In the statement of the Secretary of State, to which his majesty's Government refers, it was said:

The matter is plain enough from our standpoint. Germany's capacity to pay is not at all affected by any indebtedness of any, or all the allies. That indebtedness does not diminish Germany's capacity, and its removal would not increase her capacity. For example, if France had been able to finance her part in the war without borrowing at all from us, that is, by taxation and internal loans, the problem of what Germany could pay would be exactly the same. Moreover, so far as the debtors to the United States are concerned they have unsettled credit balances and their condition and capacity to pay cannot be properly determined until the amount that can be realized on these credits for reparations has been determined. The administration must also consider the difficulty arising from the fact that the question of these obligations will hold and what shall be done with them is not a question within the province of the executive. Not only may Congress deal with public property of this sort, but it has dealt with it. It has created a commission, and, instead of giving the commission broad powers, such as the administration proopsed, which, quite apart from cancellation, might permit a sound discretion to be exercised in accordance with tre facts elicited, Congress has placed definite restrictions upon power of the commission in providing for the refunding of these debts.

It is hardly necessary to add, as has frequently been stated by the United States Government, that, while the American people do not favor the cancellation of the allies' debts to the United States, or the transfer to the people of the United States of the burden of Germany's obligations, directly or indirectly, the United States has no desire to be oppressive or to refuse to make reasonable settlements as to time and terms of payment, in full consideration of the circumstances of the allied debtors.

The Secretary of State added that the establishment of sound economic conditions in Europe, the serious reduction of military outlays and the demonstration of a disposition on the part of the European peoples to work together to achieve the aims of peace and justice, will not fail to have their proper influence upon American thought and purpose in connection with such an adjustment. The memorandum continues:

Concurrence of All Necessary.

In further reply to the communication of his majesty's Government, it may be said that the United States Government is not in a position to appoint a member of the Reparations Commission inasmuch as such an appointment cannot be made without the consent of Congress.

The Secretary of State has no doubt, however, that a competent American citizen would be willing to participate in an economic inquiry for the purposes stated, through an advisory board appointed by the Reparations Commission to make recommendations in case that course, after further consideration, should be deemed preferable. As to the further question whether American co-operation in an inquiry for the purposes desired, in the communication of his majesty's Government, could be hoped for in case unanimity of the European powers could not be had, the United States Government must again express the view that the question involved cannot finally be settled without the concurrence of the European governments directly concerned.

Other governments cannot consent for them, and it would manifestly be extremely difficult to formulate financial plans of such importance and complexity without the participation of those whose assent is necessary for their fulfillment.

In view of the existing exigencies, it is hoped that the project of such an inquiry as contemplated, of any advisory nature, might commend itself to all these powers and that the question suggested will not arise. But if it should arise from lack of unanimity on the part of the European Powers, the United States Government must reserve decision as to its course of action, in order that the development of such a contingency may be fully considered and that course taken which will give the best promise of ultimate success in securing the desired end of re-establishment of essential conditions of European peace and economic restoration.

To the attainment of that end it may be repeated that the United States Government desires to lend its assistance in any manner that may be found feasible.

RENEWAL OF OFFER BY U. S. PLEASES BRITISH

Felt in London That American Declaration Brings Reparation Conference Nearer.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Official British opinion concerning the response of Secretary of State Hughes to Lord Curzon's reparation conference invitation is cautious and reserved. Broadly, however, there is a feeling in the Government departments that America's clear cut declaration brings an international conference on reparations appreciably nearer.

While the general attitude of the United States on a reparation conference was already well known, the British Government appears to be much gratified to have the Coolidge administration state it so specifically and clearly on paper. There is a distinct feeling of satisfaction over the helpful, friendly tone of the renewed offer of co-operation.

Lord Curzon's request was for American participation in any form, either official or unofficial, or, alternatively, to participation in an inquiry by a special committee appointed by the Reparations Commission. Whether the Government's move was prompted by Gen. Smuts, or whether Gen. Smuts' famous speech Tuesday night was intended to lend weight to the Government's move is not known, but it will be noted that Gen. Smuts' proposal was for a conference of all the powers, including the neutrals, not merely those interested in reparations.

Reparations Commission to Discuss German Note.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The German note sent Wednesday to the Reparations Commission will be discussed by the commission Tuesday. Louis Barthou of France, president of the commission, will propose to his English, Italian and Belgian colleagues, according to a semiofficial note today that the commission accept the proposition for the German representatives to be heard, such procedure being provided for by the treaty of Versailles.

Barthou probably will voice the views of France as regards the ill will Germany is considered hitherto to have shown on the question of putting her finances in a healthy state and fulfilling her obligations. The delegates of the three other Powers, it is said, are disposed to accept the proposed procedure.

publication of the Hughes-Curzon correspondence was arranged at the British suggestion. Possibly this constituted a new effort to invoke public opinion of the world in behalf of a new attempt to obtain French agreement to a revision of Germany's reparations liabilities to fit her capacity to pay suggested itself.

At any rate, the publication has served to bring out a new official statement of the American Government's views and the conditions under which it will participate in efforts to find a solution of the problem that has so far balked European statesmen. Without doubt, the Coolidge administration believes that the economic commission plan proposed by Secretary Hughes still offers the most probable road to success.

BALDWIN WARNS POINCARE NOT TO REJECT INVITATION TO ACCEPT U. S. OFF

French Premier Urged to Consider 'for his Nation and for World' Before Acting on Conference Participation.

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, England, Oct. 26.—Prime Minister Baldwin, speaking before the delegates of the Conservative Party convention, sounded a warning to the French premier, M. Poincare, to consider "for himself, for his nation, for us and for the world," before he refused the invitation extended by the British Government to the allies to accept American participation in a conference for a settlement of the German reparations question.

Declaring that the position was grave, he considered it inconceivable that anyone could refuse to take advantage of such an opportunity.

At another point in his speech, Premier Baldwin declared, with reference to the collection of reparations from Germany, that the amount of Germany's payments must be ascertained in the light of her present and future position, and added significantly:

"Nor could we contemplate the breaking off of any part of Germany into separate states, for that would at once break the treaty of Versailles."

The Prime Minister began his speech last night by saying that all thoughts would go out to the leader, Endrew Bonar Law, who had sacrificed himself for the cause. He then plunged into the question of Germany.

"We Have Definite Policy."

"We have been accused of having no policy," he said. "That all depends on what the people mean by the word policy. We have a definite policy as regards debts, reparations and guarantees, the security of our allies and the fulfillment by Germany of her obligations.

"We know what our policy is. The statesmen on the continent know it, too. But higher than the need of a definite policy is the need of securing a common action and carrying that policy into effect."

Dealing with the question of why the Government did not follow up its note of Aug. 11 to France, Baldwin explained that hardly had the reply to that note been received when it became obvious that the passive resistance of Germany was breaking down. The Government had good reason to believe that, on the giving up of passive re negotiations might be resumed

OVER-PRODUCTION OF PICTURES

Lasky, Hollywood and Long Island Studios to Close for 10 Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 26.—The high cost of production of motion pictures, a problem yet unsolved, and the over-production of motion pictures at present has caused a decision to close the Hollywood and Long Island studios of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation for 10 weeks, it is announced by Jess E. Lasky, first vice president.

No new productions will be started after Saturday and the plants will be closed up upon completion of production under way. It is our plan to re-open the studios in January, following a readjustment and reorganization," Lasky said.

Electrical Wizard Who Is Dead as Result of Physical Breakdown

DR. CHARLES P. STEINMETZ.

C. P. STEINMETZ, NOTED ELECTRICAL ENGINEER, DIES

the company was making a few electrical motors and generators and had just taken up work on the problems of the electric street car jointly with Stephen D. Field. All the designs for the experiments with the electric cars passed through his hands. Quarters for a laboratory were obtained and he began to specialize on magnetic testing. His writings on electrical subjects began to attract attention, his discussion of the law of hysteresis eliciting much interest on the part of electrical engineers.

Lived at Schenectady.

In 1892 the General Electric Co. bought the electrical manufacturing business of the Eickemeyer company except the making of motors for elevators, which the Otis company took over to its own plant, and Steinmetz went to the Lynn (Mass.) works of the General Electric Co. In January, 1892, he was transferred to the Schenectady works, and since that time made Schenectary his home. In 1912, he was appointed president of the Board of Education of Schnectady, and in 1915, was elected president of the Common Council of that city on the Socialist ticket. He never married.

Dr. Steinmetz served for many terms as the president of national and international societies connected with the electrical industry. Harvard honored him with the degree of Master of Arts and Union College made him a Doctor of Philosophy. Since 1913, he had served Union College as professor of electrical engineering and electrophysics.

Books written by him include the following: "Theory and Calcuation of Alternating Current Phenomena" (1897); Theoretical Elebents of Electrical Engineering" (1905); "Theory and Calculation of Transient Electric Phenomena and Oscillations" (1909); "General Lectures on Electrical Engineering" (1908); "Radiation, Light and Illumination" (1909); "Engineering Mathematics" (1911); "Electric Discharges, Waves and Impulses" (1911); "America and the New Epoch" (1916); "Theory and Calculation of Electric Circuits" (1917); "Theory and Calculation of Electrical Apparatus" (1917). He also wrote numerous papers on mathesubjects.

Dr. Steinmetz's special field, in which he was most expert, included magnetics, symbolic method of alternating current calculations and transient phenomena.

Steinmetz was a man of vision. In an interview at Schenectady last August he predicted a new sort of civilization in America by 2023—with no more long, back-breaking drudgery and with work days but four hours long, leaving 20 hours a day for people to follo wtheir own inclinations. Electricity, he thought, would have much to do with the new orler of things; cities would no longer have smoke palls and their streets would harbor no refuse; urban residents would have better health.

The electrical wizard said that if the United States endeavored to get into communication with Mars as earnestly as it had worked in the World War, it was highly likely that communication would be established. He said it would be necessary to keep a careful record of messages from the distant planet in hope that some day a key to reading them would be found.

"Co-operative human effort will be the solution of most of the difficulties beseting mankind," he said. "Wars will continue until we have learned that lesson in its final aspect. We have not yet sufficiently grasped the philosophy of Christianity, regardles of how many of us prfoess to be Christians. The collectivistic tendencies of the Slavic peoples, in my opinion, will make of them the dominant race of the future."

Other Forecasts.

Several years ago Steinmetz was predicting the coalless city and telling how scientists were going about bringing its accomplishment. At a dinner in Philadelphia three years ago he declared that the day was coming when it would be against the law to build a fire in a city, since heat as well as light would come from electricity.

In an interview later he said: "It is not only entirely possible practically to eliminate factory smoke, but is being done in a number of industrial establishments. Incidentally, it is resulting in the reclamation of thousands of dollars' worth of material that formerly went out through the factory chimneys. It is simplicity itself. A series of plates is fastened to one side of the interior of a factory chimney and a series of points to the other side. The plates and points are then charged with electricity, one being charged negatively and the other positively. Particles of matter carried up the chimney in the form of smoke, or with the smoke, become electrically charged, also, as they pass between the two.

"By a law which every schoolboy who has experimented with a magnet knows, they are instantly attracted by the opposite. That is to say, if they are charged positively from the points, they are immediatelyly attracted by the plates, which are charged negatively. They cling there until they are loosened by beating the plates and fall to the bottom of the chimney, or they adhere to one another and finally become so heavy that they fall to the base."

This practical dreamer did not maintain that coal could be entirely supplanted. Hydraulic energy would be insufficient to supply all the country's electricity, he thought, but all sources of energy would have to be husbanded.

He remarked that the United States consumed 857,000,000 tons of coal in 1918, and, to visualize this bulk, he declared that this amount of coal would bulid a wall like the Chinese wall entirely around the boundaries of this country.

In the spring of 1920 lightning damaged the summer camp of Steinmetz on the Mohawk River, New York. He at once studied the problem of rendering lightning as harmless as possible. Within 24 hours he was at the camp, making photographic and other records of the damage, which proved to be of great assistance to himself and two aids in two years of study that followed. It was decided to reproduce artificially bolts of lightning and eventually a lightning generator was devised. In March, 1922, a demonstration of this was given, in which flashes of natural sound and appearance were produced in the laboratory.

Steinmetz explained that his results differed from those of other tests, for his "lightning," while of far less voltage than that some had produced, more closely approached the qualities of the real article—"high voltage, backed by very large power, lasting for a very short time only, and so giving explosive effects." Steinmetz did not think it likely that the dream of putting thunderbolts to work could ever be realized.

His Idea on Foremen

Steinmetz did not confine his work to matters electrical. In January, 1921, for instance, he delivered an address in his laboratory on the topic, "Foremen As Key Men of Industry," in connection with a foremanship course of the Y. M. C. A He declared that a foreman's first duty was to understand men and their motives. He pointed out that old practice of making a man a foreman because he was good mechanic was being abandoned because it had failed so often; it was comparable with making a woman a school teacher because she was a good mathematician. The whole tone of the wizard's address was like that of a university professor's talk, and it was replete with sound facts.

One of the last public utterances Steinmetz made was at San Francisco a month ago, when he was on a vacation. He declared that "movie thrillers" are the greatest single power for good developed in the last two decades, explaining that shooting and villainy were worth showing on the screen because America is a fighting nation and its boys are red-blooded.

Last August he recommended that the country try Henry Ford as President "as an experiment." When Steinmetz was fusion candidate of the Socialist and Farmer-Labor parties for State Engineer and Surveyor of New York last year he declared that he would not take the stump, and, explaining his political views, declared: "I am more of a Republican than a Democrat." In his unsuccessful race for the office he saw opportunities "in a State saturated with politics."

'CHICK' EVANS, BROKE, WOULD EXEMPT CLUBS

Bankrupt, Former Champion Asks to Retain Bag, Sticks and 24 Used Balls.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Chas. E. ("Chick") Evans, golfer, sought relief from his debts today by the bankruptcy route in Federal Court. The debts listed total $262,380, not counting $200,000 which Arthur W. Cutten, of the Board of Trade marked off and charged to experience. Cutten still has a claim of more than $20,000 against him. Evans gives his occupation as "investment bonds."

In his petition he scheduled as assets $50,719.

Under the item, "exemptions," Evans asks to retain the "tools of his profession," consisting of one golf bag, 10 golf clubs, 24 used golf balls and a membership in a golf club. He lists honorary memberships in about 100 golf and athletic clubs in the United States and Canada as "value unknown." Secured claims were listed as $85,185 and unsecured claims $173,869.

Friend Is Largest Creditor.

The failure of the former golf champion has been expected since August, when Charles J. Moore, a grain broker, applied for a warrant on the charge that Evans had given him a check for $7500 which was returned by the bank, marked "Not sufficient funds." The largest creditor mentioned in the petition filed today is L. D. Glanz, for years one of Evans' golfing associates. Through joint accounts in brokerage houses, where Evans' speculations brought repeated losses, the former champion owes Glanz $55,000.

Evans is also obligated for $27,000 through being one of six persons who signed notes in connection with the development of the Dixmore Golf Club.

Owes $1100 on Gift Auto.

The Union Trust Co. is listed as having advanced Evans $12,500 on stock certificates. A debt of $1100 to the Tennant Bros. Motor Car Co. represents a loan on the automobile which the Edgewater Golf Club gave to Evans a few years ago.

Three items are listed in connection with his trips to England as a member of the American golf team. In 1921, when he was on his way home, he borrowed $1020 from Howard Schroeder of Los Angeles, and it was not repaid.

This year, hoping to lighten Evans' "financial burdens" sufficiently for him to go abroad with the American team, Maurice Schulz and George B. Dryden, both Chicagoans, lent him $7000 and $1000, respectively, but the trip was not taken.

DAWES ISSUES RULES FOR BRANCH BANKS

National Banks May Have Extra Tellers' Windows in Cities Where Other Banks Have Branches.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Comptroller Dawes of the Currency today completed regulations carrying out the recent opinion of Attorney-General Daugherty limiting branch banking operations by national banks to establishment of tellers' windows within the city in which the parent bank operates. The regulations prescribe that such banking offices shall be confined to business of a routine character, "that does not require the exercise of discretion."

National banks will be permitted by the Comptroller to establish a branch office only in a city in which other banks are permited under existing law to engage in the practice. Application must be made to the Comptroller for permission in each case.

"Operation of additional offices of national banks established under these regulations," the regulations say, "shall be confined to the receipt of deposits and the payment of checks and other such routine or administrative functions.

"No investment in bonds or other securities for the account of the bank shall be made at any such additional office.

"No loan or discount shall be made to any customer of the bank through such additional office that has not been authorized at the banking house by a resolution of the board of directors or by an appropriate committee of such board, and no general authority issued by the board of directors shall vest in any officer or employes at the additional office any discretionary authority with reference to making such loans or discounts."

The regulations provide also that the branch office shall transmit to the parent banking house a daily statement of its business and that these statements be incorporated in the books of the main house.

PHILIPPINE HOUSE TO INQUIRE INTO KILLINGS IN MINDANAO

Senate at Manila to Investigate All Gen. Wood's Recess Appointments.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Oct. 25.—The Philippine House of Representatives, after a stormy debate has adopted a resolution creating a joint legislative committee, consisting of three members from each chamber to conduct an investigation into conditions in Mindanao, with especial reference to recent killings by Moros.

There was much opposition to the resolution along party lines. Mindanao has been referred to as "The rock on which Philippine independence is split." It is expected the committee will go to Mindanao soon.

The Senate has decided to investigate all of Governor-General Wood's recess appointments. It is believed the decision hits especially at the appoinament of Eugene Rodriguez as Mayor of Manila, to succeed Ramon Fernandez, who resigned last July along with other public officials as a protest against Governor-General Wood's policies.

In connnection with the investigation of Rodriguez's appointment it is proposed to dig up the records of his trial and imprisonment 23 years ago and make them part of the Senate records.

DENSE FOG PLUNGES CITY INTO DARKNESS AT 9 IN MORNING

Smoke Pall, Low-Hanging Clouds and Lazy Breeze Combine to Spread Gloom.

Smoke and cloud gave St. Louis an extra night today. Dawn was deferred to the middle of the period set aside by the almanac for daylight. Persons of leisurely habit who make a practice of delaying their rising until the day is born had a long wait.

Around 9 a. m. the business section was as dark as it customarily is at 9 p. m. Street cars and automobiles were using their headlights and could have used searchlights. Office building windows were points of light in the gloom. Department store windows were aglow, gaining the advantage of a night display by daylight.

St. Louis gets that way once in a while, not not often. The cause is always the same, clouds and smoke and a wind too lazy to blow the smoke away. For two or three hours this morning the wind velocity was only from two to three miles an hour. As the day advanced a breeze sprang up and the darkness was gradually dispelled. That is, the smoke was blown away. The clouds, low hanging and dense, remained.

The fog was densest, while it lasted, over the business section.

FATHER SENDS FOR BODY OF WOMAN SLAIN BY GUNMEN

Double Funeral of Wilburt R. Grant and Wife Halted by Telegram From Kansas.

The double funeral of Wilburt R. Grant and his wife, Mrs. Rose Grant, who were slain by gunmen, Tuesday at Plantation Inn, a roadhouse at Wellston, was to have been held today, but was halted by a telegram from Mrs. Grant's father, J. H. Allen, of Prairie View, Kan., requesting that her body be shipped to Kansas for burial in the family lot.

Grant's body, accompanied by his sister, Miss Cecil Moran, of Chicago, was taken to Valhalla Cemetery for burial. Both bodies were to have been buried side by side, according to arrangements made by Mrs. Moran, but following the telegram from Allen, the body of Mrs. Grant was held at a chapel at 5966 Easton avenue until final arrangements for its transportation to Kansas could be made.

A letter from the Kansas City police today stated that the Grants and Wilbur Stalnaker, their supposed chauffeur, who was wounded in the shooting at the roadhouse, are well known to the underworld of aKnsas City. Rogues gallery pictures of both men were sent with the letter. The last arrest of Grant and Stalnaker at Kansas City, Sept. 10, the letter stated, was in connection with a series of safe robberies, but both were released later because of insufficient evidence. Private detectives, the letter stated, had been seeking both men for several weeks in connection with safe robberies in Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas.

Fined $100 on Liquor Charge.

Fred Dickherber, farmer, pleaded guilty before Judge Woolfolk in the Circuit Court at St. Charles yesterday of selling intoxicating liquor, and was fined $100. On motion of Prosecuting Attorney Bloebaum, five other similar charges against Dickherber were dismissed at defendant's costs. Four similar charges against John Gentemann; one against John Hussmann and two against Albinus Griesenauer were dismissed on motion of the Prosecuting Attorney.

GOV. HYDE FREES SLAYER OF PATROLMAN

Ninety-Nine-Year Sentence of David Whitley, Who Shot W. H. Shaiper, Commuted.

Release of David Whitley, 36 years old, sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary for the fatal shooting of Patrolman William H. Shaiper in front of 1517 Lucas avenue, March 22, 1914, was ordered today on a commutation of sentence granted by Gov. Hyde.

Whitley was committed Feb. 15, 1916, 20 months after he had been convicted. He has served seven years and eight months. He will go to Merced, Cal., where a brother, his sponsor, resides. Whitley has been a model prisoner, officials at the penitentiary said.

The action was recommended by the State Penal Board. Recommendations for commutation were made by Hiram E. Moore, who prosecuted the case against Whitley; Kent Koerner, who presided at the trial as Circuit Judge; Joseph Conway, a prosecuting witness, and John Vance, a member of the jury which convicted Whitley.

Patrolman Shaiper was shot by Whitley after the latter and two other men had been arrested at Sixteenth street and Washington boulevard. Whitley and a companion were seen dragging a third man, intoxicated, along the street. Whitley drew a revolver as he was being marched to a patrol box. The patrolman was wounded twice, dying within a few minutes. Other patrolmen chased Whitley, firing at him several times. He was found in a vacant lot an hour afterward suffering with a bullet wound in the chest, from which he recovered.

Whitley and David O'Connor, one of his companions, were identified, several days after the murder, by Louis Labrinsky as the two men who held him up at Eighteenth and Biddle streets shortly before Shaiper was shot. O'Connor later pleaded guilty of attempted robbery in connection with the Labrinsky case and was sentenced to a year in the workhouse.

The release of Whitley resulted from the efforts of his brother, W. L. White, president of the Yosemite Valley Railway Co., it was said today by J. Kelly Poole, chairman of the Penal Broad. Although White is the real name of the prisoner, all records pertaining to the case are under the name of Whitley.

White took up his brother's case with Gov. Gardner in 1920. In a letter to the Governor at that time he said he was destitute of political influence. White had made application for a parole for the prisoner, and a hearing was held Jan. 8, last. Commutation was decided on later.

White had guaranteed to take care of the prisoner and sent a railroad ticket to enable him to go to Mercer. Whitley left Jefferson City for California today.

WIDOW BUYS CLAIM AGAINST HAMON ESTATE

Right to Fee as Administrator on $200,000 Life Insurance Policy Brings $100.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 26.—A claim for an administrator's fee against a $200,000 life insurance policy held by the late Jake L. Hamon, former Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, was sold at public sale at the County Courthouse yesterday afternoon for $100.

The claim was held by Edwin C. Meservey, a Kansas City lawyer, and former Public Administrator for Jackson County. It was put up for public sale on order of the Probate Court and was bought by Mrs. Georgia Hamon Roher, the widow.

When Hamon died, Nov. 26, 1920, in Oklahoma, among the assets of his estate was this policy taken out in the International Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis. Fred L. Ketch of Ardmore, Ok., administrator of the estate in Oklahoma, contended that the proceeds from the insurance policy should be administered in that State. Meservy was of the opinion that the proceeds from the policy should be administered by him in the Probate Court of Jackson County.

The policy, it appears, was paid to Ketch after Mrs. Hamon gave bond against any fees that might be allowed on the claim of the Jackson County Public Administrator.

The purchase of the claim by Mrs. Hamon, it is said, settles all the rights Meservey may have had for an administrator's fee against the policy.

Hamon was alleged to have died as the result of a revolver wound inflicted by Clara Smith, his former stenographer. She was tried in Oklahoma and was acquitted.

Two Years on Fraudulent Check Charge.

Clare D. Maxson pleaded guilty in St. Charles yesterday of passing a fraudulent check on the First National Bank, St. Charles, and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Judge Woolfolk.

SACKS TRIED TO BUY NIGHT AND DAY BANK IN 1920

Former U. S. Senator Wilfley Tells of Hohenschild Refusing an Offer of $150 a Share.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 26.—The fact that William Sacks, in 1920, attempted to buy the Night and Day Bank to consolidate it with possibly one or two other banks into a $1,000,000 institution was disclosed today for the first time in testimony of X. P. Wilfley, former United States Senator, in the trial of Henry H. Hohenschild, president of the bank, who is accused of assenting to the reception of deposits after the bank was in a failing condition.

Wilfley testified that, representing Sacks, he approached Hohenschild with an offer to purchase the Night and Day Bank. He said he told Hohenschild that the new bank would have a capital of at least $1,000,000, and that Hohenschild could be its president at a salary of $25,000 a year. As Night and Day Bank president at the time Hohenschild's salary was $5000.

Purpose of Testimony.

Wilfley said he offered $150 a share for the Night and Day Bank stock. Hohenschild refused to consider the offer, he said. Circuit Attorney Sidener objected that the testimony had no bearing on the case. P. H. Cullen, chief counsel for the defense, explained it was offered for the purpose of showing that Hohenschild had complete confidence in the bank and had no knowledge that there were irregularities which would affect its solvency.

Phil A. McDermott, a director of the bank, testified for the defense that at noon, Jan. 3, 1922, he and Hohenschild had a talk about the absence of Cashier Meininger from the bank at the time the State Bank Examiners were there. In the conversation he mentioned that a few months before Meininger had given him a check for approximately $5600 in a real estate deal and they investigated to learn whether it had been charged to Meininger's account.

Their discovery, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, that Meininger had not charged the check, but was holding it as a cash item, he said, was the first indication he ever had had of irregularities by Meininger.

Formal Demurrer Overruled.

Judge Emerson today overruled a formal demurrer to the State's evidence. There was no argument on the demurrer

McDermott related details of the conference of directors in former Gov. Major's office that afternoon regarding which there has been considerable testimony. McDermott gave a different version of the meeting than given by Frank L. Schneider, head bookkeeper, witness for the State. Schneider said he told the directors there were cash items aggregating $754,000 in the bank and that McDermott told him to return to the bank and "keep his mouth shut." McDermott said there was no mention by Schneider of any cash items, that Schneider told the directors that as far as he knew the bank was in spledid condition. Mc-

SACHS TRIED TO BUY NIGHT AND DAY BANK IN 1920

State's Witnesses Contradicted.

McDermott told of the summoning of Wilmer L. Kingston, head teller, to Major's office, and that Kingston told them of the cash items, but said he did not know the amount. Kingston returned to the bank and got the $174,000 of cash items which were held in his cage, and went over them with the directors.

McDermott said postiively that Schneider did not mention $754,000 and that Hohenschild did not tell Kingston there were $754 000 of cash items in the bank. Kingston had testified for the State that Hohenschild had made the statement.

McDermott said that at a conference at the home of Festus J. Wade that evening there was no mention of any amount of cash items approaching $754,000. Walter W. Smith, vice president of the First National Bank, testified yesterday that at the Wade home there was mention of $850,000 of cash and cash items in the bank.

Cullen brought out from McDermott that State Bank Commissioner Enright did not reply to a letter written by Hohenschild in January, 1921, asking for further information regarding criticism by Enright based on Examiner Wall's report to Enright, and that no bank examiners came to the bank between December, 1920, and January, 1922. He also testified that Hohenschild told of the Enright letter at a meeting of the board of directors.

McDermott Cross-Examined.

On cross-examination he said that Hohenschild had not complied with Enright instructions to present the Enright letter criticising the condition of the bank to the board of directors, but said Hohenschild reported to the directors that he had received a letter from Enright and had written asking for further information.

Defense Objection Sustained.

Judge Emerson announced this morning that he had decided to sustain the objection of the defense to Niemann's testimony as to the amount of cash in the bank at the time it closed on the ground that the four tellers' cages were counted by four different examiners and Niemann did not have personal knowledge of the amount of cash in any cage except the one he counted. He had overruled the objection yesterday afternoon when it was made.

Sam W Dye, formerly a State bank examiner, now a national bank examiner, testified on cross examination that at Wade's house there was mention of cash items, but the amount mentioned was not sufficient to make the bank insolvent.

His testimony was a surprise to the State, whose witness he was. Assistant Circuit Attorney Garstang on redirect examination, asked him what occasion there was for the meeting of other bankers if the bank was solvent. Dye replied he did not know.

Howard Gray, of the defense counsel, then brought from Dye the statement that the continued absence of the cashier was sufficient grounds for the Night and Day directors to seek advice from other bankers.

Ruling on Directors' Minutes.

Judge Emerson refused to permit the State to introduce in evidence the book containing complete minutes of the board of directors, but permitted the reading to the jury of the minutes of particular meetings which the State said it desired to present. Objection to the whole book was that it would enable the State to use in argument to the jury matters to which the attention of the defense had not been called. The Court refused to permit the introduction of minutes showing Hohenschild's salary had been increased, offered to show -hat Hohenschild det voted all of his time to the management of the bank.

The State rested at 10 a. m.

The minutes of the board of directors showed that after Bank Examiner Enright sent Hohenschild a criticism of the bank's condition in January, 1922, Hohenschild stopped signing the minutes of the board meetings. The State attempted to get this evidence before the jury as a circumstance indicating guilty knowledge by Hohenschild. While it was ruled out the matter was argued sufficiently for the jury to understand it.

George W. Hobbs, vice president and cashier of the Republican National Bank, who was State Bank Examiner in December, 1920, and participated with Examiner Wall in the examination of the bank, was the first witness for the defense. Hobbs testified that at the conference of the examiners with Hohenschild and the directors, immediately after the examination, Wall expressed no opinion that the bank was insolvent and he had no such opinion. A part of his testimony, however, served a purpose of the State, in that he brought home to Hohenschild a knowledge of one big unsecured cash item as early as a year before the bank closed.

Tells of Finding Large Check.

Hobbs said he found in the cage of Teller Kingston a check of the Warren Steel Casting Co., for $14,700, which, Kingston told him Cashier Meininger had ordered him to hold. At the time he said the account of the Warren Company was $25,000 overdrawn. Hobbs testified that he called Hohenschild's attention to the matter and that Hohenschild, expressing surprise, instructed Meininger to take steps to collect the check. It was paid, he said, before the examiners completed their examination.

On cross-examination Hobbs said that when he first went to the bank in September, 1920, to examine it "the books were in such a chaotic condition that they could not stroke a balance or tell anything more about the financial condition of the bank. He said Hohenschild was directed to employ accountants and get the books in condition for examination.

Hobbs was a character witness for Hohenschild. Other character witnesses were Oreon E. Scott, real estate dealer; James S. Green, general attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railway; W. Frank Carter, State Senator Michael Kinney, Richard T. Browning, an attorney; George H. Moore, lawyer; Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd, T. M. Jones, Sedalia, Mo.; H. F. Eubar, St. Louis, manufacturer; Dr. H. L. Baysinger Rolla, a member of the board of curators of the State university; Frank L. Harlew, Webb City, lawyer and member of the State Eleemosynary Board, and A. D. Nortoni, former Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

"St. Louis Day"

A One-Day Event in which all St. Louis should Participate

Our THIRD "St. Louis Day" Occurs Tomorrow

When we announced our first "St. Louis Day" a year ago, we gave our pledge that it would become a semi-annual event—an occasion by which every man, woman and child in St. Louis could profit.

This day was set aside to emphatically demonstrate the masterful purchasing and value-giving resources of this institution, which has grown until today it is national in its scope. Amassed for the THIRD of these ambitious merchandising undertakings are

Enormous Quantities of Thoroughly Dependable, Seasonable Merchandise of High Quality Standard at the Lowest Prices of the Year

Every item presents a substantial saving. The quantities are accurately stated and we remind you that the low prices will prevail Saturday only.

The stage is set for Saturday. Everything is ready. From all indications, the THIRD "St. Louis Day" will even surpass its predecessors, both of which indelibly impressed themselves upon the memory of thousands in this city and vicinity. Here are high lights in tomorrow's program:

—6½ pages of "super" offerings.
—20 featured specials—and many others.
—Hundreds of extra salespeople for Saturday.
—Will you please carry small parcels?
—Store opens at 9; closes at 6 on Saturday.

We anticipate the largest attendance tomorrow that this store has ever known. The values offered surely warrant it. Come early Saturday morning and profit by the many surprises our THIRD "St. Louis Day" has in store for you.

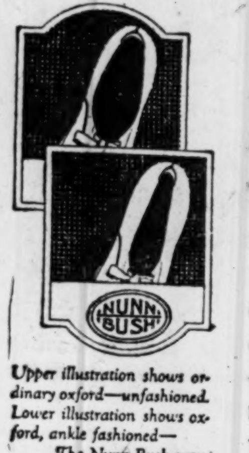
ANKLE FASHIONED — TO KEEP THEM YOUNG



Upper illustration shows ordinary oxford—unfashioned. Lower illustration shows oxford, ankle fashioned— The Nunn-Bush way.

Because NUNN-BUSH oxfords are fashioned to prevent gapping at the ankle, they grow old gracefully. Hence thousands of men who demand the utmost nicety in every detail of apparel, find in Nunn-Bush ankle-fashioned oxfords a two-fold economy. Their cost is moderate, despite their undeniable smart distinction, they may be worn much longer, for they retain their shape.

DETAINED 6 WEEKS FOR LACK OF PASSPORTS

Americans Who Slide Down Mountain Into Czecho-Slovakia Run Into Trouble.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 8.—Almost all Americans know it is well in Europe always to carry one's passport, but occasionally some adventurous person occasionally takes a chance on going without, and runs into trouble.

Trouble traveled hand in hand with two American aviators who, without passports, slipped over the boundary line of Czechoslovakia recently, and was their close companion for six weeks.

Merion C. Cooper, of Jacksonville, Fla., and George M. Crawford, of Wilmington, Del., flew through the war in France under the American flag, and later joined the Kosciusko air squadron in Poland. Together with some Polish friends they recently went on a mountain climbing expedition in the Carpathians in southern Poland.

On one of the excursions Cooper, Crawford and a Polish count, all tied together on a rope, Alpine fashion, lost their balance, began to slide down the snow-clad mountain side and were unable to stop themselves. Before they realized it they had crossed the Polish-Czechoslovakian boundary line, at the rate of about a mile a minute, and landed in a heap in a snow bank at the mountain's base.

Rescuers, among them Szechoslovakian customs officials, soon reached the party. None of the three had a passport, and it took them six weeks to establish their identity and obtain permission to return to Poland.

WOMAN RETRACTS ALIBI FOR 3 ALLEGED BANK ROBBERS

Mrs. Bertha Gaulden, St. Louis, Changes Mind After Being Arrested at Salem, Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SALEM, Ill., Oct. 26.—Mrs. Bertha Gaulden of 31 North Sarah St. Louis, who came here to establish an alibi for three men charged with bank robbery, changed her mind after she had been ordered to jail.

At the trial of Tom Tracey, Herman Meyers and Harry Fischer, charged with kidnaping the cashier of the Sandoval, Ill., National Bank the night of Sept. 18 and getting away with $1800 from the bank's safe, Mrs. Gaulden testified that the defendants were at her boarding house on Sarah street in the early morning of Sept. 19. She fixed the time positively.

After she had left the witness stand Mrs. Gaulden was arrested at the direction of the Prosecuting Attorney, who charged her with perjury. As she was being taken to jail she asked permission to retract her testimony. She was taken before Judge Dove and in his presence made a written statement and said that she could not fix the exact date that Tracy, Meyers and Fischer were at her house, that it might have been Sept. 20, two days after the robbery. She was released.

John Figelick testified against the defendants. He said he drove the robbers' automobile and connected Meyers and Tracy with the robbery and both of them and Fischer with the division of the loot.

The jury received the case last night and was still out at 11 a. m. today.

CANDIDACY OF GOV. PINCHOT DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE

Pennsylvania Republican Organization Leaders Expect Unpledged Delegation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—A conference on Republican conditions in Pennsylvania, participated in by Secretary Mellon, his brother, W. L. Mellon, who has been active in such matters; Harry Baker chairman of the Republican, State Committee, and Senators Pepper and Reed, was held here yesterday. At its close, those participating declared that it had been agreed that no statement would be made as to the purpose or scope.

It is known, however, that the attitude of the Pennsylvania delegation in the next Republican national convention was considered, with special reference to the possible candidacy of Gov. Pinchot for the presidential nomination. Several of those who attended the conference are of the opinion that the Pennsylvania delegation will go to the convention uninstructed, but under the control of those in the conference yesterday.

Prior to the conference, Senator Reed issued a statement in which he predicted the Pennsylvania delegation would go to the convention unpledged but in "harmony with the recognized Republican organization of our State"

KING HELPS TO SAVE MAN'S LIFE

Danish Ruler Aids in Rescue of Drowning Sailor.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 7.—King Christian is the latest candidate for the Carnegie medal.

During a yacht race between the royal yacht Rita and another boat, Carina, a sailor from the latter fell overboard. King Christian, who was at the Rit's helm, saw the accident and immediately put his helm up and went about. The Rita quickly bore alongside the drowning man and the King with others rescued the sailor.

The race, which was the last of a series, was afterwards resumed and won by the Rita.

INCREASE IN USE OF COTTON

International Federation Gives Comparative Figures.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, Oct. 8.—The International Cotton Federation reports that of last year's cotton crops 22,026,000 bales were used, compared with 21,162,000 bales of the crops of the previous year.

During the latter half of last year the consumption of American cotton declined, this being due to the bad trade in Europe during this year. Egyptian was the only variety of which the consumption increased.

STRAIGHTENING OF PICTURE ON WALL LEADS TO WHISKY

Detectives Find Hole in Wall of Saloon and Through It See Liquor on Stairway.

Detectives who visited the saloon of Thomas Kelan, 701 North Eighteenth street, with a search warrant yesterday, failed to find any liquor in the saloon and requested Kelan open a door leading upstairs. Kelan refused.

Seeking a way to get upstairs, the detectives spied a picture on the wall. The hang of it didn't seem to be just right and they investigated and found behind the picture a hole cut in the partition and a view of the stairway leading to the upstairs. On the stairway they reported they could see an aluminum container with a bottle of alleged whisky on ice, and another pot containing 10 bottles of beer on ice. They forced the door then and searched the stairway and the upstairs apartment. There they forced another door leading to a closet and reported finding altogether five cases of home-made beer, six cases of empty bottles, brew mash in process of fermentation, six gallons of "moonshine" whisky, and some crocks and bottle caps. Kelan was arrested.

Detectives broke a door to get into the kitchen of the home of George Kleich, 1000A Mississippi avenue, who conducts a saloon on the first floor, after Mrs. Kleich had refused to open the door yesterday. As they entered the home, they reported, Mrs. Kleich emerged from a bathroom where they reported finding a bottle that smelled like whisky but the contents had ben poured into a drain. A bottle of alleged home-brew was found on the third floor. Kleich was arrested.

RABBI CHALLENGES KLANSMEN TO DEBATE

Secretary of Catholic Conference Says Evans Reveals Order's Intolerance.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Replies have been issued here on behalf of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the Executive Committee of the Assembly of Orthodox Rabbis of America to the address delivered at Dallas, Tex., Wednesday night by Dr. W. H. Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, outlining the klan's attitude toward Catholics and Jews.

Father John P. Burke, general secretary of the Catholic Conference declared Dr. Evans' statement regarding the Catholics in America had made the issue clear cut, adding that "it is for Americans to decide whether they will stand with their country or with the klan."

Challenging the klan to a joint debate, Rabbi Simon Glazer of the Great Synagogue of New York said the question at issue was whether Jewish Americans were to be considered Americans, or, according to the klan, must first be converted as Americans.

The statement reported made by Evans, said Father Burke, "reveals without further question the klan's intolerance for the negroes, Jews and Catholics. Up to the present, in spite of statements and evidence to the contrary, the klan has denied that it persecuted any of the above named.

"Evans states that through the Catholic hierarchy of the United States, the President of the United States is subordinate to the priesthood at Rome; that the parochial schools of the country are a proof of 'divided' allegiance on the part of Catholics. He offers no proof of these statements. He cannot offer proof. They are deliberate, malicious misstatements, refuted completely, if refutation were needed, by the official declaration of the American Bishops on American's entrance into the war; by the thousands of Catholic dead buried overseas; by the fact that the first American officer killed was educated in a Catholic school and the last American killed was a Catholic priest.

"The klan, through its official representative, sets at naught the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of every state in the Union. According to the klan the foundation on which our country was built—religious and social tolerance—cannot endure."

OPPOSITE COLUMBIA THEATRE

EXHIBIT A COMPLETE STORY OF LOCOMOTIVE

Toy-Like DeWitt Clinton, the '999' and Modern Engine on View at De Baliviere and Tracks.

The whole story of railroad locomotion is being told today at De Baliviere avenue and the Rock Island Railroad tracks, a block from Jefferson Memorial. This story, in concrete form, is a train of four engines and several cars, put on exhibiton by the New York Central lines, which arrived here this morning after a summer's tour of the railroad's system.

Most conspicuous, and almost toy-like to twentieth century yes, accustomed as they are to huge locomotives, is the tiny De Witt Clinton engine, built in 1831, the first American-made locomotive, its tender, almost reminiscent of a horse-drawn grocer's cart, and one of the three original coaches this little engine drew.

The Clinton did not come here on its own legs, but with its original cavalcade was brought along on one average-size flat car. It has a high smoke stack, driving wheels which reach the top of its boiler, and a couple of simple cylinders, one on either side. On the tender repose two large buckets—water was kept in these—and the firewood was tossed on the floor. At the rear of this car is a little seat where the fireman, or jockey as he might more correctly have been called, rode.

Horse Coach With Railway Wheels.

The coach is nothing but a coach. One of the horse-drawn variety, with flanged wheels. Eight persons could get in it, and while it had none of the conveniences of Pullman travel, the passenger accounted for this inconvenience in some way by being allowed to smoke just where he rode.

Up ahead of the exhibition train is the locomotive which pulls the whole load. The latest type of freight engine, capable of pulling 140 cars at 50 miles an hour, it looks like a monster bulldog. It is ultra modern, being equipped with a mechanical stoker, while at the front of its boiler jacket is a small tank for preheating the water before it goes to the boiler proper. Lump coal is put in its tender, where a crusher and revolving screw makes it ready for consumption. It is a boiler room on wheels.

Two other engines, the "999," which holds the speed record for engines, 112½ miles an hour, built in 1893, and a smaller engine, in use during the Civil War period, complete the display of four locomotives, which roughly depict locomotive evolution.

Miniatures of Locomotives.

To aid the observer are 15 miniatures, 14 of them working models, made by Ernest Warther of Dover, O., who spent his nights during the past 10 years fashioning them. Warther made them of black walnut, ivory, bone and pearl, and said he did it merely because it interested him. During the day he worked in a steel mill, and needed relaxation at night.

The models start with Sir Isaac Newton's "teapot" engine, which was supposed to move because of a jet of steam it blew against the atmosphere. This is Warther's only model which doesn't have working ability. Warther said Newton's engine didn't work, so he didn't see why his should. The remaining 14 show all the major types of locomotives, both experimental and practical.

The exhibit will start back East at 10 o'clock tonight, the De Witt Clinton to repose on the mezzanine floor of the Grand Central Terminal in New York, and the record-making "999" to start hauling the milk train it was hooked up with before it was given a sight-seeing vacation.

Woman Dies on Sidewalk.

Mrs. Charlotte Blanke, 60 years old, of 2916 Dodier street, died suddenly on the sidewalk in front of 2916 Angelica street at 6 p. m. yesterday. Heart failure is supposed to have caused death. The body was taken to the Morgue and remained unidentified until late last night when a nephew and a daughter made the identification.

WHY THE BONES OF PINKNEY SUBLETTE LIE IN COURTHOUSE

Descendants of Solomon Sublette Have Been Trying Since 1895 to Establish Claim to Lands.

SKELETON EVIDENCE IN TWO OLD SUITS

Both Were Decided Against Claimants, but "Exhibit" Has Been Held in Soapbox for 28 Years.

There is still no rest for the Courthouse skeleton, but if the ghost of Pinkney W. Sublette walks anywhere, it is more likely to annoy lawyers and court officials than to wander to the brickyards and the homes of naturalized citizens in the old Sublette farm tract, lying southwest of King's highway and Manchester avenue.

For it is not Pinkney Sublette denied a resting place by fate, whom the property owners of the region have to blame for any claim that may now lie against their holdings of land. It is Pinkney's brother, Solomon Sublette, who died in 1858, and whose purported will, pending in St. Louis courts since 1895, is still being used to exact tribute from owners seeking a clear title.

As has been told in the last few days, the bones of Pinkney Sublette, or bones supposed to have been his, have been for 28 years in the custody of the Clerk of the St. Louis Circuit Court, together with a tombstone taken from the grave in Wyoming, where Sublette, a hunter and trapper, killed by Indians, is supposed to have been buried. The bones and the stone were exhibits in two suits which were based on the supposed claim of Pinkney Sublette to an interest in the property. Both these suits were decided adversely to the claimants by the State Supreme Court, nearly 15 years ago.

Some Claims Settled.

Solomon Sublette, whose grave no one has ever thought of disturbing, has remained in the courts, through litigation based on his purported will. Because of these claims owners of 28 acres out of 206 acres involved, have made settlements with the claimants, obtaining quitclaim deeds from them, and others may do so later, if they should wish to transfer their holdings, as purchasers usually demand an unclouded title.

The suit based on the will, that of Thena Ewart et al. vs. Robert S. Peniston et al., has been pending in the Circuit Court since the Probate Court rejected the purported will in December, 1896. Through the years it has had continuance after continuance, neither side apparently caring to bring it to trial—the defendants fearing that they might lose a large part of their holdings, and the plaintiffs being none too sure of their claim, and being satisfied with their opportunity to levy tribute on those desiring a clear title.

Bones in a Soap Box.

A few days ago Circuit Clerk Schmoll decided that he would rather have the room occupied by Pinkney Sublette's bones than the rather grewsome company of the old settler. The bones, which include the skull, take up too much room to be placed in the regular filing space, and they have been kept in a soap box, which has been buffeted about the Clerk's office, being used at times as a footstool under the table of the Clerk or a Deputy.

Schmoll thought the Missouri Historical Society would be willing to see to the burial of the bones. But when his plan was announced, R. M. Nichols, attorney for the plaintiffs in the Solomon Sublette will suit, declared that the bones might be needed in that case at a future time, and asked that their interment be deferred further. Acocrdingly, the soap box will continue indefinitely to be Pinkney's sarcophagus.

Attorney Nichols, when asked yesterday by a Post-Dispatch reporter as to the reason for his request, said the bones did not appear to figure directly in his case, but that he thought best, in litigation dating back so far, to keep at hand everything which might by any possibility come into the evidence. He has been in the case only a few years, and he said that McCune Gill, vice president of the Title Guaranty Trust Co., probably knew more about the case than anyone else.

Gill's Story of the Case.

Gill, who has studied the case in all its phases, and who has recorded and charted the facts of law and of title, said he could see no reason whatever why the bones of Pinkney Sublette, if they are indeed his bones, should any longer be kept above the soil. He gave as clear an exposition of the entire case as would appear to be possible.

"Solomon Sublette died Aug. 31, 1857," Gill said. "A little more than a year before, on Aug. 1, 1856, his wife Fannie Hereford Sublette, who before her marriage to Solomon was the widow of his older brother made over to Solomon a part of the Sublette farm, which she had inherited from her first husband. The prop-

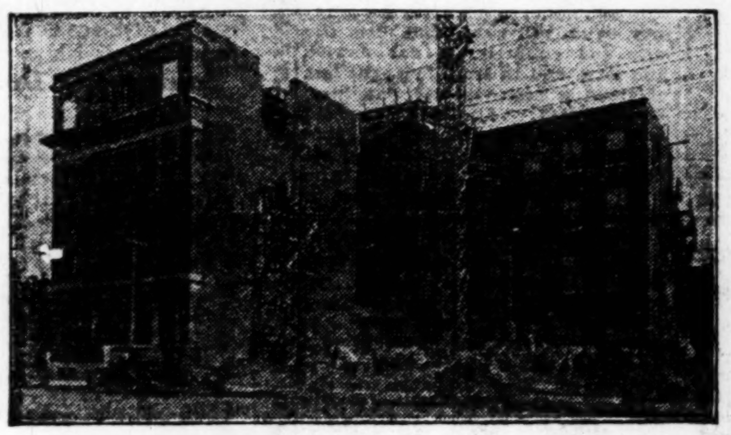
Like installing a New Telephone Plant for a city of 100,000

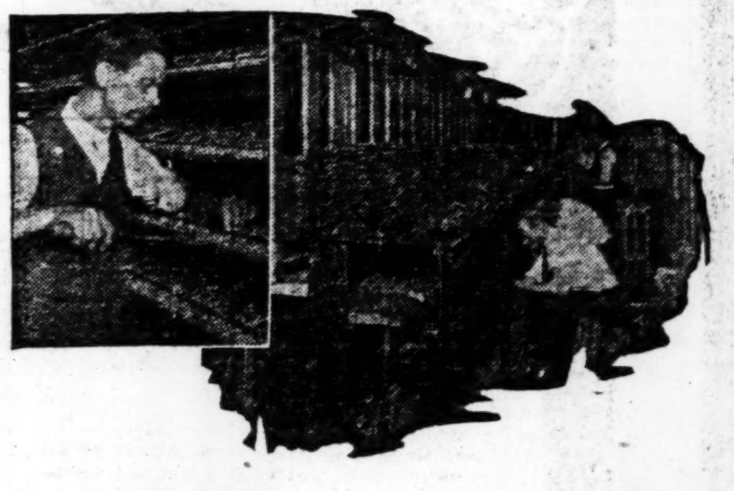
PHASES OF THE MERGER



Here in Cabany central office at Delmar and Skinker extensive alterations are being made, including the addition of a fourth story to the building.

As a part of this job, several hundred yards of cinder concrete had to be chipped off of the old roof with pickaxes while a hundred or more operators were providing your telephone service in the switchboard room directly below.

During unification eleven central office buildings will be altered; one will be built; and eight will be abandoned or turned to other uses. More than $500,000 will be spent on building operations alone.



Here you see men at work on the rear of a switchboard. The inset illustrates the process necessary in making connections, millions of which must be individually soldered by hand before unification is complete.

In this work, 88 sections of new three position switchboard will be installed.

Your Telephone and the Merger

It is inevitable that every telephone subscriber in St. Louis experience some effect of the telephone merger now in progress.

In connecting 37,000 Kinloch telephones with 130,000 Bell telephones, as much labor will be expended, as much equipment used as would be necessary in providing an entire new telephone system for a city of 100,000 people. The merger work, however, is essentially a remodeling job.

Have you ever lived in a house while alterations are being made, or in an office when partitions are being removed?

With hardly an exception we are remodeling each central office. In these offices 1,600 operators are quietly completing on an average of 750,000 calls daily.

A job of this nature, going on under the very surface of the ordinary telephone service must at times, despite all human diligence, result in certain inconvenience to you. However, we are bending every effort to keep service as near normal as possible during the remodeling period.

SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

Telephone Unification Is Building Toward a Greater St. Louis—when the Merger Is Completed, There Will Be More Than 165,000 Unified Telephones in the City.

MUCH IMPRESSED BY NOTES, LLOYD GEORGE DECLARES

Expresses Hope That Technicalities Will Not Stand in Way of Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—David Lloyd George today said he was "very much impressed" by the notes exchanged between Lord Curzon and Secretary Hughes regarding reparations, but that he could not express any final opinion until he knew precisely the details of the whole situation. It was not clear to him, he said, just what the French attitude would be.

"I do hope technicalities will not stand in the way," he said, adding that, in his judgment, whoever stands in the way of a settlement purely on technicalities "deserves to lose his face." If Premier Poincare is trying "to save his face and only that," then he should be assisted to this end, he said. "If they merely want to say this is done under the Reparations Commission, that will be all right."

erty which she made over to Solomon is now bounded by King's highway, the railroad tracks, Shaw avenue, Macklind, Columbia and Sublette avenues.

"The name of Fannie Hereford is perpetuated by Hereford street, which runs north and south in this tract.

"When Solomon Sublette died, his wife and children inherited his property, as no will was found. But the wife and children did not survive him long, and in May, 1861, the last of them a nine-year-old daughter, Fannie, died. She had inherited both her father's property and that which her mother had retained for herself the remainder of the farm tract, extending south to what is now Southwest avenue.

Relatives Partitioned Property.

"The nearest of kin of the child, Fannie Sublette, were her uncles and aunts on the Hereford side, her mother's side. On the Sublette side there were only cousins. So the Hereford relatives, seven in number, partitioned the property, and the present holders of the land base their titles on those of the Herefords.

"The Sublette descendants naturally felt that they had fared rather badly. Nothing was done at the time, but long afterward, in the '90s, it occurred to some of them that Solomon Sublette had a brother, Pinkney, and that if he had been alive when the child, Fannie, died, he, as the child's uncle, would have been entitled to share with each of the uncles and aunts on the Hereford side—in other words, would have had one-eighth of the whole Sublette farm property.

"The family traditions about Pinkney were rather vague, but it was generally held that he had been killed by Indians in Wyoming. In 1895 an expedition went to Fontenelle Creek, in the Yellowstone region, and returned with the bones, which are now at the courthouse, and with the stone which was lettered 'P. W. S., d. 1865.'

Basis of Two Suits.

"This, with certain testimony offered, was held to show that Pinkney was alive when his niece, Fannie, died and that, as he left no issue, the other Sublettes were entitled, through him, to one-eighth of the farm.

"Two suits were based on this claim. In the first one, in which the evidence was reviewed in detail, Circuit Judge Wood decided that the P. W. S. accounted for by the stone might have been another Pinkney W. Sublette, who, it was testified, had gone West from Cooper County, and that Solomon Sublette's brother, Pinkney, appeared to have died before 1861. The Supreme Court upheld Judge Wood. The real reason, which the Court did not state, appeared to be that there was doubt whether the bones were those of any Pinkney Sublette whomsoever.

"Another case, based on the Pinkney Sublette claim, was also adversely decided, on grounds of multifariousness.

"But there was another way to claim the property, and to claim more of it. If a will of Solomon Sublette could be found, leaving the property of his relatives after the deaths of his wife and children, the Sublette descendants could then claim all of Solomon Sublette's estate, instead of one-eighth of the estate of Solomon and his wife. And, quite remarkably, such a will was found in 1895, almost 37 years after Solomon Sublette's death.

Peculiarities of Will.

"This will has peculiar features. The signature has little resemblance to that of Solomon Sublette, as shown on a number of letters in the possession of the Missouri Historical Society. Also, it is dated April 15, 1856, whereas his wife did not convey the realty to him until the following August. Expert examination has disclosed other peculiarities. Still, there is a man living who says he witnessed the will, and under these circumstances, while the case is pending in court, titles to this property cannot be regarded as entirely clear. To escape from any question, some owners have paid the plaintiffs for quitclaims.

"All this has nothing to do with Pinkney Sublette, and it is difficult to see how the Courthouse skeleton is ever going to come into the case again."

Among the holders of land in the Sublette tract, whose holdings are or have been to some degree involved in the claim made under the Solomon Sublette will, are the Board of Education, the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., the Evens & Howard Fire Brick Co., the St. Louis Smelting and Refining Co., the Laclede-Christy Clay Products Co., the National Lead Co., and Marion F. Howard.

His engagements today began with breakfast in company with Dame Margaret and Miss Megan Lloyd George, as the guests of William Jennings Bryan in the diplomatic room of the new Willard Hotel. This evening he will attend a dinner given in his honor by Secretary Hughes.

Visits Woodrow Wilson.

When Lloyd George renewed his acquaintanceship with Woodrow Wilson, which began before the Versailles peace conference was assembled, it was indicated that world conditions of today rather than memories of yesterday were the basis on which the conversation turned, though they recalled incidents of the peace conference.

At the private dinner as the guest of Secretary Mellon the former Premier had opportunity to learn informally but at first hand something of the views held by the men who now make up the American Government on the problem that the world is facing.

FORD "FOR COOLIDGE STRONG" IF HE TRIES TO ENFORCE DRY LAW

Quoted as Saying He Is Sure President Can Dry Up Country If He Wants To.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 26.—Henry Ford is "for President Coolidge—strong," if he makes a sincere effort to enforce the prohibition law, according to a copyrighted story published by the Detroit Free Press. Ford said he was sure the President could dry up the country if he wanted to, according to the story.

"If he does I am for him—strong," Ford is quoted as saying. "The President knows it is the right thing to do."

Expressing his own views in regard to enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, Ford reiterated his statement of a month ago that "he would order out the army and the navy if necessary" to see that the law was enforced.

"Let the drinkers once know," the story quotes the automobile manufacturer as saying, "the Government is really determined that the law of the land shall be treated with the respect American law must have, even if it has to build a few additional wings to Federal prisons, and this country will become dry."

UNIONIST PARTY WANTS SPEEDY REFORM OF HOUSE OF LORDS

Abolition of Some Hereditary Seats and Elections in Place, Among Suggestions.

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Oct. 26.—The Unionists' resolution, asking the Government to proceed immediately with the reform of the House of Lords, was unanimously adopted yesterday at the National Unionists conference, at which some 1100 delegates were present.

While the party put forward no definite plan for the proposed reform, many ideas have been advanced previously for making the House of Lords more representative. One of these ideas was for abolishing some of the hereditary seats in the upper chamber and the election of members to take them who represent various interests in the country.

Many members of the Unionist party are anxious to get through a reform in the upper house as quickly as possible, that they may have material to hold their own against the Laborites.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Oct. 26.—Operative aircraft squadrons of the battle fleet will make this port their headquarters and training base, beginning May 5 next, it is announced by Admiral Samuel S. Robison, commander-in-chief of the fleet.

Capt. Henry V. Butler, commander of the aircraft squadron, will be stationed aboard the aircraft carrier Langley, Admiral Robison said, after that vessel's return to San Pedro with the battle fleet next spring. The North Island Naval Air Station at San Diego will continue to be the training and operating base for the heavier scouting and torpedo plans, he explained, while 35 light scouting, fighting and spotting planes will be housed aboard the Langley for operations with the dreadnaughts in all battle fleet maneuvers and cruises.

MERIT SYSTEM GONE, MRS. BLAIR CHARGES

Missouri Woman Says Politicians Are Getting All U. S Jobs; Cites Slemp Case.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in a statement today, charges the Republican administration with having scrapped the merit system of appointments. All women voters are called upon to investigate "the flagrant abuse" of the civil service during the last three years.

"I am putting before the women voters of the nation, in pamphlet form, the record of the Republican administration on civil service during the past three years," Mrs. Blair said.

"I want women to study the remarks of former Postmaster-General Work and the incumbent, former Senator New, on postoffice appointments, how they have ignored efficiency ratings to give jobs to political henchmen. Dozens of cases are cited and hundreds of others have never been written into the official records.

Recalls Davis Ouster.

"I know that no women will fail to see the injustice in the treatment of A. P. Davis, scientist and expert engineer, 35 years in the Government employ, who was ousted as Director of Reclamation by Secretary of the Interior Work in order that his job might go to D. W. Davis of Idaho, a politician and grocer. There are other vicious acts which have been laid before the women for their perusal.

"There are about 10,000,000 women in the various nonpartisan women's club organizations of America, and every one of these groups has a civics division, in which civil service has been made a special study. Women are keenly interested in the merit system, and thousands of their clubs have adopted resolutions urging that civil service be kept out of the 'spoilsmen's hands.'

Attacks Slemp Appointment.

"I am surprised that women's clubs have not more vigorously stated their opposition to the appointment of former Congressman Slemp as 'Secretary of Patronage' to President Coolidge, and I can only conclude it is because they have not information in their hands on Mr. Slemp's record of juggling postmasterships in his grabs-bag of patronage in Virginia.

"Continuation in office of Mr. Slemp and his type of politician means turning the hundreds of thousands of office appointments and other jobs, now under civil service, over to the highest bidder, and the junking of the merit system carefully built up in 40 years of nonpartisan effort.

"We are constantly asked by women to give them complete information on our Government institutions and the records of public men, so that they can study and discuss them in their club programs. They desire reports in greater detail than the press frequently is able to give. And, it is this desire that the Democratic National Committee proposes to meet this winter. Six other subjects, in addition to civil service, will be put before the women for study and discussion."

OUTLINES PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICAN PROGRAM

Minnesota Congressman Hopes Fight With Party Leaders Will Not Be Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Constructive legislation, particularly with reference to railroads and taxation, is the aim of the organized group of progressive Republicans in the House, Representative Nelson of Minnesota said today in outlining their general policy. Their hope is to obtain this without an open fight with the party organization, Nelson said, but he declared the group would not hesitate to fight if necessary.

Nelson says that, in his opinion, there should be four major changes in the transportation act, as follows:

Elimination of the so-called guarantee provision.

Valuation of the properties of the carriers on the basis of cash investment rather than book value.

Abolition of the Railroad Labor Board.

Restoration to the state commissions of their control over lines within their states.

With respect to taxation, Nelson favors a modified form of excess profits tax and a constitutional amendment against the issuing of tax exempt securities, such as that proposed by Representative Green of Iowa, who is in line for chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

He sees little hope of a general reduction in taxes, including those on small incomes.

The progressives appreciate, he said, that their hope in obtaining the legislation cannot be realized unless there is what he terms a "liberalizing of the House committees," and it is to that end that the group is prepared to wield the balance of power it will hold in the House.

Personal fights are not to be indulged in by the group, Nelson said, so it will not take sides as such in the Republican leadership fight between Representatives Longworth of Ohio and Graham of Illinois.

LODGE FOR KEEPING COOLIDGE

"No One Who Compares With Man Now in President's Chair."

By the Associated Press.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 26.—"I can see no man on the political horizon of either party who compares in fitness with the man now sitting in the President's chair," Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts declared in an address last night.

The speech was the first in the campaign to elect Porter H. Dale to the national Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator William P. Dillingham and to elect Col Ernest W Gibson to the seat formerly held by Dale in the House of Representatives. A special election has been called for Nov. 6.

U. S. SUGAR FLEET PLAN DROPPED

Shipping Board Finds Cost and Time Limit Prohibitive.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The Shipping Board has reconsidered its decision to place 100 ships of the tied-up fleet in the Cuban trade to transport sugar to the United States this year, it became known today. The cost of placing the ships in commission and the short time available for preparation, the board announced, made it impossible to carry out the plan. A study will be made, however, with a view to entering the trade at some future date.

LEAGUE TO LEAD WORLD TO PEACE, SMUTS SAYS

"God's Army Is in March," He Declares, in Defending Policy Toward Europe's Quarrels.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Gen. Smuts, Premier of South Africa, upheld the position of the League of Nations in not intervening in the quarrels over reparations, the Ruhr and Corfu, at a dinner last night.

"The league is still but a child," he said. "It has powerful enemies. A child has been born to us who in the fullness of time will grow up to lead the nations in the paths of peace and righteousness.

"Herod tried to kill the other still greater child, whose parents had to flee with it into Egypt. Now, too, there are Herods about. Europe is full of them, and in case of danger, I prefer the flight to Egypt to preserve the precious life of the child, for future history is moving at a fearful pace, and very soon the league may be the only rallying point left for a distracted world."

In passages of sombre eloquence, Gen. Smuts described the present situation. He said:

"Our promises to our peoples, our vows to God, our sacred obligations to the dead—they are all forgotten. Vilna, the Ruhr, Corfu—they stand written in flaming letters across the skies of our hopes and ideals. There is not a principle of the covenant which has not been violated and trampled under foot."

"While many think along the old lines of great continental armies, and combinations of force," the Premier continued, "world-wide public opinion is being formed, which is sapping and mining their whole position. Against armies of force there is being mobilized a still greater army of the imponderables whose influence always is decisive in the end.

"God's army is in march."

Gen. Smuts predicted that Fascism, like bolshevism, would fail and pass away and give way to the ideals of the League of Nations.

MEETING NOV. 3 TO FORM "FORD-FOR-PRESIDENT" CLUB

All Persons Favoring Ford's Candidacy on Any Ticket Invited to Attend.

Organization of a Missouri "Ford-for-President" club wil be attempted at a mass meeting at Musicians' Hall, 3535 Pine street, at 8 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 3. The call for the meeting was issued today by Sheridan Carlisle, an attorney, national committeeman in Missouri of the Farmer-Labor party, following a conference last night with active members of the party.

The mass meeting is open to all persons favoring the nomination and election of Ford on any ticket, Carlisle said. A resolution indorsing Ford's candidacy was adopted at a meeting last night held at the residence of Jesse Justis, chairman of the State Committee of the Farmer-Labor party, at 6704 Clayton avenue. Carlisle introduced the resolution and spoke for it, as did also Justis. Several members questioned the advisability of action at such an early date, but the vote for adoption was unanimous. About 45 persons were present, Carlisle said.

Word has been received from the headquarters of "Ford-for-President" clubs at Dearborn, Mich., that the club proposed for St. Louis will be the mother club for the State. Efforts to organize other parts of the State will be made later, Carlisle said.

$1,458,000 FOR WATER WORKS AND MORGUE APPROVED

Bond Issue Committee Makes Action Conditional on Resubmission of Plans Before Letting Contracts.

CO-OPERATION WITH ALDERMEN EXPECTED

But Aldermanic Committee Refuses to Pledge Conformity With Wishes of Supervisory Body.

Ordinances appropriating $1,250,000 for construction of engine pits and intake towers for the new waterworks at Howard's Bend on the Missouri River, and $208,000 for a new city morgue on the City Hall Plaza, were approved by the Citizens Supervisory Bond Issue Committee yesterday.

Approval of the ordinances was conditional on the proviso that detailed plans and specifications and bids be hesubmitted to the committee before contracts were let.

Carl F. C. Meyer, chairman of the Welfare Committee, in reporting favorably on the morgue ordinance, said it appropriated $68,000 out of the bond issue fund voted in May, 1920, and $140,000 out of the 1923 bond issue funds. He said that in Pittsburg, where a modern morgue had been constructed, it had been equipped with a crematory and that some undertakers thought similar provision should be made in the plans for the new morgue here.

Final Approval Deferred.

Meyer pointed out that 1100 bodies were placed in the morgue annually, each being kept there from 1 to 30 days. No provision has been made for a chapel in the proposed morgue and the committee has not reached a conclusion that a chapel is necessary, but will not give its unqualified approval to the present plans until the detailed plans and specifications are ready for submission.

David Kreyling, chairman of the Committee on Public Utilities, said his committee approved the appropriation of $1,250,000 for the engine pits and intake towers after checking up with Water Commissioner Wall increases in cost of labor and material since Wall estimated the work could be done for $850,000 and had the committee approve an ordinance for that sum for the same work.

Kreyling's report included the recommendation that if the $12,000,000 voted in the bond issue for the new waterworks was not sufficient to complete the plant, the additional funds required be taken from waterworks revenue or an additional bond issue be passed to make up the deficit.

Aldermen Refuse Pledge.

O. J. McCawley, chairman of the special committee appointed to confer with members of the Board of Aldermen, in order to reach a better understanding on bond issue legislation, reported that a most gratifying spirit of co-operation was shown by the Aldermen's committee. He recommended that in future all ordinances presented to the committee have memoranda attached to them showing what action had been taken by the Aldermanic Committee.

Alderman Wimer of the Twenty-seventh Ward, one of the members of the Conference Committee of the Aldermen, reported yesterday that the members of the Supervisory Committee requested that the members of the Board of Aldermen pledge themselves to approve or disapproves all legislation afecting the bond issue in conformity with the wishes of the Supervisory Committee. Wimer said the Aldermanic Committee declined to give this pledge, but expressed a desire to work in harmony.

McCawley, in his report to the General Committee, yesterday, did not make any reference to an attempt to exact such a pledge. However, he said, after the meeting, that a suggestion of that kind was made, but was not pushed by his committee, which realized that the Board of Aldermen was the only legal legislative body of the city.

The only instance of a disagreement was the passage by the board of the condemnation ordinance for the northeast approach to the Municipal Bridge over Mayor Kiel's veto after the Supervisory Committee had disapproved the ordinance.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, at the request of the committee reported that a detailed survey for the River des Peres sewer improvement and plans and specifications had been made, and that an ordinance had been introduced in the Board of Aldermen appropriating $500,000 for the first section, about a mile in length in the Lindenwood district. A contract will be let soon. A contract for the second section, in Forest Park, he stated, should be ready to let by next summer.

Problems of British Empire's Defense and Economic Policy Full of Knots for Conference

Dominions Divided Over Bearing Part of Cost of Naval Bases—Canada and South Africa Thus Far Have Refused.

THE British Empire has come to one of its greatest crises. The dominions now claim rights to fellowship with Great Britain in conducting imperial affairs. They insist on being consulted on foreign relations. They also demand a full voice in settling the empire's economic problems. These matters are now being threshed out in the imperial conference at London. John L. Balderston, the Post-Dispatch's correspondent, has written a series of articles dealing with the background of this momentous conference, of which the following is the fourth.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

The third of the three big problems before the Imperial Conference is that of armaments; or, as it is euphemistically called, imperial defense. The other two, already touched upon in this series of articles, are foreign policy and inter-imperial trade. There are three phases of imperial defense that the chiefs of empire will debate. These comprise armies, the navy and the air, and I will deal with them in the order mentioned.

Little time or discussion will be wasted on the question of armies. British policy consists in retaining a small, ever-ready expeditionary force, as in 1914, but with a power of expansion based on what was achieved in the war. A "skeleton" army of 3,000,000 exists on paper, and there will be, of course, for many years, thousands of former officers ready to step into their places in an emergency.

The dominions are asked by Britain to continue to observe, in their military establishments, Lord Haldane's 1911 plan for co-ordination between the British and dominion forces. It was under this plan that the Canadian and Australian troops were dovetailed into the British army. Since, however, the prospect of a great land war in which the empire may be engaged seems extremely remote, the subject is not one that attracts much attention or concern.

Naval Situation.

Before the war the most burning subject in conference between empire statesmen was the navy. Great Britain bitterly resented having to bear almost unaided the enormous cost of the naval race with Germany. The dominions were told that they too were shielded by the British fleet and that they ought to pay a part of the cost, in proportion to their resources. The result of these arguments were not impressive. Australia alone formed a navy of her own, but the plans formulated in 1909 by which Canada was to create a royal Canadian fleet fell through, owing to political opposition in Canada.

At present Britain faces no naval rival, and part of her fleet is scrapped under the Washington treaty, so it is now a question of bases and not of ships. But the problem remains the same. Are the dominions to pay for the creation and maintenance of expensive harbors in distant waters where the fleet can shelter, refit and obtain fuel?

So far as appears at this writing, Australia and New Zealand seem willing to put up money for naval bases, but Canada and South Africa will refuse. No one has dared to suggest that Ireland contribute.

Oil, the Admiralty experts point out, gives a wider radius of steaming than coal, consequently fewer bases are needed. Singapore, which is to be the main British base in the Far East, will call for $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 in the next 10 years, and I understand the Australasian delegates are prepared to advance one-fourth of this. There is in existence an admiralty scheme, secret, of course, concerning which no accurate information is available, for the creation of an Eastern fleet, to be paid for and run by the dominion and India. This plan cannot be carried out this year, because only Australasia seems willing to accept it.

Air Defense Is Chief Issue.

But the principal emphasis at this imperial conference, in defense discussion, is laid upon the air. Just as before the war, money was advanced to build vast liners like the Lusitania or Mauretannia, on condition that they became auxiliary cruisers in war time, so the Air Ministry seeks to kill two birds with one stone and develop air trade routes within the empire whose craft can be turned to bombing and reconnaissance work if need arises. Three long distance airship services are sought by the Government's air experts: one to Australia and New Zealand across Egypt and India, another to Australia across Canada, and a third over France and down the length of Africa to the Cape.

The Dominion Premiers will be invited to indorse this scheme, in principle, and to offer to pay some of the expense. They will be told that the greatest barrier to closer inter-imperial co-operation lies in distance. By getting to work on these airship lines, not only will new aircraft be provided, but a nucleus of trained pilots and mechanics for war made available.

This outline of imperial defense, as it will be brought before the imperial conference, is necessarily sketchy. This is partly because plans are in a nebulous state, but especially owing to the secrecy that is a rule of the Government here when such schemes are under discussion. It is extremely unlikely that any report as to what decisions may be taken on these points will be issued to the public.

Economic Problems.

The present session of the imperial conference for the first time has been divided into two parts. There is the conference proper, under the chairmanship of Premier Baldwin, and a subsidiary session called the economic conference, presided over by Sir Philip Lloyd Graeme, president of the Board of Trade. The Prime Ministers of the Dominions, President Cosgrave and the Indian representatives are ex-officio members of this economic conference, but they have all brought trade experts with them who will do the bulk of the work, and the two conferences are meeting simultaneously.

The Economic Conference held its first session with no program before it. The subject of inter-imperial trade is so vast that it was felt necessary to leave the choice of the subject to be discussed to the delegates themselves.

Premier Baldwin's speeches opening the conference proper on Oct. however, indicated the scope which the Economic Conference is expected to take. He expresses confidence that the experts would be able to advise measures to the mutual advantage of all parts of the Empire providing for redistribution of population, the improvement of transport and means of communication and the general increase of facilities for the growth of trade within the Empire.

Huge Task in Sight.

This outline raises issues sufficiently vast to keep the members of the Economic Conference here in session, not for six weeks, but in perpetuity. It is not seriously expected that important progress can be made this year. Small beginnings, in the shape of subsidies toward paying part of the passage money for approved emigrants to the dominions, have been attempted toward what many political thinkers believe will develop into the flight of millions upon millions of British workers, in the next decade, from a homeland which can no longer support them to the great open spaces across the world where the British flag flies.

But when it comes to "the growth of trade within the empire," a popular phrase here just now, tariff difficulties arise that cannot possibly be solved for a long time to come. Lord Milner, the great imperialist, whose "young men" of the Round Table, as they are called, have fought for Federalism, thus commented on the Economic Conference:

"In the past the discussion of economic questions at colonial or imperial conferences has led to little more than the punctuation of the fundamental differences between the fiscal policy peculiar to Great Britain and that common to all the dominions, including Ireland, and presently, if she attains full dominion status, certain also to be adopted by India. As long as that difference exists the principle of mutual concessions in respect of import duties between Great Britain and the dominions cannot be carried very far. And that it still exists will become apparent as soon as the economic conference settles down to serious business.

"The representatives of the dominions will inevitably point to the contrast between the large measure of preference which they accord to British importations and the comparatively few and slight advantages enjoyed by their own imports into Great Britain. And some of them will press, and press with vigor, for a great extension of those advantages.

"But though their arguments will doubtless be received in a more sympathetic spirit than when a British statesman could still boast of having 'banged, bolted and barred the door,' in the face of their suggestions, they will nevertheless find that the attitude of Great Britain is substantially unaltered.

"They will probably obtain an increase of the preference which they now enjoy in respect of existing duties on imports into this country. But it is idle to imagine that even then the preference we give them will be at all equivalent to that which they give us, or to expect them to be satisfied with this limited concession.

"Under these circumstances the best we can hope for is that every other proposal for economic co-operation will not be sunk and lost sight of in the bog of the old tariff controversy."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

"Suffer Little Children."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHEN the compassionate philosopher of Nazareth said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven," he did not distinguish between legitimate and illegitimate children; he loved them all. In marked contrast to these words is the communication printed in the Sunday Post-Dispatch from one of your correspondents (Mrs. O. H. England), protesting against the legitimizing of illegitimate children.

It always takes some sheltered married woman, who knows little of the world and its problems, to look down from her secure vantage ground and condemn her less fortunate sisters. The woman is so hard upon the woman. Your correspondent is utterly selfish in her wish not to have illegitimate children legitimized. Her chief concern is that a wife and her children may have to share their worldly goods with the child born to her husband by another woman. She naively admits that the worst thing about the situation is that the woman's husband must publicly acknowledge his paternity. Not the deed, but the discovery and proclamation thereof is what worries this pious woman. Does she give no heed to the rights of the illegitimate child who came into the world by no volition of its own? We may hold any view we like to about the sins or virtues of the parents of a child born out of wedlock, but we cannot, we must not, attach any stigma to the child who was in no way to blame, who comes into an unfriendly world with all the odds against it, but who yet may be as sweet, as innocent, and as beautiful as any child born in wedlock.

It is also to be remembered that most illegitimate children are not born to "despicable wantons," but to girls and women of good and often highly respected families. The majority of unwed mothers are more to be pitied than blamed; at times, even, they must be admired for their courage.

But all of these considerations are side issues. The one person to be thought of in this problem is the blameless illegitimate child who has a right to an untarnished name and to a fair chance in the world.

Water Waste.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHAT has become of the old-fashioned water inspectors? None ever comes to look after the water. Years ago, every three months a water inspector came through my house and now it is four years without any. People have put toilets in; the houses use gallons more water every day and don't pay 1 cent for it. Why not give the Water Department justice and pay for same? Won't the Water Department wake up and take notice of how the water is used and not paid for? USER OF WATER.

Railroads and Land Values.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED STATES SENATOR SMITH W. BROOKHART says that valuation of the railroads should be $12,000,000,000 instead of $19,000,000,000, the tentative valuation set by the Interstate Commerce Commission under the La Follette law.

Suppose the valuation of the railroads be arbitrarily reduced from $19,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000 as suggested by Senator Brookhart? What would be the reduction in railroad rates? It would be insignificant because operating expenses, wages, materials, etc., not capitalization, are the real reason of increased railroad rates.

Suppose Iowa and other farmers get free (?) railroad service? What would the result be? Merely that free railroad service would be added to the value of farm lands; present holders would sell at increased valuation and move to Southern California, or to Western Canada where they can get good land for one-thirtieth the cost of Iowa land and railroad service subsidized in part by the Government. Meantime the added value of the confiscated railroads would be reflected in the expenses of farming in Iowa.

Senator Brookhart, or no other man, can legislate any industry into affluence unless indeed he can protect it with a tariff and the farming industry as a whole, especially corn, wheat and stock farming is not susceptible to protection by a tariff.

Senator Brookhart is eloquent when speaking of the capital inflation of railroads. It would be interesting to know just what the capital inflation of Iowa lands and Iowa railroads in the past 50, 25, or last 10 years, has been?

There have been vast inflations "watering" of values in the United States in the past 50 years, but none so great as the inflation of values in land. The real inflationist, the real waterer of values, the real oppressor of the people is not Wall Street or the big industrial interests, but the landowner, be his land holdings in the heart of the great city or in the heart of the great prairie.

A LANDOWNER.

A CHALLENGE TO FRANCE.

The publication of the correspondence between Lord Curzon and Secretary Hughes clears up the somewhat mystifying allusions, in the news from London the last few days, as to the changed attitude of the United States towards the European situation. The most striking of those references was the statement of Premier Smuts of South Africa regarding the "Coolidge initiative." That statement, in the light of Mr. Hughes' note, seems unduly optimistic, but under the distressing circumstances it is natural for despairing statesmen to seize any straw.

The Hughes note reaffirms the American Government's willingness, as presented in the New Haven speech, to participate—probably unofficially—in an economic conference to determine Germany's capacity to make reparations and to evolve a plan for payments "in order to prevent economic disaster in Europe, the consequences of which would be world-wide."

It is explicitly stated, however, the conference should be advisory and our participation is conditioned upon the participation of all the Powers concerned. That stipulation, of course, points straight to France, which has never approved the proposal. The note does not say that if France dissents the project must be abandoned, but, in such event, "the United States Government must reserve decision as to its course of action." The note properly states our position as to Germany's responsibility and her obligation to make the fullest possible restitution. And we again make it clear that the debts owing us cannot be linked up with the reparations question. Their payment in full is an obligation that cannot be affected by any revision of the reparations amount, though assurance is given that this Government will be a lenient creditor as to terms.

For all its caution the Hughes note is a hopeful development. Isolation is adjourned. One result is certain: It is bound to smoke out France. If France is honest in her declaration that her policy towards Germany has had but one object, namely, the collection of reparations due her, she now has the opportunity to prove her sincerity. If, on the contrary, as frequently charged and circumstantially proved, her purpose has been the destruction of Germany and the military and industrial mastery of Europe, her guilt will be pretty thoroughly established should she veto the one proposal which promises a solution of Europe's desperate problem.

The Hughes note offers no hope to Germany for evading the bitter consequences of her criminal madness, but its greatest force is found in its challenge to France.

"WHERE THE CARCASS IS."

The setting up of a Separatist provisional government in the Upper, or Bavarian, Palatinate strongly suggests that Germany is now at the mercy of political adventurers, who see in the weakened condition of the national Government an opportunity to seize for themselves and their followers official jobs, state or municipal, by stirring up local prejudices and promising better local conditions. It is a modern example of the truth of the Biblical adage that "Where the carcass is, there shall the eagles be gathered together," the eagles in most such cases being merely vultures.

There are two small German countries known as the Upper and Lower Palatinate. Together they form one of the richest districts in the country. Both territories were mercilessly devastated by the armies of Louis XIV of France in 1674 and 1689. The Palatinate having been won over to the Reformation and Calvinism being the State religion, thousands of Protestants emigrated in 1685 when a Catholic Prince became ruler of Bavaria. A large number of these settled in the American colonies, principally North Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York and Virginia.

With less than 2,000,000 population in the two Palatinates, and with every reason for fearing French domination, the Separatists do not appear to have a good case. From an outside point of view, they are working against the best interests of their own people.

WHAT KIND OF A FARM SURVEY?

A world survey of agriculture and of economic or other facts affecting agriculture is being made at the direction of Secretary Wallace. This is the service the farmer most needs. Information will give him a chance to use his intelligence. It will build a barrier around demagogic leaders seeking to mislead the farmer by distorting or misrepresenting facts. It should persuade the farmer to cease searching for panaceas and to work out his own salvation by putting two and two together.

The entire effect of the inquiry, however, might be destroyed by a partisan treatment of the subject by the administration. There may be facts with relation to agricultural prosperity which might go against some of the fundamental tenets of the Republican party. For instance, it might be shown that peace in Europe, fostered by the active co-operation of America, would improve the agricultural market. And it might be shown that the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill is inimical to the farmer's interest. Is Secretary Wallace's effort to be an honest survey or a political survey?

"THAT'S THAT!"

PURGE THE VETERANS' BUREAU.

Final judgment on the conduct of the Veterans' Bureau under Charles R. Forbes, who has since been succeeded by Gen. F. T. Hines, must be suspended until all the testimony is in. So much damning evidence has accumulated, however, that public confidence in the former administration of the bureau must have sunk to a very low ebb. Testimony adduced purports to show that large sums of money have been squandered in supplies not immediately needed, for the purpose of benefiting contractors; that material has been below grade; that hospitals have been located not to accommodate needy veterans but to serve interests in pursuit of spoils. According to one witness, former Director Forbes accepted huge personal loans of money from contractors.

Words are inadequate to characterize the perfidy of taking graft out of funds appropriated for so sacred a purpose as the rehabilitation of disabled veterans. It is hardly believable that while men who offered their lives for their country on the slaughter fields of France are waiting vainly and dying for relief public servants intrusted with funds so willingly bestowed by a grateful country have been flippantly misdirecting these funds to their own private use and to whatever additional waste is involved in the process.

If such betrayal be finally proven the nation will insist upon the limit of the law for the offenders. Means should be devised in the future not only of purging the bureau of dishonesty and politics but of maintaining a vigilance through auditing and publicity which not even a crooked man could escape. The situation calls not only for honesty but for administrative brains to scotch dishonesty on the spot.

ANNE ARUNDEL MUSINGS.

Correspondent Ross' amusing story of Congressman Hill's doings, in Monday's Post-Dispatch, suggests several things.

Congressman Hill, maker of wines under the famous Anne Arundel County recipe, and of fruit juices fermented according to a Department of Agriculture recipe, is a thorn in the side of the prohibition enforcers, and especially those who will not admit that the Volstead act is a product of unreason. Mr. Hill proves, for one thing, that the poor abused farmer "has it all over" his city rival, in being practically exempted from the provision of the Volstead law with the one-half of one per cent clause.

The Government recipe for making fruit juices showing, under Mr. Hill's experiments, far more than one-half of one per cent, in fact proving as fractious in this respect as Anne Arundel herself, the wine maker wrote to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes asking what he was to do about it. The Commissioner replied that his office never had fixed a maximum alcoholic content for cider or home-made fruit juices. He went further than this, according to Mr. Hill, saying that his office had no disposition to proceed against the manufacture of cider containing 2.75 per cent of alcohol.

Poor Haynes! Knowing that his agents are all the while prosecuting the makers of home brew in the cities, and that it is his intention to stop the sale of malt and other materials used to make drinks not as strong as those the farmer can turn out without molestation under the cider and fruit-juice exemption, his only logical course was to stop Mr. Hill's doings with an injunction. He leaves the cider and wine making farmer unmolested.

But that does not alter the facts of the case, nor in the least reconcile the Volstead act with the eighteenth amendment. And Anne Arundel goes on gayly lacerating the Commissioner's feelings with impunity. It has come about this way. The Government has published a wine-making recipe, almost as good as the thousands of wine-making recipes to be found in all the libraries and encyclopedias. And Mr. Hill found it a mighty good recipe. Now all the country has it as a bit of the news of the day. A well-a-day, and alack, alas. What is Mr. Haynes going to do about it?

THE OLD WORLD.

ON-BOARD-THE-CONTE-ROSSO. — The Strait of Gibraltar seems to be about two and one-half miles wide, with high land upon both sides. On the African side is Morocco, where Spain is at war. As you pass the Rock of Gibraltar, which is high enough to command the strait, even though not so high as mighty, you get a first-rate idea of the detail involved in maintaining an empire.

Great Britain must keep the way open to India. Therefore she must not merely hold the Rock of Gibraltar, which is a bit of British territory thrust into the corner of Spain, but she must also see that no other Power fortifies the opposite heights in Morocco. This is what Spain is doing in Morocco. The British do not care how the war goes so long as Spain does not lose it. Spain is Britain's man Friday in that part of the world.

You may guess from this how numerous and how weighty are the problems of England, as you can understand how necessity has made her perhaps the wisest of nations. Wild men like Senators Reed and Borah do not resolve great problems into peaceful solution. It takes another type of statesman and one with which our own news from Washington renders us quite unfamiliar.

We had one thrilling experience just as we passed into the Strait of Gibraltar. Suddenly loomed before us, eastbound, a fast and beautiful ship even larger than our own. She passed very close to us just at dusk, when her lights were coming on and the world is mystical with things half-seen.

"The British mail packet, Anchora, bound for Australia," one of our officers announced. We all stood there and watched her until the last twinkling light disappeared.

"What an empire, and what a people!" exclaimed Mr. Antwine, who was full, as we all were, of the romance of these indomitable men making all the sea and most of the land their own.

The Conte Rosso did not stop at Gibraltar or anywhere else. She is out to make a record run from Naples to New York. Nevertheless, when we passed the strait and under the celebrated rock we were all standing silently under the bridge. It was then very early in the morning, but since the price of empire also is eternal vigilance everything was just as much astir at Gibraltar as if it had been midday.

Gibraltar is one of those rendezvous of the seas like our own at Panama. Here ships may coal, and here is the gate between East and West. The lights of all the Bedouins of the sea blinked at us as we ran through great lines of ships and more ships, some little, some big, some in their turn under way and others at anchor.

"I suppose these places might be termed the roadhouses of the sea," said Mr. Antwine, who was visibly impressed by all this. "They have their filling stations, etc., just as we do on land."

"Except that the sea has become an altogether respectable place, whereas the land is infested by gunmen and bad imitations of pirates," said Socrates.

"Alas, that is true!" Mr. Antwine sighed. "We have more robbers than we ever had, but nothing so picturesque as the pirate."

After breakfast we were in the Bay of Cadiz, with Spain lying upon our right and presently a point of Portugal thrust into the sea. This was the last of Europe we were to see, and as we stood looking at it, Socrates said:

"Nations in security soon go into decay. The Portuguese have the British behind them. They should worry. The British have nothing behind them, and they are always worried. Worry is what makes us resourceful and self-reliant. The Don't Worry movement probably originated in Portugal. At any rate, its worst depredations have been committed there. No poetry, no art, no Nobel prize winners—only security."

This amused everybody, and Mr. Antwine said Socrates was twice as deep as the ocean.

There were 2000 Italian immigrants on the boat.

"Eight hundred of them are going to Canada, and the rest to South America," an official of the Italian Government said. "Every one of them wants to go to the United States, but our quota is filled."

"Maybe they will sift in somehow," Mr. Antwine said.

Whereupon the Italian official looked out over the sea with about as merry a twinkle in his eye as you ever saw and said maybe they would.

We did not get into the matter beyond that, because whales were reported on the other side. If you have never been to sea you probably imagine that whales blow very much as Old Faithful does in Yellowstone Park.

It is not so, really. Instead of that 150-foot column of water standing up to behold, the spout of the whale is merely a puff of spray carried off by the wind with such celerity that unless you look quickly you do not see it.

There were whales all about us, as it happened. The white puffs of spray were rising upon every quarter, and finally a whale rose directly in the path of the ship and lay there as if saying:

"Hit me."

We braced ourselves for the shock, but a whale is not the clumsy creature you may think. Relic of the age of the great dinosaurs though he is, and scarcely built along modern lines of agility, this one gave only a slap with his great tail when the ship bore down on him—and was gone!

There was a great stir on the boat when it was announced that New York was in sight. The immigrants almost fell off the bow looking at it as we came into the harbor. There is no other harbor like that, we imagine, just as there is no other wealth like our own and no other country like this.

Mr. Antwine said what we all felt as the ship docked:

"I don't care how many disagreements there are among us, there is no other country blessed like our own," he said.

And there isn't. Please take it from us.

Trade Revives in Southeast Missouri.

(Charleston Times.)

A Kentuckian drove a truck into Charleston Tuesday which was covered with a tarpaulin. Soon sound began to emit therefrom and it was then learned that it was a truckload of hounds. He disposed of them, it is reported, at pretty fair prices. Charleston has a minimum number of hounds of the human class, but enough, but we did not think that the other kind would be of any use any more than the former.

IMMORTELLES.

OH, when death comes to conquer me,
I think I shall be choosing
Some little flowers to comfort me
For all the flowers I'm losing.

Upon my heart I'll wear the blooms,
And crown my brow with flowers,
Thus hence I'll bear the blossoming
Of all our happy hours.

As did Persephone of old,
To Pluto's gloomy palace
Some blossoms bring, and nurture them
In Lethe's very chalice.

NEW PAPER FOR NEWSPAPERS.

From the New York Herald.

SHORTAGE of material for paper making h led to experiments with many products, a it is now proposed to utilize the straw fr the millions of acres of wheat fields in the Ca dian Northwest that has hitherto been burn The experiment of converting this former w product into paper of a high grade will be co ducted at the Northfleet Paper Mills in Ke England, and any definite results secured a to be first submitted to the Canadian Government. One of the problems in connection wi the handling of the material of course is tran portation. Another is the danger of ferme tion through storage. Under the new proc which is in the hands of a subsidiary of the g Northfleet plant, the straw is first boiled in s ash and then treated with bleach. A second s treatment, followed by a bleaching, is said result in a first-quality material for paper. T outcome of this experiment with material w wastage has never failed to bring regret those from farming communities where ev bit of straw is converted into fertilizer, ei through being used as bedding for livestock as a stack to which animals have access, w greatly interest the paper industry, in which need of paper making substitutes is more perative every day.

THE HOUSING PROBLEM.

From the New York World.

THE shortage of homes is set by the Fede tion of Tenants' Association at 165,000 home Five times that number of persons are said to living in conditions that are not permanently durable either from the personal or the pub point of view. At the best, these families doubling up with relatives or friends, two fa lies in the space intended for one. At the wor President Harry A. Ely reports one case wh 42 tenants occupy a single tenement in th eight-hour shifts for sleeping. Worse has been recorded of raw mining camps or of towns on the heels of new discoveries. The w of it is that no cure is in sight. To build 165,0 homes would be a gigantic undertaking. Ev if they were built, their cost at present ra would be so great that they could not be econom ically rented at a price within the power of th poorer families to pay. Further remission taxes might aid in the erection of new homes, bu the question of costs would not be fully solved No question before the public is of greater u gency than that of the need of more homes f the people.

UNMASKING THE KU KLUX.

From the Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

UNMASKING the Ku Klux Klan, in Okla or elsewhere, would prove a serious blow activities commonly ascribed to the organiz That accomplished, it might not be necessary make public its roster, though no responsible ganization, we imagine, would seriously object making known its membership. Ordinarily legitimate fraternal circles the fact of memb ship is something to boast of rather than to ceal. If this is not true of the klan, it might interesting to know why. As long as the Ku K Klan continues to mask it will remain a s of potential evil and disorder. The mask irresponsibility. The offenses charged against organization by Walton in Oklahoma may or not be substantiated—it is difficult at this tance to say which—but if the klan went abo business in daylight and with faces bared it at least escape the imputation of crimes th not belong to it. It is not an improper d that the klan unmask. Then if it has a mission in American life, as its supporters it may fulfill it in an American way.

L'ENVOI.

Prince, there are dreams in which the soul may dwell—
it too late for life to set us free, is it the tale too tedious to tell?
"Won't you sit down?" or "Willl you marry me?"

ETHEL M. KELLEY.

Ground has been broken for another ballade, this one with a double refrain: "I don't know why I am telling you this" and "I was never more serious in my life."

And J. W. begs that this be incorporated in our forthcoming drama:

She: Are you angry?
He: No, not angry—just hurt; terribly, terribly hurt!

With the critics who say "Windows" is second-rate Galsworthy we dissent. It may be less momentous than "Justice" or "Strife," and have less plot than "Loyalties," but we don't believe it's second-rate Galsworthy. It seems to us that a man may depart from his accepted and expected method without diluting his first-rateness.

Young Johnny March, in "Windows," as a "chivalrous" young poet is a deft piece of characterization. Even to the point of making a poor rhyme. His attempt to wed "skylight" with "dry night" is one of the subtlest touches ever conceived.

"Follow your impulses," is Mr. y's advice in "Windows." The Ideal Tour includes, possibly, these directions: Follow impulses to end of road, turn right on Primrose Highway down steep grade. Remorseville. Go straight through on good macadam to Arcadia. For Honey Dew Melons and the Milk of Paradise go to the Utopia Tea Room.

There is Cryptaesthesia, which Mr. Arthur Brisbane says is a scientific name for "intuition, woman's strange power to judge character at a glance, her ability instantly to tell truth from falsehood." In our girlish way, then, may we suggest that there is considerable lack of truth in crediting woman with this ability? Woman's celebrated intuition, we feel intuitively, is an Overpraised Institution. Man's intuition we believe to be at least as good. And the eye of man, we also believe, better than the eye of woman, detects the single hair that divides the false and true. Not that any of the sexes is particularly good at it.

DISILLUSIONMENT.

I thought you were a poet
So purple were your eyes—
So curved they were with laughter,
So straightened with surprise!

I thought you were a nomad
Bound for the road's last turn—
So sick you seemed of cities,
So starved for hill and fern!

I thought you were a spirit
Caught in the peopled earth—
So blithe you were with sorrow,
So sad you were with mirth.

'Twas yesterday I thought so.
Ah, dream impermanent!
Today you talked on Charity!
And Civic Betterment.

It strikes us that Burton E. Stevenson's just published book, "Famous Single Poems," is far from complete. It contains, of course, "A Visit from St. Nicholas," "Casey at the Bat," and "Ben Bolt." But it does not contain John J. Ingalls's "Opportunity," George T. Lanigan's "The Ahkoond of Swat," nor that noble poem with the refrain "Tinker to Evers to Chance."

Few wags are madder than Old Spaeth. "In a Buffalo drug store," he writes, "the little woman was drinking a lemonade, and, as is customary on such occasions, trying fruitlessly to impale the cherry on a straw. Like a flash I yodelled, 'bat, Mater!'"

TWO DEBUTANTES WILL BE PRESENTED TODAY

Miss Dana to Make Her Bow at Ball, Miss Garrett at Afternoon Tea.

TWO of the season's debutantes will make their bows to society today. Miss Judith Dana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dana of Brentmoor will be presented at a ball this evening at the St. Louis Country Club. Miss Josephine Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Garrett of 29 Kingsbury place, will be introduced at a tea for 200 guests to be given this afternoon by her mother.

Pink roses and smilax have been used in decorating the club for the Dana party, and the guests will attend an 8:30 dinner preceding the dancing. The debutantes and their escorts, numbering 50, will occupy a central U-shaped table banked with roses, presided over by Miss Dana, with smaller tables seating the remainder of the party, including many of last year's buds.

Miss Dana will wear an imported model cream-colored satin, made in the style of many years ago, with full skirt and tight bodice having straps about the arms as well as over the shoulders. Narrow panels of satin, beaded in pearls, are caught at either shoulder and fall to the hem line, and the bodice is finished at the waist with pearl cabauchon. She will carry an armful of pale pink roses. Mrs. Dana's gown is to be blue velvet, embroidered in rhinestones, and her flowers, white orchids.

Receiving with Miss Garrett and her mother at the tea this afternoon will be Miss Stella Garrett and Mrs. Richard Stanley Tuthill Jr., of Evanston, sisters of the debutante. Mrs. Tuthill came to St. Louis for the occasion and is the guest of her parents.

Russell roses will be used in decorating the living room, where the receiving party is to stand, and yellow and brown chrysanthemums in the reception hall and dining room. The tea table will be presided over by Misses Frances Compton, Mary Virginia Collins, Mary Francis Dickson, Celeste Terry, Josephine Moffitt and Marceline Reyburn.

Miss Garrett will wear pale blue chiffon, embroidered in crystal, and will carry Ward roses. Her mother's gown will be light brown crepe and chiffon.

Miss Garrett has given a number of small parties, including a dinner and theater party last night.

BRITON IN GREEK PLAY DIRECTED BY AUSTRIAN

Sir John Martin-Harvey Finds Appreciative Audience for Ancient Classic.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Last night at the Century Theater an Englishman knighted by King George V appeared in a production, made by an Austrian, of a play written by a Greek some 2400 years ago. The actor was Sir John Martin-Harvey, the director was Max Reinhard and the playwright Sophocles.

Had Sophocles been present at the Century last night it is possible the harsh consonants of the English tongue might have scarred his Grecian ears, but it is highly improbable he could have found fault with either the settings or the acting of his play.

This tragedy, based on the last day of a King who, foredoomed by fate, had unwittingly slain his father and wedded his mother, was done almost to perfection.

An Appreciative Audience.

An audience that certainly will be remembered as the best-behaved gathering in many months was crowding the theater when the curtains parted and revealed a setting of the Palace of the King of Thebes. The somber, blue-black vastness of a lofty portico, a flight of steps and an altar with a single amber spot on it, defined the range of the action.

The piece ("Oedipus Rex") began with supplications to the King from his people. The theater aisles were crowded with suppliants in robes and sandals as they streamed down to the palace steps, and as Oedipus appeared through the bronze portal of his palace.

From the opening tableau to the closing scene, in one hour and 45 minutes of constant traffic on the stage, Sophocles held his audience last night. The pitch of the piece, the flood of incidents heaped one on another until the supreme moment of tragedy, the sonorous verses of the Gilbert Murray translation, and the stately, sorrowing measure of it, seemed to be neither new nor old.

The ageless quality about a Greek play—a feeling as though one had wandered into an old church where the ritual was unknown, but the spirit accepted—had pervaded the production.

Yet one cannot give all credit to the dramatist. Certainly the players themselves measured up to him. By their perfect timing, the various scenes dissolved one into another in a series of pageants and tableaux, as the players scored their verses and movements with the precision of musicians.

Lines Well Given.

For the most part, the lines were read by pointing the rhymes and not by trying to make poetry sound as if it were prose. So long as this was the case the spirit of the piece held the definite beauty of Greek purity and style.

Sir John Martin-Harvey, as Oedipus, was the image of that proud and fated King. Yet his voice if not his carriage in certain moments rose perilously near to a pulpit-thumping pitch. In particular one high note of his otherwise fine, resonant voice was distressing—but this was his first night in a theater that would try the powers of Aeolus himself.

Miss Mirian Lewes, as the Queen, played throughout with an even, smoothly cadenced style. Gordon McCleod as Creon and Harvey Braban as leader of the chorus, also were moving factors in the beauty of the piece. There were no blanks in the cast. All had good voices and a sense of metrical flow.

The play at the Century has a quality that will not be found elsewhere on a New York stage. Some of it might be considered dull, if one is himself too dull to appreciate the sonorous chants and stately sorrow of its sometimes static beauty.

REALTY MEN TO FIGHT TAX-EXEMPT SECURITIES

President of National Association Says Real Estate Is Paying More Than Share.

Declaring some wealthy men openly admitted "that they were ashamed because they held so many tax-exempt securities," H. R. Ennis, president-elect of the National Association of Realty Boards, told 175 members of the St. Louis Realty Exchange at luncheon yesterday that most of the National Association's time in 1924 would be devoted to the tax-exempt security problem.

"We are going to study the situation and co-operate with the Federal Government to the end that no more tax-exempt securities be issued," Ennis said. "An increasingly larger proportion of taxes is coming from real estate annually. Real estate is the big 'stutterer' in the tax situation. In Boston 89 per cent of the taxes come from real estate, in New York 85 per cent, Chicago 82 per cent, and St. Louis about 82 per cent. The proportion must be changed and it is my duty to work toward that end."

Ennis advocated appointment of appraisal committees in large cities and the licensing of real estate companies. "Real estate business is now a profession," Ennis said. "The busines has a standard of ethics and the best way of preserving them is by a State license for all operators. In that way the public will be protected and will know when they are dealing with a reputable firm."

Ennis stopped over in St. Louis yesterday on his way to his home in Kansas City. He was elected president of the National Association of Realty Boards at the annual convention at Louisville, Ky., Monday. With him were Charles H. Simpson, Kansas City, former president; I. Shuler, of Omaha; and Buron R. Hastings of Omaha. Simpson also addressed the luncheon yesterday praising St. Louis as great industrial center.

ASIATIC ANIMALS GO WEST

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The birds and animals of Asia are constantly moving westward into Europe, according to German naturalists, the Ural mountains apparently making an insufficient difference in climate and general conditions to keep the wild life of the two continents separate.

The Ural owl has lately been seen at the Brandenburg gate of Berlin and even as far west as the Neckar valley, and German ornithologists say he will stay. This great bird, whose wing spread sometimes exceeds a meter, formerly lived chiefly in Siberia.

St. Louis Is Enthusiastic About the Splendid Quality, Style and Tailoring of the Garments in This HALF MILLION DOLLAR SALE

HOW WE BOUGHT AT GREATER DISCOUNTS

Early in the season—when wholesale prices are at their highest—is when most merchants buy their stocks for the entire season. Our entire stock, however, was purchased for spot cash within the last 30 days — directly from the manufacturers themselves—at a time when the manufacturers were withholding shipments due to slow credits and when the disposal of their entire stock for cold, hard cash meant most to them. This situation, combined with our ability to buy large quantities, resulted in greater discounts.

WHY WE CAN SELL AT GREATER SAVINGS

All stocks offered by this store are purchased for cash only and are sold in the same manner. Profits are reduced to the smallest possible margin to secure the fastest "turnover." No fancy fixtures, elaborate trimmings, and expensive bookkeeping and collection systems are saddled to our cost of operating, and no trading stamps, "free deals" or special discounts to any selected class are ever offered as "bait" for added business. Such elimination of unnecessary expenses is reflected in the Better Style, Tailoring and Fabric we offer for LESS MONEY!

WALTON REPORTED TO BE PLANNING ANOTHER STROKE

Oklahoma Governor, Suspended by Order of Supreme Court Pending Impeachment Hearing, to Continue Fight.

TRAPP ACTING AS STATE EXECUTIVE

New Move Said to Contemplate Preferment of Charges Against Some Members of Senate Court.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Oct. 26.—Defeated in his efforts to nullify the order suspending him from office, Gov. J. C. Walton today is believed to be preparing a final stroke to combat the impeachment proceedings against him.

The executive said he would "continue to fight," although declining to define his future intentions. In well informed quarters, however, it was said his supporters plan presenting impeachment resolutions in the lower House of the State Legislature against Acting Gov. M. E. Trapp, some members of the Senate court of impeachment which will try the executive and other State officials.

Nature of Next Move.

This attack in behalf of the Governor, it was predicted, will come from an unexpected quarter, and will be directed also against Attorney-General George Short, John A. Whitehurst, president of the State Board of Agriculture; Frank Carter, chairman of the State Corporation Commission, and W. C. McAlister, secretary of the State Election Board. The names of the Senators were not mentioned.

The suggestion was received in legislative circles in silence. Close followers of the situation, on the other hand, recalled the announcement of the House that all State departments would be included in its impeachment investigation. It is known that several of the officials named already have been interrogated by the House Committee on Investigation and Impeachment.

Permanent Writ Issued.

Gov. Walton lost his court fight to retain the executive chair late yesterday when the Supreme Court issued a permanent writ of prohibition sustaining the Senate resolution ordering his suspension from office until he can be tried on impeachment charges. The writ restrained the Governor as a private individual from interfering with the duties of Lieutenant-Governor Trapp as acting Governor, and also was directed against District Judge Tom Chambers, who previously had granted the Governor's application for an injunction preventing Trapp from acting as Governor under the Senate resolution.

Already organized as a court of impeachment, the Senate waited today for the lower house to complete consideration of the remaining impeachment charges drafted in its committee report before setting a trial date. Eight of the 22 articles set out in the report yet are to be voted upon, but it is believed the House will complete the work late today.

Trapp to Remain in Own Suite.

Informally taking over the reins of government last night, Lieutenant Governor Trapp said he would discharge the executive duties from his own office to save Gov. Walton any inconvenience or embarrassment. Thepended executive, he said, would be allowed to continue to occupy the Governor's suite in the capital.

"Nothing will be done to inconvenience Gov. Walton pending final determination of his status," the acting Governor added.

The House today voted additional impeachment charges against Walton and now only two of the 22 reported from committee await consideration.

SHRINE TEMPLE DEDICATED WITH PARADE IN EAST ST. LOUIS

A parade in which thousands of Shrine members from East St. Louis, St. Louis and Illinois cities participated preceded the dedication today of Ainad Temple, Sixth street and St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, recently completed at a cost of more than $500,000. The parade started at 10 a. m. and traversed the downtown business section of East St. Louis. The city was decorated for the occasion.

Special trains arived early today from Chicago, Peoria and Springfield, and a number of Shrine bands were on hand. A 120-piece band accompanied the Chicago delegation. The program called for dedication ceremonies at the temple at 1:30 p. m. and initiation of approximately 650 candidates into the Shrine order during the day. Today's program closed activities which started Tuesday, when initiation of 376 candidates into the Mississippi Valley Consistory and co-ordinate bodies began.

LOUIS CAN HAVE E 1924 AIR MEET, MOFFETT SAYS

f of Navy Bureau of Aeronautics Enthusiastic Over Way City Conducted Recent Races.

MIRAL DECLARES "BEAT THE WORLD"

ayette Escadrille Commander Writes Races Were "Best Organized" He Ever Has Seen.

Louis can have the national races, including the Pulitzer ty race, again next year, if it s the meet again, said Rear Adl W. A. Moffett, chief of the y Bureau of Aeronautics, who d through St. Louis last night his way to a Navy day celebration Little Rock.

e would like to see the meet in Louis again next year, he said, the reason that St. Louis "beat world in enthusiasm, arrangets and attendance" at the recent t.

St. Louis spent more than $300,- and has the record for the greatair meet ever held," said Adl Moffett. "I would like to see Louis ask for the meet next year that it could realize a profit on original investment. Such a t outlay and sincere interest in advancement of aeronautics dea return meet. The receipts t year would virtually amount to profit on the original investment d would give St. Louis, with a additional improvements, the t aviation field and plant in the rld.

Praises Carter and Perkins.

"I realize that to hold another t next year would entail considble work, but it would not amount ne-tenth part of that of the oral enterprise. You now have the d and the experience of having e through a meet. Next year, the ple of St. Louis could reap a dsome profit on the original intment if the city would take the t again."

Admiral Moffett praised W. Frank ter, general chairman of the St. is Air Board, and A. T. Perkins, nager for the receiver of the ted Railways, who directed the ineering work of putting Lam-St. Louis Field in condition for meet, as "two men who will long praised in the world of aeronautfor their magnificent achievets in the greatest aeronautical t ever held."

Surprised at Success.

"I did not at first believe St. Louis ld do the thing up so handsome-" said Admiral Moffett. "After y first visit here to look over the und, I expressed doubt that this y could handle the meet in a ge way. Railway Exchange Building's Plight Described by Former Manager Rickets, Now Its Receiver.

GOES FOR LEASE ON SITE AND UPKEEP

Hearing on Claim of Defunct Dry Goods Company Stockholders for Prior Lien on Structure's Assets.

Although the Railway Exchange Building takes in between $900,000 and $1,000,000 a year in rentals, it gets nothing out of it. The building company pays to the Annuity Realty Co. $430,000 a year on its lease, plus $187,000 a year taxes, and the balance of the revenue from rentals is not enough to pay for the maintenance of the 21-story building and interest on the company's bonds.

The amount paid by the building company to the Annuity Realty Co. was stated by Claude B. Rickets, former manager and now receiver of the Railway Exchange Building, when he testified yesterday in connection with the claim filed by a group of stockholders of the Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co. for prior lien on the assets of the Railway Exchange Building Co., which is in bankruptcy.

How the Railway Exchange Building, the largest of its kind in St. Louis and one of the largest office structures in the world, went "broke" was disclosed in the Hargadine-McKittrick receivership suit in 1916 and other litigation growing out of the building enterprise since then.

Long-term Leases Disastrous.

The building was erected in 1914 at a cost of about $3,500,000. Its cost seemingly was justified by a number of 50-year leases obtained from the May Department Stores Co. and several railroad companies at what was considered at that time good rental figures. Then the world war began. Building operation costs and taxes went sky high but the rentals paid for space in the building under the long-term leases, remained the same.

Ricketts further stated in his testimony that the building company still has an account of $300,000 or $400,000 against the defunct Hargadine-McKittrick Co., which financed the building enterprise representing losses on leases which the dry goods company had guaranteed. The dry goods company invested approximately $2,700,000 in the building enterprise.

As has been told, it is the contention of the petitioning stockholders that the dry goods company got nothing from its investment in the building, and that its stockholders were not considered in the financing of the deal. However, Thomas H. McKittrick, former president of the dry goods company, testifying Oct 11, assumed full responsibility for the deal and said that his action was approved by the board of directors and many stockholders of the company.

Other Witnesses Heard.

Among the witnesses heard yesterday were Isaac H. Orr, president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co.; Robert McKittrick Jones, former chairman of the Board of Directors of the dry goods company, and John D. Filley, former vice president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., who served as managers of the syndicate agreement under which the Railway Exchange Building was financed.

Edward S. Lewis, former secretary and director of the dry goods company and now a member of the Board of Election Commissioners, testified that although he owned $200,000 of the stock of the dry goods company at the time the Railway Ex- [illegible] being planned he was not consulted about the investment.

Referee in Bankruptcy Coles, who is hearing the petition of the intervening stockholders, continued the case to Nov. 9 to permit counsel for the petitioners to produce certified copies of the records in the Hargadine-McKittrick receivership case.

BILL FOR 4 NEW 'STOP' BOULEVARDS UP TODAY

Aldermanic Committee Report Lists Seventh Street and Shaw, Russell and Page Avenues.

Establishment of four new boulevards and extension of one now effective will be recommended to the Board of Aldermen this afternoon by the Legislative Committee, John H. Brode, committee chairman, said today. Vehicular traffic must stop before entering a boulevard from a side street. New boulevards to be recommended are:

Seventh street, from Chouteau avenue to the intersection of Seventh street and Broadway at Cherokee street.

Shaw avenue from Grand boulevard to King's highway.

Extension of Union boulevard from its present northern termination at King's highway northwest, formerly Bircher road, to West Florissant avenue, also is to be recommended.

The committee will recommend that Forest Park boulevard, between Grand boulevard and King's highway, be changed back to an avenue and the boulevard stop signs removed. A similar recommendation is to be made relative to that portion of Grand boulevard between Broadway and the river, which is unpaved and has little traffic.

Provisions of the general traffic bill, presented to the board before the summer adjournment last June, which empower the Director of Streets and Sewers to designate boulevards and spaces in which parking is prohibited without passage of an ordinance, are not favored by the committee, said Brode. The committee believes this would be placing too much power in the hands of the Director. Public hearings will be conducted before the committee makes recommendations concerning the traffic bill.

ITALY EVICTS GERMAN POET AND CONFISCATES HIS HOME

Ludwig Fulda Not Even Allowed to Remove His Personal Belongings From House.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—Ludwig Fulda, the German poet and dramatist, built himself a little chalet fifteen years ago in the Tyrolean Alps, at Carezza, near Bozen. When the Italian Government took over that part of Austria the assessors placed a valuation of 45,000 lira on Fulda's property and advised him that he would be allowed to retain the place and continue his literary work in peace.

But the poet was recently advised that the Italian state will expropriate his home as the Italian officials now say all of his furnishings and belongings, together with he house, are worh more han 50,000 lira, and that no German is allowed to retain property which exceeds that figure in value. Fulda was expelled from his home and not even permitted to remove his personal belongings.

While Fulda has written many plays and novels, he is known chiefly for his rendition of Shakspeare's sonnets into German with such skill that they became as popular with Germans as the Shakspearean plays are.

CONCRETE DEFENSE PLANNED AGAINST HOLIDAY SHOPLIFTERS

Store Detectives Hear Illustrated Lecture on Known Thieves, Given by Lieut. See.

Plans for concerted defense against shoplifters through the holiday rush were discussed last night at a meeting of the Stores' Protective Association at the American Annex Hotel.

The organization was formed 18 months ago, and a decrease since then in the losses of downtown stores through thefts was noted last night by W. H. Jenkins, its superintendent. Traveling thieves are expected to "make" St. Louis at the rush season. Arrangement has been made whereby "reserves" from other stores may reinforce the detectives of a store where shoplifters are found to be operating.

Lieut. John M. Shea, head of the Bertillon Bureau of Identification at Police Headquarters, gave an illustrated lecture on known shoplifters, explaining the methods and peculiarities of the various ones, so that they might be recognized before they had a chance to work their "trade." He said that the days of heavy wraps, with augmented opportunities for concealing stolen goods, are the open season for shoplifters, and that persons carrying umbrellas not tightly folded should be watched.

NO SON HAS SUCCEEDED TO BRITISH BARONY IN 126 YEARS

Ever Since Its Creation in 1797 Title Has Descended in the Direct Line.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The strange break in succession to a barony which, established in 1797, never has descended from father to son, was repeated at the death, which occurred recently of Baron Hotham at his Yorkshire seat, Dalton Hall, near Beverley.

Agen 60 and the sixth Baron, he married in 1902 Benita, daughter of the late Thomas Sanders of Charleville, County Cork. Their children are both daughters, the Hon. Jocelyne Hotham and the Hon. Sylvia Hotham, whose engagement was announced last month to Ralph Assheton of Downham Hall, near Clitheroe, Lancashire.

A second cousin, once removed, Lieut. Henry Frederick Hotham, Grenadier Guards, who is 24 and unmarried, succeeds to the title.

The title also carries a baronetcy, created in 1622, to which sons succeeded before the barony was created. In the case of the barony the five previous holders were succeeded by a brother, grandson, nephew, brother and cousin. Three were unmarried.

Election to Union Offices Urged.

A resolution just adopted by the Belleville subdistrict of the United Mine Workers urges that the policy of appointing certain officers of the union be abolished and that the offices be filled by election. The men involved are organizers, field workers, traveling auditors, legal department investigators and office men and assistants. Appointment gives the higher officers opportunity of building up a machine, the resolution says.

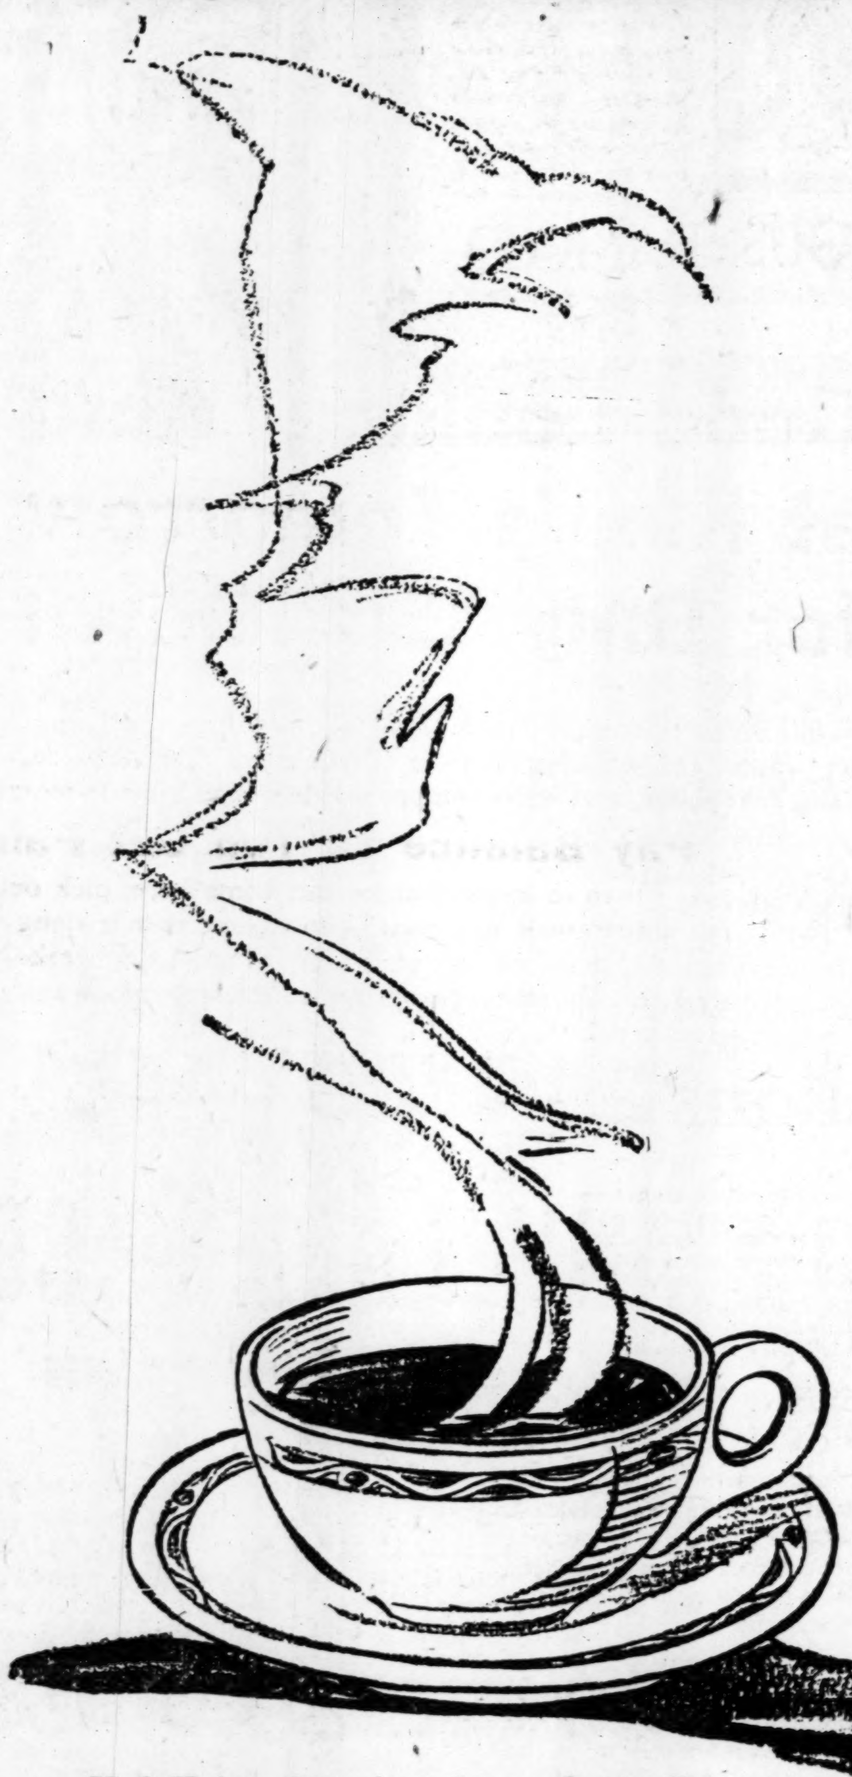
The Secret of Coffee Flavor



THAT delicious flavor you love so in coffee—and which is often so hard to get "just right"—comes from a delicate oil contained in the coffee bean. It is at its best only when the coffee is absolutely fresh.

As soon as air gets at coffee, it attacks the delicate oil. This causes the coffee to lose both flavor and aroma. The only way to protect coffee and make it stay fresh indefinitely is to keep it away from the air—pack it in a vacuum.

The so called "air-tight" or "sealed" can contains air, holds this stale air in and makes it damage the contents. But there is no air in a can of H. & K. Vacuum Packed Coffee. The freshly roasted coffee, still warm, is put in the can, and all the air is pumped out. Then the can is sealed tight, so that no air can get in. As a result, it is always fresh.

H. & K. Vacuum Packed Coffee, months later, is exactly the same as when it was roasted. The very finest coffee and kept absolutely fresh for you, it is

As Delicious as Coffee Can Be

You will appreciate the difference as soon as you use the can of H. & K. you get from your grocer today.

THE MARK OF SUPERIOR QUALITY H & K ST. LOUIS HANLEY & KINSELLA COFFEE & SPICE CO.

H. & K. has always been the very finest coffee since it was first made—in 1879. It comes in three forms—whole bean, steel cut and pulverized. When you get it from your grocer today, notice these three points:

1. There is absolutely no coffee odor to the outside of the can (all the flavor and aroma are completely imprisoned inside).
2. When you open the vacuum can, there is a delicious aroma utterly unlike ordinary coffee—stronger and sweeter.
3. When you serve it, you will find the perfect coffee flavor that comes only from absolutely fresh coffee of the finest grade.

BEAUTY, "FOUND" AFTER MARRIAGE, DIVORCED

Captain Gough of Welsh Guards Gets Decree From the "Lovely Sylvia."

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The story of lovely Sylvia has been told in a bleak London courtroom and with its telling one of Britain's most promising after-the-war romances dissolved.

Capt. Wilfred H. Julian Gough of the Welsh Guards, whose family is among the oldest in Wales, obtained his divorce from the Hon. Sylvia Phyllis Cawston Gough, proclaimed among England's most beautiful women.

The story told yesterday was that of the friendship of Bertrand Neidecker, a wealthy English sportsman, with the tall, dignified beauty. Detectives testified they shadowed the two along the pavements of Paris. Into the same hotel they went, arm in arm, while the detectives scrambled to a lookout place. There, against the brightly lighted windows, through curtains only partly drawn, the detectives saw the two locked in each other's arms, standing before a mirror as they watched themselves embrace each other.

Friends of the girl, herself a member of the well-known Cawston family of Cawston Manor, Norfolk, England, attribute the collapse of her marriage with Capt. Gough, which started so happily, to her lovely face. Until she was "discovered" by E. O. Hoppe the London photographer and Augustus John, the fashionable painter, as one of England's beauties, the wounded soldier and his bride were happy. Then started her ambition to go on the stage, which ended when she went to New York City to play in "The Right Girl." Her husband followed her to America and snatching her off the stage within two weeks of her debut, returned with her to England. But from that time, his friends say, the road she followed went downward.

When he began his action last March, Capt. Gough named as co-respondents Caswell Neidecker, Augustus John, and Baron de Rothschild, race track figure and member of the immensely wealthy Rothschild family. He later withdrew his action against John, who had painted Mrs. Gough six times and called her the most beautiful woman in England. The case naming Rothschild was withdrawn in court yesterday. Neidecker did not offer a defense, nor did Mrs. Gough.

Truck Crashes Into Window.

William Russell, 34 years old, proprietor of the "Dew Drop Inn," 1712 Market street, "dropped into" $400 worth of plate glass yesterday when he lost control of his truck and it crashed window of the Langan Bros. Furniture and Carpet Co., 1800 Washington avenue. Russell was found to be uninjured but the window was a wreck, and the truck was slightly damaged. The name of the restaurant "Dew Drop Inn," was painted on the truck.

"Safety first, Income next. Wherever the returns are highest on sound securities, there should the investment be made, irrespective of locality." From a Public Address by HALEY FISKE President Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

These 21 words govern the investing of millions

HERE, in a nutshell, is the whole doctrine of sound and profitable investing, which any investor can apply with his own funds. The great life insurance companies, with billions of dollars of policyholders' money in their keeping, have hit upon the method of getting the highest return that can safely be had. They invest according to locality.

"What the companies have done," President Fiske continues in the address quoted from above, "is to invest their funds throughout the country where funds were needed, as indicated in part by the rate of interest obtainable." Could there be a clearer statement of why interest rates are higher in some parts of the country than in others? When a section wants money, it bids for it by offering a higher rate.

The life insurance companies have invested more money in the South (the region stretching from Virginia to Texas, where we finance building construction) than in any other part of the United States. The reasons for this are clearly stated above—safety and the best obtainable yield. We have made a careful investigation of life insurance investments in the South, and have discovered these facts:

> Real estate mortgages held in the South by the insurance companies, totaling $280,679,757, pay an average of .27% more than the average mortgage return in the other groups of states.
> Life insurance investments in the South's railway securities (apportioned according to the mileage located in the Southern States) total $554,985,461, while $400,868,756 is invested in Southern State, county, and municipal bonds. In no other part of the country are these figures equalled.

The fact that the South pays a higher rate, with safety, than other sections is shown by life insurance investments in State and municipal bonds. According to our calculations, based on the latest report of the New York State Insurance Department, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York, one of the largest life insurance companies in the country, held $9,519,000 of Southern municipal bonds and $7,605,325 of such bonds issued elsewhere. These Southern tax-exempt bonds had an average yield of 5.06% and those issued in other sections, 4.89%.

7%—The Distinguishing Mark of Miller Bonds

Miller First Mortgage Bonds differ from other high-grade real estate bonds in the fact that they are Southern bonds. They offer the same advantages which the life insurance companies have discovered in Southern mortgages, Southern municipal bonds, Southern railway investments—namely, a more liberal return on sound security.

Our investors all over the country have learned to expect 7% from Miller First Mortgage Bonds, because that is the prevailing rate on that type of investment in the South. As for the security of their money, these investors rely upon the unbroken safety record of Miller Bonds and upon the fact that they are dealing with the oldest and largest house specializing in Southern securities of this kind. If this interest rate and this type of safety appeal to you, we will gladly furnish full information about Miller First Mortgage Bonds. To get in touch with us, mail the coupon for our informative folder, "Why the South Offers Investment Opportunities."

Mechanically able to keep pace with busy minds

Eversharp is a worker, a business pencil — America's favorite. It keeps going day after day with no other attention than an occasional loading. Many people carry two—one with black lead, one with the new colored lead.

Eversharp is comfortable to hold. It never tires the hand because it is perfectly balanced. The lead never wobbles—the exclusive rifled tip grips it like a vise. You know when to put in a new lead—the automatic index tells how much is left in the barrel. New leads are found under the cap. So is the handy eraser. Eversharp features can't be copied.

The all-metal Wahl Pen is a writing innovation, a fountain pen improvement that makes it a worthy companion for Eversharp. The barrel holds more ink. Wahl Pen cannot crack or split. It is beautiful. It is durable. Wahl Pen will last a lifetime.

Wahl Pen and Eversharp are matched in gold and silver. Buy both. Eversharp, $1 to $10; Wahl Pen, $4 to $10. Solid gold at higher prices. Look for the name on each. Wahl Pens in rubber are the finest rubber pens made. $2.50 up.

MEDICAL COLLEGE NAMED IN ALLEGED DIPLOMA FRAUD

Journal States St. Louis Institution Conferred Degree on Man Who Had Taken No Medical Studies.

$750 SAID TO HAVE BEEN THE PRICE

Same Man Also Received Chiropractic Diploma From Chicago School, Paying $250, Article Asserts.

This week's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, published in Chicago, contains an article stating that the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons issued a diploma to Edward J. Meelbusch of Chicago June 5 last, and stating further that Meelbusch had taken no medical studies up to last December.

"Meelbusch is reported to have said that he paid $750 for the degree in medicine, and that he paid $250 for an osteopathic diploma," the Journal says. It prints copies of the diploma from the St. Louis institution, with Meelbusch's name and the date as stated, and of a diploma from the American College, Department of Osteopathy, Chicago, the latter dated Feb. 24 last.

The Journal states that on Oct. 2 a letter was sent to Dr. Waldo Briggs, dean of the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons, stating that Meelbusch held a diploma from that institution, and asking when he had been in attendance. Up to the time of going to press last Tuesday, Oct. 23, no reply had been received from Dr. Briggs. The Journal further states that a list of the students enrolled in the senior class of the college during 1922-23 does not include the name of Meelbusch.

Applied for Training.

"Medical Diplomas While You Wait" is the heading of the Journal's article. It states that Meelbusch, a war veteran, applied to the Government last December for vocational training in medicine. His application was refused because he did not have the essential preliminary training. He then asked for a course a chiropractic, but was again refused, because he could not show evidence of having obtained even a high-school education. He then requested a course in physiotherapy, and this was granted. The course lasted four months, ending last April.

"Further investigation," the Journal says, "reveals that he became possessed shortly thereafter of three documents, a high-school certificate indicating that he had passed a State examination, supposedly the equivalent of a four-year high-school education; a degree in osteopathy from the American College, Chicago, and a diploma from the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons.

"Meelbusch stated, at that time, that he was going to take an examination for a license in Illinois under the 'other practitioners' act; that he had sent in an application and a photograph, but had not received a reply.

Alleged Fees Listed.

"He stated frankly that another person was to take the examination for him, for which he was to receive a fee of $150. Meelbusch is reported to have said also that he paid $750 for the degree in medicine and $250 for the osteopathic diploma.

"According to the results of an investigation into his occupational record, and the definite information that he had taken no medical training up to the end of December, 1922, it is apparent that Meelbusch spent neither the four years required to secure a degree from a reputable medical college, nor had he spent one—the senior—year in residence at the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons—the shortest time after which, under any circumstances, a degree could be granted him by any medical school."

The Journal says Meelbuhch went through the eighth grade in public school, and was in various employments before entering the navy in December, 1917. His occupational history is also accounted for since he left the navy in January, 1919.

The Journal gives a short history of the Chicago osteopathic institution, of which Denton B. Higbee is dean. It was chartered in 1916, and took its present name, the American College, in 1919.

History of St. Louis College.

The history of the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons, dating from 1869, is then given at more length. "In 1918," the Journal states, "official reports from the licensing boards of 38 states, including Missouri, indicated that recognition had been withdrawn from the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons. At present, its graduates are admitted to the examinations only of Connecticut, Massachusetts, Wyoming and the District of Columbia.

The Journal states that the college has always represented itself to be a "regular" medical institution, and that the licensing of its graduates in Connecticut, therefore, supposedly comes under the authority of that State's regular board of medical examiners.

"In 1920, 1921 and 1922, however," the Journal says, "44 graduates of this college have been licensed by the Connecticut Board of Eclectic Medical Examiners. During the same three years this board, according to official statistics, licensed 140 applicants, who were either graduates of class C medical colleges or of low-type irregular institutions, or those for whom the evidence fails to show that they ever studied in or graduated from any medical school.

"The diploma held by Meelbusch, therefore, is not the only one granted under peculiar circumstances."

Dean Briggs of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, after seeing the article as printed in the Journal, said that the diploma pictured looked like a genuine one, and that his signature looked to him as if it were genuine, but that he did not know Meelbusch, and could not say positively that he was ever a pupil at the college. He said the matter had been submitted to Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer, with the request that it be investigated.

"I might have signed that diploma when I signed others, and without looking carefully at the name," Dr. Briggs said. "However, Dr. J. P. Stein and Dr. G. C. Briggs, whose names also appear on the diploma, say their signatures are not genuine. There is evidently some irregularity about the matter, but I was not consciously a party to it."

Ed Molaski, 27, of 1927 Duncan street, who stole ice tickets and 10 cents in cash from a Polar Wave branch at 1426 Howard street, Dec. 14 last, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary today by Judge Falkenhainer, following his plea of guilty to second-degree burglary and larceny.

Falkenhainer also sentenced Will Irving, 45, a negro, of 2919 Papin street, to two years in the penitentiary, following his plea of guilty to the same charges. Irving admitted breaking into the W. A. COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

MAN MARRIED AS PROXY ASKS FOR ANNULMENT

Bride, Dressed to Wed Another, Hated to Be Disappointed, He Says She Told Him.

It wasn't that she had not meant to be married, Lee Duncan asserts his bride explained to him on the church steps after the ceremony on Sept. 19, last. She had fully intended to marry on that day. But she had not meant to marry Lee Duncan. Of course he understood how it was, didn't he?

Duncan expressed some uncertainty. So she smiled through her tears and told him she was dreadfully sorry this had happened. Her plans had miscarried and the man she had really meant to marry right up to the last moment hadn't appeared and so what was a poor girl to do?

Thus it happened that Duncan was not exactly left waiting at the church, but was left. It had been a nice wedding, he recalls Laura—her other name does not appear—told him as she prepared to return to her home at 3209 Winnebago street. He understood, didn't he? Understood how a girl likes to go through with things once she has dressed for an occasion? Of course, the mistake had been terrible.

After considering the matter some time, Duncan concluded it was terrible, and yesterday he filed suit for annulment. His wife had tricked him into marriage, he set forth, and had refused to live with him after the ceremony.

The petitioner described how his bride explained matters, and mentioned the man who spoiled her plans. He faithfully performed his part of the contract, Duncan recited, arriving at the church reasonably on time and suffering through the ceremony as nobly as any bridegroom. He did not atempt to describe the emotions of a bride who knows she is marrying the wrong man, nor did he essay to set down the feelings experienced by the wrong man upon discovering he is the wrong man. He merely asked for an annulment of marriage.

Mrs. Duncan entered her appearance, indicating she would not contest. He is 25 years old, a draughtsman, and resides at 4338 Juniata street.

BUDER FILES TEST SUIT IN CASE OF INCOME TAX EXPENSE CLAIM

Petition for Writ of Mandamus Put Before Supreme Court by St. Louis Assessor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 26.—A petition for a writ of mandamus was filed in Supreme Court today by Assessor William F. Buder of St. Louis, seeking to compel State Auditor Hackman to pay Buder's claim of $3,828.68 for extra expense incurred from May 1, 1922, to Dec. 31, 1922, in assessment of the State income tax.

Payment of such claims to the assessors of St. Louis and Kansas City has been in controversy, particularly the inclusion by the assessors of claims for extra clerk hire. The income tax law provides that the assessors shall be reimbursed for the "actual necessary expense" incurred.

A recent opinion by the Attorney General stated that clerk hire was not a proper charge as expense. It held that the State could refuse payment of excess claims pending, and could recover overpayments of such claims in the past. Hackmann's office has stated that excess claims since 1921 by the St. Louis and Kansas City assessors totals $35,032.30, of which $17,234.69 has been paid.

The test suit instituted by Buder involves only the extra expense items claimed for the latter part of 1922. Of this $3,828.68 claim, the auditor's office contests a total of $3,265.95. Buder has claims for 1923 work pending, totaling $29,497.19, of which $10,139.66 is in controversy. The total amount is being held up pending a decision in the test case.

ICE CREAM VENDER GIVEN $8000 VERDICT AGAINST FORMER MAYOR

A. W. Dudley Alleged Malicious Prosecution in Case of Arrests in Maplewood.

A. W. Dudley, a veteran ice cream vender of Maplewood, was awarded actual and punitive damages amounting to $8000 by a jury at Clayton yesterday in a suit against John D. Schuster, former Mayor of Maplewood, for alleged malicious prosecution.

Testimony was that Dudley had ben arrested twice in 1921 on a charge of selling ice cream from a wagon on a lot in Maplewood in violation of a zoning ordinance and without a license. Dudley alleged that on both occasions he was held in jail a short time in default of a $1000 bond, when the usual bond for ordinance violators is 0200. Records show Dudley was acquitted in police court on both charges on his presentation of a license and the testimony of the lot owner that Dudley had his permission to sell ice cream there.

The suit was filed in 1921 and asked for damages of $10,000. Dudley is said to be about 60 years old and to be a favorite with Maplewood children because of the large portions of ice cream he sells for a nickel.

Five Men Shot After Pool Room Row

By the Associated Press.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., Oct. 26.—Five men were wounded, two probably fatally, by an exchange of shots on the streets here last night. The trouble is reported to have started in a pool room after the proprietor, H. M. Pollock, ejected a patron because of alleged boisterousness.

ELECTRIC COMPANY HAS 97,950 CUSTOMERS IN 211 LOCALITIES

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 25.—Seventeen hundred miles of transmission line, serving about 14,000 square miles of territory in Illinois, is now included in the properties of the Central Illinois Public Service Co. as the result of the consolidation whereby the company has taken over eight concerns in Central and Southern Illinois. The consolidation according to officials of the Public Service Co., makes possible the generation and purchase for distribution to customers about 175,000,000 kwh in 1923, as compared with the 128,000,000 kwh generated during 1922.

Electric service, under the new merger, will be furnished directly to 97,950 customers in 211 communities. The total number of customers of all utilities in the State, including the electric, is 117,974. Electric service is also rendered to 107 coal mines in Central and Southern Illinois, making a total of 48,000 horse-power of coal mining "load," which, the officials said, amounts to 32 per cent of the total amount of business of this character adjacent to the company's transmission lines.

The new "C. I. P. S." company, as the result of the merger, now includes the following concerns: Middle West Power Co., Canton Gas and Electric Co., Lewistown Electric Co., Central Illinois Power Co., Mattoon Clear Water Co., Striffler Ice and Coal Co., and the Striffler Bros. Ice and Cold Storage Co.

REQUISITION FOR SICK VETERAN IN $80,000 FRAUD CONSIDERED

Counsel for Soldier at Jefferson Barracks Hospital to Fight Extradition to Iowa.

Requisition for Russell J. Cockburn, 28 years old, a patient at the United States Veterans' Hospital, Jefferson Barracks, who is wanted for trial at Des Moines, Ia., for alleged defalcation of $80,000 of the city's funds through padded payrolls was issued today by Acting Governor Hammill of Iowa.

Cockburn's lawyers presented a physician's certificate to the effect that he was ill of diabetes and could not be moved from the hospital. The Court, however, refused to accept it as an excuse for his failure to appear, and ordered a bond of $17,000 forfeited. Counsel for Cockburn are expected to carry their fight before Hammill in order to block extradition.

KILLED BROTHER SO HE COULD MARRY HIS WIFE

Georgia Man Says Woman He Made Widow Helped Him to Dig Grave.

By the Associated Press.

DOUGLAS, Ga., Oct. 26.—Picading for Divine help, John Alton Rogers, confessed slayer of his brother, related to Sheriff Tanner, according to that official, that he killed his brother, Love, as he slept because he was madly in love with Love's wife and the two had planned to elope. His brother's wife, he told the Sheriff, aided him in burying the body in a cotton field. With this new confession in hand, county authorities today were making plans to bring Rogers and Mrs. Love Rogers to trial immediately, it was said.

Rogers shortly after his arrest in Florida a fortnight ago said he killed his brother in order to protect Mrs. Love Rogers. Sheriff Tanner said his prisoner admitted this confession was false. After going into detail about a love pact between Mrs. Love Rogers and himself, John was quoted as saying he and the woman dug a grave and then went to his brother's house, where they found him asleep.

"I fired three shots into his body. We undressed him, wrapped the body in a quilt and took it to the crude grave and dropped it in," John's confession reads. "His wife helped me pile the dirt over him. Then we eloped and were married," it concluded.

$100,000,000 SUBSCRIBED FOR BRITISH NEWSPAPER MERGER

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—It is announced that subscriptions for the stock issue of £8,000,000 (nominally $40,000,000) for financing the amalgamation of the Northcliffe and Hulton newspapers reached a total of $100,000,000.

Whatever financial distress Great Britain is suffering, there appears to be plenty of money awaiting investment. A South African Government loan of £9,000,000 was put on the market Monday and subscribed by Tuesday. New securities absorbed in London this month total £30,000,000.

GOMPERS INVITED TO TOUR MEXICO AS WORKMEN'S GUEST

Visit Planned to Cement Friendship Between Laboring Men of the Two Republics.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 26.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today was invited to make a tour of Mexico as the guest of Mexican workmen to further cement the ties of friendship between the laboring men of the two republics.

A delegation of Mexican labor men, headed by Frank Haberman, American citizen, but resident of Mexico, visited Gompers and formally extended the invitation to visit the sister republic.

They made the visit to the border especially to see the American labor chieftain, who is the guest of El Paso for four days.

$5000 BANK HOLDUP AT EFFINGHAM, ILL.

Robbers Put Two Employes and Customer in Back Room and Get Away in Auto.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EFFINGHAM, Ill., Oct. 26—Three men held up the State Bank of Commerce here at 8:45 a. m. today and got away with between $5000 and $6000.

Charles Meislahn, the cashier, and David B. Crews, a director, were at work in the bank when an automobile stopped in front of the building, which is on Jefferson street, the principal business street of the town. One remained at the wheel, with the engine running, and the two others entered.

Meislahn and Crews and a customer were driven at the point of revolvers into a back room and the door was locked. The robbers then took the money from the unlocked safe and ran out and jumped into the machine, which was driven west over the National Trail. Information received later was that at a point west of Effingham, the machine turned south.

CANADA CROWDING U. S. WHEAT OFF EXPORT MARKET, HALL SAYS

Former President of Merchants' Exchange Tells of Price and Quality of Dominion Product.

Canadian wheat has definitely cut the American shipper out of the export market, for the time being at least, St. Louis grain and transportation men said today.

A principal factor in the advantage of our Northern neighbor, as Marshall Hall, former president of the Merchants' Exchange, pointed out, is the large proportion of new land in Canada, with a resulting quality worth at least 5 cents a bushel more than American wheat.

Gulf quotations are $1.16 a bushel, with ocean freight to be paid by the consignee. The price at Montreal is $1.13 a bushel, Canadian money. Counting the 2 per cent discount for Canadian coinage, and the minimum 5-cent advantage in quality, Canadian wheat is about 10 cents a bushel cheaper.

Grain crops in France and other European countries are larger this year than usual. Russia also is exporting. A bumper crop has been expected from the Argentine, although a rumor of frost there, at the critical stage of the crop, and of possible Government regulatory measures here, yesterday sent futures up somewhat on the Chicago market.

All of these things united give the American shipper stiff opposition. Grain shipping by the Government barge line, which is the barometer for this section, has been at ebb for a month, whereas this is usually the peak period.

MAN SAID TO ADMIT PASSING COUNTERFEIT PAY CHECKS

Merchants in Several Illinois Towns Victimized by Orders Drawn on Railroad.

Following identification by storekeepers of Alton and Springfield, Ill., Louis Starks, 20 years old, a farmhand of Moline, Ill., last night confessed, railroad detectives said, that he had passed many counterfeit pay checks, drawn on the Chicago & Alton Railroad, on merchants of Alton, Springfield, Bloomington, Peoria and Granite City, Ill. Starks was arrested yesterday by railroad detectives in the Chicago & Alton Railroad yards in Alton.

Starks was dressed in railroad work clothes. He said that it was his habit, after receiving the checks from another person, to visit a store, leave a bag there, after engaging the storekeeper in conversation, and then depart to "get paid." When he returned after a short time the storekeeper was more than willing to cash the check. Starks told detectives several men worked under a leader, who prepared the checks. Most of those recovered were made out for $36.30 and were identical with good Chicago & Alton checks, except that the genuine were printed on blue paper, while the fraudulent ones were on yellow paper.

Mandarin's First Official Act to Hold Inquest, Says Missionary.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Life is so cheap in some parts of China that it is a popular saying that the first official act of every mandarin is to hold an inquest, the Rev. Father George M. Stenz, Catholic educator and missionary, said today. He told of his several escapes from death and of torture.

"I could not estimate how often I have seen mobs charge one another with lances and sabers; how often whole towns have marched against one another; how many thousands have been beheaded or shot in Tsanfu," he said. A single mandarin could boast that within two years he had beheaded 5000 people. Whole towns have been burned. The Government has made regular campaigns into this territory to battle with the robbers, skinning alive those they captured."

An amusing vocal record by Billy Jones and Ernest Hare. Yes! It's an OKeh.

"SHOW GIRLS ALWAYS DIET," sings Billy. "That's a lot of bunk," says Ernest. So starts the chorus of this newest, funniest song. You will laugh at every line.

Here is another typical OKeh vocal record, remarkable for its clearness of tone and for its brilliancy of recording. OKeh record No. 4948, that's it.

Her aunt, Mrs. Catherine McDonald, 86, a widow, of the same address, who accompanied her, was also struck by the machine, suffering a fracture of the skull. Mrs. McDonald was knocked unconscious and is at city hospital, where today she had not regained consciousness.

The women, at 7:45 o'clock were crossing Lawton boulevard from the north to the south side, and Roessel, who lives at 820 Tuxedo boulevard, Webster Groves, was driving west. Two sons of Mrs. McDonald, Henry and Peter, lived with the women. At the hospital $78.49 was found on Mrs. McDonald's person.

7 YEARS FOR GROCERY HOLDUP

Frank Clark Found Guilty of Participating in Robbery.

Frank Clark, 21 years old, also known as Lonnie Tompah, yesterday was found guilty of participation in a Kroger grocery holdup and his punishment fixed at seven years in the penitentiary by a jury in Judge Falkenhainer's court. Clark was charged with having taken $46.25 from a Kroger store at Winnebago street and Arkansas avenue Jan. 4 last, after tying the manager, Anton Langeneckert, in the basement.

The jury disagreed at a former trial of Clark in July. A man indicted with him was acquitted. Two men now serving penitentiary sentences had confessed robbery of this particular store, but that fact was not permitted to get to the jury. Langeneckert said he was positive of his identification of Clark.

JAMES BROOKS JOHNSON PROPERTY INVENTORIED

Personalty Valued at $491,553 Listed, Together With Several Pieces of Realty Not Appraised.

An inventory of the estate of James Brooks Johnson, money lender and financial adventurer, who died Sep. 13 at his home, 5855 Cates avenue, at the age of 80 years, was filed today in the Probate Court. Personal property valued at $491,553.78 is listed, as is also several parcels of realty in St. Louis, St. Louis County and elsewhere in Missouri, the value of which is not appraised.

William F. Smith, attorney for the estate, said he could not estimate what the realty was worth. Johnson also had extensive real estate holdings in Illinois, Indiana and probably in Tennessee which does not appear in the inventory. Smith said that this property would be administered in the states where the land is located.

City realty listed is as follows: Southeast corner of Clark avenue and Sixteenth street, "improved with certain cheap old structures," which rents for $250 a month; Eighteenth and Adams street, nine lots on Pope avenue in city block 3465, and six lots on Carrie avenue in the same block; two lots in block 449 on Gratiot avenue, and two in block 219 on Fifteenth street. Johnson also had a one-half interest in realty at the southwest corner of Third and Elm streets and a one-fifth interest in a parcel of unimproved ground on Fifteenth street in block 218.

St. Louis County Lands.

The St. Louis County lands consist of 26 acres in the Normandy district and six lots in Tesla place, a subdivision. Mineral lands in St. Francois County and Madison County, Mo., also are shown.

Items in the personal estate are: Notes, $75,381; accounts, $205; stock in corporations, $371,768.75; bonds and coupons, $41,655; cash, $2537.03; chattels, $7. The chattels consist of a roller-top office desk, valued at $5, and two office chairs, $2.

Among Johnson's corporation holdings were 3388 shares of stock of the Consolidated Coal Co. of St. Louis, valued at $169,443.75; 308 shares of the National Bank of Commerce, par value $30,90; 9100 shares of the Granite-Bimetallic Consolidated Mining Co., appraised at $2275; 450 shares of Anchor Warehouse Co., $45,000; 84 shares of the United Park Realty Co., $35,700; 223 shares of the Northern Hotel Co. of Chicago, $22,300; 25 shares of St. Louis Union Trust Co., par value $2500; 100 shares of the St. Louis & Southwestern Railway Co., par value $100 a share, but the total actual value of which is listed at $6000; 410 shares of the Pullman Co., $41,000; 116 shares of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., $11,600, and one share of the Joseph Gerardi Hotel Co., listed at $50. A large number of stocks of "doubtful, indeterminable or no value," also are shown.

Notes Signed by Howard.

The inventory includes 14 notes totaling $56,000, signed by Clarence H. Howard, president of the Commonwealth Steel Co., on Oct. 14, 1922, payable from four to 15 years after date. Attorney Smith said that these notes were given by Howard in a deal in which he acquired from Johnson a tract of 60 acres in St Louis County as a new site for the Principia School, a Christian Science institution, now located at 5539 Page boulevard.

Johnson's wife died several years ago. He left his property to his four children. They are Herbert and Chester Johnson of New York and Miss Ellen Johnson and Mrs. Mildred Clarke of this city. Miss Ellen Johnson was appointed executrix.

AGAINST NEW CONSTITUTION

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 26.—Vigorous opposition to several provisions in the proposed new State Constitution was advocated by R. T. Wood of Springfield, president of the Missouri Federation of Labor, in an address before the Central Labor Council here last night.

Among the proposals attacked by Wood are those abolishing the primary system; creating a judicial council; changing the system of disbursing public school funds; relating to corporations; establishing a State school board; abolishing the initiative and referendum, and the section denying cities owning utilities the right to acquire utilities of a similar nature in incorporat urbs upon annexation.

MAY LOSE GAS SERVICE

y at Marshall Seeks to Discontinue Operation.

RSON CITY, Oct. 26.—The Marshall will be deprived ervice if the State Public Commission grants an ap- just filed by the Missouri Electric Service Co., which operates public utilities in several Missouri towns, for authority to discontinue operation of its gas plant and distribution system in Marshall. The company's Marshall franchise expired Sept. 1, and negotiations with the city for a new franchise have failed, it was stated. The company contends the service now is being operated at a loss.

CITY SOCIAL SERVICE WORKER AWARDED $451.80 PAY CLAIM

Jury Finds for Mrs. Blanche Folk Who Sued for $20 Month Allowance for Lodging.

A jury in Circuit Judge Mix's court today awarded to Mrs. Blanche Polk of 3416A Arsenal street $451.80 back pay from the city in what is regarded as a test case to determine whether the city is liable for a $20 a month board and lodging allowance provided for social service workers.

Mrs. Polk, employed as a social worker at the City Hospital from Dec. 2, 1919, to Aug. 15, 1922, at the regular salary of $80, elected to take the $20 additional allowance rather than to live at the hospital. She could not collect the allowance and filed suit. The city contended in the case that Mrs. Polk, in accepting her salary, admitted that she was receiving all money due her.

If the decision is sustained a number of other claims of like nature amounting to about $9000 will be pressed.

The trial developed several clashes between Assistant City Counselor Bartlett and Judge Mix. Bartlett quoted Comptroller Nolte, and the Judge tartly replied: "The opinion of the Comptroller has no legal standing in this court." Later, when Bartlett insisted on quoting a statute after the Judge had told him he was acquainted with its ruling, Mix said, "Sit down, Mr. Bartlett or I'll fine you for contempt of court.' Bartlett sat down.

MISGOVERNMENT IN BIG CITIES DISCUSSED

Research Director Cites Garbage Collection Here as Example of Cost of Inefficiency.

"Who pays the cost of inefficient city government?" was the subject of a lecture today by Dr. Jesse D. Burks, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, before a class in municipal government at Washington University. He said in part:

"After 15 years of daily and intimate contact with municipal government in several of the largest American cities, it is my deliberate and conservative judgment that the results of inefficiency, waste and incompetence in city management are incalculably serious and disastrous.

"In spite of the very notable advances of the past 20 years, misgovernment in our cities is causing more ignorance, sickness, vice, crime, poverty and human wretchedness than all of the churches, charities and social agencies combined can prevent or cure.

Some Expensive Luxuries.

"Tuberculosis is more costly than open-air schools and preventoriums; jails and penitentiaries are most expensive luxuries than vocational schools; infant mortality and childhood diseases cost more than clean streets, clean milk, and effective medical inspection; payroll robberies, holdups and swindling are a greater financial burden to the community than intelligent, constructive police service. And yet we continue, year after year, to spend public funds for pounds of attempted cures rather than for ounces of common-sense prevention.

"The greatest social agency in St. Louis is the city Government through which we expend annually $33,000,000 for public welfare purposes. The agencies associated in the community fund annually collect $1,000,000 in voluntary subscriptions used largely in combatting the consequences of ineffectiveness and waste on the part of the larger agency with its incomparably greater community fund.

"The 150 larger cities of America have a combined annual budget of $1,500,000,000. It is no exaggeration to say that $300,000,000 of this amount is just as truly wasted as if it were dumped into the Mississippi River—with even less possibility of recovering it. St. Louis, for example, expends $388,000 a year for garbage disposal. By antiquated methods of collection and hauling, and by failing to utilize the fuel value of 70,000 tons of garbage which might be made a source of net profit rather than a steady expense, the city incurs a needless annual loss of $200,000.

Waste as Sinful as to Steal.

"We have not reached the point where we realize generally that to waste $1000 of community tax funds is at least as sinful as to steal $1000. Yet, measured in terms of disastrous effects upon boys and girls, men and women, waste—graft is a far more hideous social crime than steal—graft. There is so much more of it.

"We commonly assume that the cost of inefficient and wasteful city government falls most heavily upon the taxpayers—especially the larger taxpayers. In a very real sense this is, of course, true; and taxpayers have an obligation as well as a right to get the facts as to where, and why, and to what extent the community tax fund is wastefully spent.

"In an even truer sense, however, the heavy cost of inefficient city government falls upon the less fortunate members of the community, who pay the price of preventable diseases, ignorance, unclean surroundings, and irreparable losses of self-respect and happiness.

"The citizenship of St. Louis in common with that of all the advancing communities of America, have heard the challenge to a larger and more positive acceptance of their obligations and their opportunities."

WORTHLESS BONDS OFFERED FOR SALE BY TELEPHONE

Issue by Old Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. Was Foreclosed.

The Better Business Bureau today issued a warning against a man who by telephone is soliciting orders for railroad bonds that are worthless.

Several customers of R. W. Adams, who operated as R. W. Adams & Co., stock brokers, in the Tower Building, 604 Olive street, until he disappeared following receivership proceedings in September, are among those who have been solicited.

The bond now offered for sale was withdrawn from the market several years ago. It was part of an issue of $73,000,000 of gold bonds of the old Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co., now the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. The issue was foreclosed and the old company reorganized.

The old bonds fell into the hands of speculators and for a time were offered for sale at low prices on the theory they might have a future market value. Later, swindlers obtained the bonds in large quantities and at different times offered them for sale, representing them to be worth only a little less than face value.

MAN FOUND IN RIVER IDENTIFIED AS CHEMICAL WORKS EMPLOYE

Autopsy Discloses That Death of John Routhous, 48, Was Caused by Ruptured Appendix.

Identification of a man, whose body was taken from the river at St. George street yesterday, as that of William Routhous, 48 years old, 1854 South Thirteenth street, an employe of the Monsanto Chemical Works, was made at the morgue today by his brother, John Routhous of St. Louis County.

The man had been ill for two years and had threatened to end his life. An autopsy disclosed death was caused by a ruptured appendix. There was no water in the lungs and no marks of violence on the body.

A theory that he may have gone to the river planning suicide and then died of natural causes, was advanced by police.

THE famous Wenatchee District sends you its finest apples. They are grown by specialists who grow no other crop.

No other section is so favored by the things which apples need. The days are warm and sunny, the nights are clear and cold. The soil is rich with minerals which the light rains never wash out.

And the water from the mountain brooks is fully controlled, so that each tree gets just the water it needs when it needs it.

To these natural advantages the growers add scientific fruit culture learned through twenty years' experience.

In midsummer they thin each tree of over half its crop so that the apples which are left may have the advantage of the tree's full vitality.

So Wenatchee Apples are better apples. They are beautifully colored, sound and firm and their crisp, white meat is a constant temptation.

Yet because Wenatchee growers concentrate on good apples, they sell all they grow. They have no waste. So the finest apples can be sold at a common cost.

Try Wenatchee Apples today. To enjoy their full flavor eat them when cool. Know how delicious they are. Keep them about for the family to munch for "An Apple a Day Keeps the Doctor Away."

EVIDENCE FOR ARRESTS FOUND IN 5 EAST ST. LOUIS DRY RAIDS

Injunctions Will Be Sought to Close Three of the Places as Nuisances.

East St. Louis prohibition enforcement agents last night raided five saloons and in each obtained evidence on which prosecutions will be based. Against three of the places injunctions will be sought to close them as nuisances.

Frank Butkus, of 523 St. Louis avenue, had loaded up in anticipation of a rushing business today when crowds gathered for a dedication ceremony in his neighborhood. The agents found 22 gallons of whisky and two gallons of wine. An injunction will be sought on the ground of a second offense.

When the agents entered the Blue Bird saloon and restaurant, 645 Collinsville avenue, Mrs. Mary Meloan, wife of Owen Meloan, the proprietor, grabbed a quart bottle of whisky and ran into the street with it. An agent caught her before she could destroy the evidence.

At the saloon of Walter Majchrowski, 1133 North Ninth street, two gallons of whisk ywere found under a step from the saloon to a bedroom. Majchrowski was locked up and his wife, Annie, was ordered to present herself today and give bond. An injunction will be sought against them as second offenders.

Charles Urwodas, 226 North Second street, dropped a pitcher containing a gallon of whisky into a rinsing basin. Some of it was salvaged. He was locked up.

At the saloon conducted by Eugene Dowling and John Nevill at 800 St. Louis avenue, three gallons of whisky were found. An injunction will be asked for on the ground of a third offense.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN GIVE $1800 TO BUILD CHURCH TOWER

Widows and Working Girls Contribute Small Change to Fund Being Raised.

Pennies from children and small change donated by widows and working girls who denied themselves small luxuries to make the offering, reaching a total of $1800, will be used to erect a tower at Grace-Holy Cross Episcopal Church, 2600 North Eleventh street, in one of the poorest sections of the city.

A new church to cost $50,000 is to be built with a legacy left by the late Mrs. Susan Mount of New York to Bishop Tuttle, and when it became known that a suitable tower would cost at least $1800, there was talk of altering the plans, because it was believed that the members of the congregation were too poor to stand the expense.

But the children came forward with their pennies, denying themselves lollypops; working girls set aside a few dimes here and there which they might have spent on "movies," and the widows even contributed small sums which they themselves needed badly, and so the fund reached the necessary $1800. The Rev. Carl Reed Taylor is rector.

FOOTBALL POPULAR IN SPAIN

Iowa U. Professor Says It Is Fast Replacing Bull Fighting.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 26.—Football is fast replacing bull fighting as the most popular sport of Spain, according to Antonio Horas, a native of Spain, and professor of Spanish at the University of Iowa here. The Spaniards prefer the British style of Rugby football, he declared.

The grip the gridiron game has taken upon Spain, he declares, is as great as that of baseball when the American game was introduced in Cuba several years ago.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

GARBAGE INCINERATOR CLOSED LAST 3 WEEKS

Ordered Shut by Director Fisk, Who Is on Vacation and Will Be Away Until Tuesday.

The $70,000 municipal garbage incinerating plant at the foot of Chouteau avenue has been closed for three weeks, it was learned today The reason could not be ascertained at the City Hall.

The plant was ordered closed by Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk before he departed on his vacation about three weeks ago and will not be opened before his return, scheduled for next Tuesday. That was the only information available.

Street Commissioner Slater, acting Director of Streets and Sewers in the absence of Director Fisk, said the incinerating plant was Fisk's particular problem and that no information could be had until Fisk gets back.

Differences between Director Fisk and the Bureau of Municipal Research as to the efficiency and economy of the plant were recalled today.

A statement issued by Director Fisk about six months ago said the plant would burn more than 100 tons of garbage a day, an excess of 20 tons over the 80 tons it was constructed to handle. Fisk's statement said the plant was so satisfactory that another should be built. He said it cost the city $1.75 a ton to dispose of garbage at the plant.

Jesse D. Burks, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, took issue with these statements when he appeared before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment a month ago. He said it was costing $4.87 a ton to dispose of garbage at the plant and that it handled only 57 tons a day. The city has a contract with private individuals to dispose of garbage at a cost of $2.10 a ton to the city.

Director Fisk was out of town when Burks made his claims. He returned the next day and said he would issue a detailed explanation, but departed on his vacation before this was done.

WOULD AMEND DEFENSE ACT

DENVER, Col., Oct. 26.—The National Guard Association, in session here, is redoubling its efforts to bring about amendment of the national defense act so that all officers of the guard will be given commissions in the regular army. It has adopted a resolution reiterating its action in two past conventions and requesting that Secretary of War Weeks call into active service four National Guard officers to study the proposal and prepare legislation for presentation to Congress.

The plan outlined in the resolution seeks official recognition for National Guard officers, both in peace and in war and in a uniform system of advancement. The convention closed last night.

WOMEN WOULD LIGHTEN TASKS OF THE PRESIDENT

Secretary of State Hughes has been requested, in a letter from the women Republican chairmen of the congressional districts of Missouri and Mrs. Lon O. Hocker, Republican National Committeewoman from this State, to ask the President's Cabinet to take action to relieve the President of a large burden of work.

It is urged that such a step would conserve the chief executive's energies for solution of great problems, by removing from his duties detail work that can be attended to by others. The letter declared that the President was laboring under an antiquated system.

MISSOURI-ILLINOIS RAILROAD SUED FOR $100,000 DAMAGES

Coal Mine Operator Alleges Company Has Obstructed Mining on Property Owned by Him for Five Years.

Suit for $100,000 damages against the Missouri-Illinois Railroad Co. was filed in Federal Court in East St. Louis yesterday by George A. Wilson, coal mine operator of Chester, who alleges that the railroad company has "illegally obstructed the mining of coal on property owned by him for the last five years."

Wilson's petition alleges that the Boyd Coal and Coke Co. purchased mines in Randolph County, Ill., near Chester, in 1900 and later sold 30 acres of the surface to the Illinois Southern Railway Co., reserving the right to mine underlying coal. The coal company, the petition states, sold the property to W. R. Borders, from whom Wilson alleges he purchased it.

The petition states that the defendant company purchased interests of the Illinois Southern Railway Co. and alleges that for the last five years it has prevented mining of coal on the property by construction and maintenance of a large dam, water covering more than 30 acres of the ground. The petition charges that Illinois authorities have restrained Wilson from mining coal on 250 acres of ground because of existence of the [illegible] which makes mining of coal in adjacent territory dangerous.

Separatist Chief at Grefeld Says He Has 4500 Adherents.

By the Associated Press.

CREFELD, Oct. 26.—The Separatist chiefs stationed in Crefeld apparently have the idea that the republican movement is sweeping through the Rhineland. They assert, however, that a number of the smaller and more troublesome centers in the northern area of the Rhineland must be brought into line.

Herr Muller, in charge here, says he has 4500 adherents who are eager to take the field whenever necessary. Neuss, where a large plant of the International Harvester Co. is located, will be given special attention.

Northern Tissue—fully in keeping with your spotless fixtures

Gleaming porcelain tile, lovely snow-white linen, immaculate tub and basin! There's only one paper worthy of such a bathroom —pure white Northern Tissue!

The selection of such an article may seem a trifling matter, but it is the attention to such details that marks the successful housekeeper and hostess—that explains why some women always seem to achieve the effect they want.

But it's not the finer sensibilities alone that suggest this pure white, superfine tissue. More important still is its hygienic purity. It is made under perfect sanitary conditions; it is soft, firm, highly absorptive, and is packed so as to reach you in its original state of purity.

Best of all, it costs no more than ordinary paper. Each package is the same generous size and contains a great deal more than is usually found in rolls that appear much larger.

Easy to get: just say "Northern Tissue" to your grocer or druggist.

REFUELED IN AIR TWICE IN FLIGHT OF 1280 MILES

Rockwell Field Aviators Complete Trip From Canada to Mexican Border in 12 Hours and 13 Minutes.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 26.—Capt. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. John P. Richter, army airmen, stationed at Rockwell Field, demonstrated yesterday the feasibility of refueling planes in midair on cross-country flights. They flew from the Canadian to the Mexican border, 1280 miles, in 12 hours and 13 minutes, refueling twice en route, and they are now planning a transcontinental nonstop refueling flight, to be attempted within the next few months.

While the flight broke no world records for speed or distance or duration, it was the first time in history of aviation that such a continuous cross-country trip was accomplished by taking on gasoline. Capt. Smith and Lieut. Richter were met by one refueling plane as they soared over Eugene, Ore., and 75 gallons of gasoline were transferred in two contacts within a few minutes. The fliers received 75 gallons more as they passed over Sacramento, Cal.

Thus replenished, their plane maintained easily its flight into Mexico and back to Rockwell Field, where they landed.

If Centre College Continues to Brag, We'll Have to Change Their Nickname to the "Braying Colonels"

"No Deal for Hornsby Proposed Or Contemplated; Price Would Be Prohibitive," Breadon Says

False Report of Deal With Cubs Brings Forth Reiteration for Former Stand by Cardinal President — Rickey Characterizes Rumored Trade With Chicago as "an Insult."

By J. Roy Stockton.

Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, today denied that there had been any change in the attitude of the club in regard to a possible trade involving Rogers Hornsby and reiterated previously-made statements that the leading batter of the National League was not for sale or trade.

"When the question of what we would do in the Hornsby case first arose," said Breadon, "I stated that he was not for sale or trade; that he would play for the Cardinals and Branch Rickey, or not at all. At that time I expressed one reservation, and that one reservation still stands.

"If some club offered us such an attractive trade that it would assure the Cardinals a pennant, I would trade Hornsby. But the value I place on Hornsby's services is so great and the return in players I would demand is so large that I consider my price for Hornsby prohibitive.

"Do not misunderstand me. I place no money value on him. Money cannot buy Hornsby, and therefore I do not figure his value in dollars, but I consider him so valuable that I am sure no deal could be arranged that I would consider.

No Deal Proposed.

"The Cardinal club has not broached any deal involving Hornsby and no such deal or trade ever will be proposed by us, because we want to keep Hornsby here. I also can say that no proposition involving Hornsby has been presented to me."

Branch Rickey, in commenting on the wild rumor that Hornsby was to be traded to Chicago for Pitcher Cheeves, Outfielder Hack Miller and Infielders Grantham and Hollocher, said that there was nothing in it; that it was a "grand insult."

Rickey recently told of an offer from Bill Killefer, manager of the Cubs. Killifer asked Rickey to trade Hornsby to Chicago.

"Bill, is that your best infield out there now?" Rickey asked.

"Yes, Branch, that is our best infield."

"And are all your good outfielders on the field?"

"Yes."

"And all your pitching staff, is it here?"

"Yes, Branch."

"Well, Bill, I would not give you Hornsby for every Chicago player in uniform in the park today."

How Did the Rumor Start?

The rumor yesterday first saw the light in a dispatch sent out all over the United States by a news service, under a St. Louis date line. The dispatch stated that the deal was to be announced today and even after quoting Rickey in a denial of the report, the dispatch said that an announcement of the deal's consummation would be made today by Cardinal officials.

Breadon was asked if he would trade Hornsby to the Giants for Frankie Frisch.

"I don't know what I'd do if such an improbable proposition had to be considered," he replied. "McGraw probably values Frisch as highly as I value Hornsby and would be as unwilling to relinquish his services as I would be to give up Hornsby. McGraw would not trade Frisch unless the deal would guarantee several pennants for his team and I would not trade Hornsby unless it meant a sure pennant for the Cardinals. A trade for Hornsby that I would consider is so improbable that I virtually do not have to qualify my statement that Rogers Hornsby is not for sale or trade."

BIG TEN CAMPS SEND OUT GLOOMY REPORTS AS TO TOMORROW'S PROSPECTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—An untimely end to the season's football aspirations would not bring surprise to any of the Big Ten contestants, judging from today's report from their training camps as the heavy practice for the week ended. Chances of surviving tomorrow's struggles on five gridirons are being painted in dark, uncertain colors.

Wisconsin, with a homecoming crowd of 36,000 on the sidelines demanding victory in the feature contest of the day will meet its traditional foe, Minnesota.

Illinois, doped as a principal contender for the Big Ten championship is telling of its weakness as it prepares to meet Northwestern here tomorrow. Both regular tackles, Brown and Hall, are reported out of the game, with the line strength uncertain.

Chicago, after its victory over Northwestern, does not expect trouble in downing Purdue. Chicago's slate is clean so far and it hopes to advance in standing for conference honors.

Iowa and Ohio, both defeated, will have a consolation contest of their own at Columbus, both teams having finished a week of strenuous practice.

Coach Yost contemplates sending his second-string eleven against the Michigan Aggies in a practice game that is not expected to be a test of the Michigan strength.

Mrs. Mallory, 7 Times Net Champion, May be Barred From Olympics

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.

MRS. MOLLA BJURSTEDT MALLORY, seven times winner of the national woman's lawn tennis championship, may not be eligible to represent this country at the Olympic games next year.

This question was raised at a meeting of the American Olympic Committee at the Hotel Astor, yesterday. It appears that Mrs. Mallory represented Norway at the Olympic games of 1912 and under a rule of the International Olympic Committee no athlete who has competed as a representative of one nation can be a member of a team of another nation at any subsequent date.

No action was taken, but the United States Lawn Tennis Association will be advised of the rule.

It was previously announced that a woman's team would be sent abroad next year to play in England for the Whitman cup and then to France for the Olympic games.

Billiken Eleven Will Be Shifted For Mississippi

Relief Players Will Start Game to Give Several Battered Regulars a Rest

The St. Louis University football team, which will oppose the University of Mississippi eleven tomorrow at Sportsman's Park, will be constructed in a different manner than that which opposed the Missouri University men last week. The front wall of the Billikens will exhibit several new faces in order that the players who received some hard knocks in last Saturday's competition may be rested for the hard battle which is on the Billiken card when they journey to Cincinnati, next week, to meet the strong St. Xavier team.

Joe Higi and Ed Amaral, the pair of flashy wingmen of the Blue and White machine, will watch the game from the sidelines unless the eleven from the South discloses unexpected strength. Luepke and O'Toole will probably replace the pair and Halloran will act as reserve material for these two.

"Bud" Westhus, who distinguished himself in his first major game, has been ill and has missed several practices. He will be likely to start the game, but Coach Charley Rademacher plans to insert Clarke after the opening half.

Grennan Now a Regular.

Slevin Geraghty, the aggressive center rush, will alternate with John Betz at the pivot job, and there is a likelihood that Capt. Quirk will be supplanted by Krug, after a period or two of the game has been played. Schwartz came out of the Missouri fray in his usual good condition and is scheduled to play the entire game against Mississippi. Grennan, another man who jumped from the scrubs to the regulars last week, will again perform at the guard berth where he shone against the Tiger.

The backfield is still a matter of conjecture. Eggler is a sure starter at quarterback and Head Coach Dan Savage is planning to use Frank O'Leary at one of the three other backfield berths. The remaining two positions have not been definitely filled and indications point to a system of alternating which will bring McConachie, McKenzie, McCarty, O'Reilly and Poos into the game.

Mississippi Team Here.

The Mississippi eleven which arrived in St. Louis this morning is composed of 24 players. The Southerners possess a rather light team and the forward wall will be greatly overshadowed by the Billiken line in weight.

The coach plans to outspeed the St. Louisans and will probably resort to a forward passing game to confuse the Billikens. Capt. Montgomery, quarterback of the visitors is the individual star and has been handling the majority of the Mississippi attack.

Hoff, right halfback of the visiting team is a former Oak Park, Chicago, High School star and has played flashy football in the early games of the season. The visitors have defeated Bethel 28 to 6 and the Southwestern Presbyterian College 32 to 0 and have lost a close game to the strong Mississippi A. & M. by a 13—6 score. Coach Cowell who is leading the team is an Illinois University (1915) player.

Davis, the star tackle of the Southerners, was unable to accompany the team on the trip and he will be replaced by Salloum.

A tentative lineup is as follows:

St. Louis.	Position.	Mississippi.
Luepke	L. E.	[illegible]
Schwartz	L. T.	[illegible]

Kansas City C. of C. Starts Campaign to Revive Horse Racing

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 26.—Horse racing in Missouri will be revived if the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce is successful in a campaign launched Monday night by F. J. Bannister, newly installed president, when he spoke in favor of racing.

The new board of directors of the Chamber has approved the revival of racing, Bannister said yesterday, and will direct the legislative committee to prepare bills to be presented at the next session of the Missouri Legislature.

The amazing interest of the general public in the outcome of the contest between Zev and Papyrus, the English derby winner, prompted Bannister to make his suggestion, he said.

"Would it be your plan to have the races conducted without gambling or the use of Pari-Mutuel betting machines?" Bannister was asked.

"I don't believe races would be a success unless betting were allowed," Bannister answered.

The recent in- y to the star back's nose has al- t healed. Hewey who suffered hip ry will take part in part of the test but he may not be used in starting personnel.

The Crimson backfield will be out- ghed by their opponents. Hol- n and Decker are light men and ards and Schultz are but fairly y. The line, especially between will be evenly proportioned the Yeatman players. Coach Carlson possesses two strong tackles in Capt. Thomas and Whalen, a new comer. Burns and Varney at the guards are big men and have fighting spirit. Richenberg, the center, is short but stocky and will give his enemies a strong fight. He is also the place kicker of the Crimson machine. On the ends, Carlson will use Elias and either Hewey or Duchek. This trio, despite their lack of weight, are good wingmen and are strong tacklers.

Coach Bert Fenenga of Cleveland will probably experiment with both his backfield and line in the game against Western Military Academy, which is scheduled for 10 o'clock at the High School Field. The coach is far from satisfied with the forwards and is not elated with the play of his backfield. The Cleveland lineup will very likely be subjected to many changes during the course of the game.

BALL PLAYER MISSING; PLANNED DESERT TRIP

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Oct. 26.—J [illegible] outfielder of the Salt Lake Pacific Coast League baseball team, is missing and his wife has called for aid in the search for him. Wilhoit, according to his wife, left Salt Lake City alone in an automobile Tuesday of last week, intending to drive to his home here. He informed his wife that he would take the Old Apache Trail across the desert and would telephone her from the various towns enroute. He was due here on the fourth day after his departure. She has not heard from him and he has not been reported anywhere along the line. Mrs. Wilhoit said she feared he might have met with some mishap or lost his way. The police and the automobile club are sending telegrams to points on the route he is supposed to have taken.

BEAGLE CLUB TO HOLD FIELD TRIALS NOV. 5

The second annual field trials of the St. Louis Beagle Club will be held at Wentzville, Mo., Nov. 5 to 10. Dr. A. J. Padberg of 3900 Easton avenue, is accepting entries, the trials being open to all Beagles 15 inches and under in height. Wentzville is in St. Charles County, 40 miles west of St. Louis.

WRAY'S COLUMN

About Rogers Hornsby.

TRADING or selling Rogers Hornsby is much easier to talk about than to accomplish. Suppose the well-nigh impossible, that the club had made up its mind to get rid of such an asset; the club's efforts would be shackled by conditions.

The equivalent of $250,000 would have to be surrendered in players, NOT in cash. In the National League there are only a few players who would interest the Cardinals in a deal for Hornsby—Frank Frisch, and perhaps a few really outstanding pitchers, about make the total. All such players are anchored to the soil—their managers dare not let them go, even if they would.

His owners could not let Hornsby go for cash, for fear of losing the confidence of the public. With money barred on one hand and players of equivalent value utterly out of the question, it appears that any deal for Hornsby that is talked about can only be of the pipe-dream variety.

Hornsby's troubles with the club will be ironed out and he will play his prettiest for the team next year—unless Rogers is completely off his trolley.

Yes, We Have No Democrats.

THE appointment of Alderman August Niederluecke to fill the vacancy on the City Boxing Commission, vacated by the resignation of Secretary Robert Newman, completes the Republican knights of the round table in charge of the boxing game.

With five of the appointees strictly Republican party workers of the intensive kind, Maj. Horace Rumsey must feel like a mysterious stranger or "when a feller needs a friend."

However, because the All-Republican commission is in the saddle it is not necessary to presume that inefficiency will result. If the body will function in the interest of boxing its political complexion can be forgotten.

The police board boxing commission, without an authorization by law, did much for the game here and certainly lifted it to a higher plane during its administration. It is now up to the political commission to carry on and pull "a Missouri"—that is, show us!

In Front Again.

AS usual, it was the American League that started something new. This came yesterday with the announcement that the American League had started a fund with a $50,000 nest egg for the relief of veteran baseball players in need of asistance. Lou Criger, the former St. Louis catcher, is the first to receive aid. Illness brought Criger low.

Another way in which the ball player might be protected against accident or his own weaknesses and improvidence, would be for the clubs, as part of their contracts, to take out endowment insurance for him, payable on his retirement from the game.

In Germany there prevailed a compulsory old age insurance plan, made possible by the cooperation of employers.

It might be made to apply, with modifications, to baseball and to other sports and businesses as well.

The Comeback.

CONSPICUOUS in the playing of the recent Baltimore-Kansas City "little world's series" was the pitching of Ferdie Schupp, former Giant and Cardinal, whose three victories over Baltimore gave the championship to the minor leagues to the American Association.

The fact that Schupp, a positive failure in the majors, could be so supremely effective in the highest of all minor leagues, sufficiently emphasizes the minors' disparity in strength as compared with the weakest major league clubs.

One of the surprising features of the series was the scant interest displayed in Baltimore, where on one occasion fewer than 350 fans attended, while on the final day, with each team owning four victories and the contest therefore the deciding one of the series, the attendance was only a few over 3000.

And only a few years ago Baltimore sought to become a major league city!

Too Good.

THE St. Louis professional football team known as the "All-Stars," has played three games this year. In three hours of play it has been scored on just once, by a run following a forward pass. In the three hours the St. Louis team performed it failed to score a point.

And yet it was probably a stronger team than any of its opponents.

Other professional football scores this year have shown an astonishing list of ciphers, instead of points.

The answer is that there is such a thing as being too good. These professional teams, made up of the greatest college stars the country turns out, are so evenly strong that it is another case of the irresistible force opposing the impenetrable mass. There is no headway made.

All of which makes for an uninteresting game and produces yawns by the public

"Big Three" Face Strong Foes; Notre Dame Should Win Again

Period of Shaping Up Is About Ended and Coaches of Major Elevens Should Begin to Reveal Their Real Hands in Contests Tomorrow—Wisconsin Should Defeat Gophers.

By Lawrence Perry.

(Copyright, 1923.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Saturday's gridiron events include many interesting contests among natural rivals and some intersectional tussels that are thrilling in prospect at least. Days have now come when coaches of elevens that were not permitted to begin practice until two weeks or 10 days before the opening of college are beginning to get positive results.

An example of the sort will be found in Cornell's sudden flight against Colgate, last Saturday, after weeks of adjustment and readjustment of parts of the machine and unceasing tactical revisions.

Cornell is building, however, for late November and will not attain all her possibilities until then. So with Princeton, Yale and Harvard and other elevens that do not begin practice in summer and meet all important natural rivals in late November. In this connection it might be said that an October team of the "big three" bears about as much comparison to these same teams in mid-November as Princeton compared to Notre Dame last Saturday.

Tigers Leave Home Campus.

Princeton, by the way, plays an important game against the Navy at Baltimore, Saturday. The Tigers are still in a formative state, while the Navy, although beaten by Penn State, really outplayed Bezdek's men in all departments of straight offense. Thus whether or not Princeton can stand the Middies at bay will depend upon how far the Tigers have been brought along since last Saturday. Since the Navy seems to slack in the open and prone to suffer from breaks—wherein the Tigers are always formidable—it looks as though Princeton might take this game by a narrow margin. Following is a line on tomorrow's big games:

Wisconsin vs. Minnesota: Here is perhaps the most important game of the week-end. The Badgers after a deliberate start suddenly took fire against Indiana last week and smothered the Hoosiers.

Minnesota lacks so versatile a backfield performer as Taft of Wisconsin, and injuries have retarded the progress of an outfit potentially very strong. Wisconsin, therefore, should win this game. But it will likely prove to be a tough contest.

Georgia Tech vs. Notre Dame: Unless the South Benders have played themselves out in two hard Eastern contests they should defeat the Southerners, who, however, have been improving steadily since the season opened.

Yale vs. Brown: The Elis have been buzzing through the season on all sixes and are due some day for a fine bump. Brown is likely to slow up the Elis to some extent, but seems hardly qualified to win this game.

Hartford vs. Dartmouth: The Crimson has been stumbling along slowly thus far, but must have come along fast in the past week. Dartmouth has shown steady improvement, too, but Harvard traditionally has a winning edge over the Green and with a more adequate coaching system should win.

West Virginia vs. Penn State: Unlike most critics the writer is picking the mountaineers to win this game. They are a formidable crowd and Coach Bob Spears has taught them a lot of football.

Purdue vs. Chicago: The "Staggs fear Purdue" classic is again heard, but the Maroons should have little trouble in beating the Boilermakers.

Ohio State vs. Iowa: Looks as though the Hawks should take the Buckeyes into camp. The Iowans played a mighty strong game against Illinois last week and seem better geared for a winning game than Dr. Wilce's men.

Columbia vs. Williams: Williams is likely to take Haughton's men into camp.

California vs. Washington State: This is as important game and unless all preliminary dope fails the Bears should take the honors.

Penn vs. Centre: If the Kentuckians defeat the Quakers, it will surprise no one conversant with the way affairs have been developing down in Danville. Penn's new coaching system has not yet got to working with consistent results.

Nebraska vs. Missouri: After that Kansas surprise Nebraskans will not feel safe about Missouri until the game is won—if it is won.

The call that the Washington coaches made following the Oklahoma disaster for more football material was answered yesterday by eight men, five of them students in the Medical School.

At the Medical School yesterday there was a voluntary meeting of the 16 students there who are eligible to play football. They agreed to do their best to make arrangements to try out for the team and at the same time decided to interest other Medics who might make good players. Twelve of these 16 atheletes have definitely said they will report for action within the next few days. All these men have had high school or college experience.

The new candidates are: C. N. Neupert, 180 pounds, a lineman; T. F. Turner, 200 pounds, a guard; W. E. Hart, 160 pounds halfback; Hallauer 175 pounds tackle; Robbins 175 pounds, guard and tackle; Loupardes, 173 pounds, tackle; Steiner, 200 pounds, guard; Pachman 165 pounds halfback.

Peterson, an all-state star from the University of Washington, a good fullback; "Birdie" Robbins, a former Yeatmen high school line star; French, a line player of experience, and Chandler, a god lineman, are expected to report in a day or two.

None of these men is in shape to be used against Ames tomorrow, but they will very likely be given a chance to show their stuff against the Drury team here next week.

Ames Team Arrives.

The Ames squad arrived from Iowa this morning and will go through a shoht workout here this afternoon. Tomorrow's game will be played at Francis Field and starts at 3 o'clock.

SPEAKER DISPLAYS HIS SKILL AS A COWBOY

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 26.—Tris Speaker manager of the Cleveland Americans, demonstrated that he could be a cowboy as well as an "Indian" when he visited the Texas State Fair here. Strolling into the arena at the Rodero, after "Fog Horn" Clancy, the announcer, had told the crowd that he was visiting the exhibition, the Indians' manager announced his intention of "taking a ride."

One of the wildest horses in the corral was brought out for him. Undaunted, Speaker rode the "Bucking Brancho" while the spectators and cowboys cheered.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review says:

"The more hopeful aspect of European affairs provided little help for the stock market today although it had a decidedly stimulating effect on the exchanges. Save for sensational declines in one or two issues, trading on the Stock Exchange differed little in character from that of other recent sessions. The rank and file of stocks, both rails and industrials, were dull and little changed in price, although declines outnumbered advances. Bonds were firm with some slight improvement noticeable in the French Government issues. The declining tendency which has been so noticeable in many of the speculative varieties appeared to have been checked. Call money which opened at 4½ per cent was advanced to 5 per cent during the final hour.

Exchange Rates Stronger.

"The exchanges were stronger on reports that France, Belgium and Italy had accepted the invitation to a conference of reparations. Even before this announcement had been made there was a strong buying movement which appeared to have been promoted by the publication of the Hughes-Curzon correspondence. Sterling at $4.50 was up ⅞ of a cent. French francs at 5.93 cents were up 10 points, and Belgian francs registered the same gain when they touched 5.12 cents. Dutch and Scandinavian exchanges, with the exception of the Danish, were likewise stronger, showing gains of from 5 to 13 points. Rupees continued to improve, advancing 15 points to 31.50 cents.

Federal Reserve System.

"Indications of easier money conditions appear in the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve banks. Total reserves showed a gain of $11,100,000, while there was a decline of $18,300,000 in holdings of discounted bills and of $10,800,000 in holdings of bills bought in the open market. Federal Reserve note circulation was also less by $17,000,000. All the banks reported a decline in note circulation, but the decrease in rediscounts was pronounced only in the case of the banks of Boston, New York and Chicago, and the banks of Kansas City and St. Louis showed gains in this item. Deposits meanwhile fell off $51,800,000 and it was chiefly because of this change that the reserve ratio advanced from 75.3 to 76.8 per cent.

WEATHER BULLISH FACTOR IN COTTON AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The cotton market showed renewed activity and strength early today owing to continued bad weather reports from the south, relatively firm Liverpool cables and a further broadening of commission house demand. The opening was steady at an advance of 8 to 24 points and the active positions soon showed net gains of 29 to 37 points making new high records for the season. December contracts sold at 30.95c and March to 30.36c. Liverpool cables reported an improvement in trade with spinners buying freely, but the market here seemed to be chiefly influenced by bullish southwestern weather conditions and the tendency to scale down crop estimates. A private report issued today estimated the crop at 10,300,000 bales.

There were reactions of 10 to 12 points but offerings seemed comparatively light and prices firmed up again late in the forenoon. The western belt forecast for continued rains seemed to check the selling, and the market made new high ground for the season around midday on renewed commission house buying and trade buying to fix prices for spinners. December sold up to 31.05c and March to 30.47c, making net advances of about 40 to 46 points.

There was more reactionary sentiment during the early afternoon with prices easing off to 30.73c for December and 30.17c for March or about 30 points from the best under realizing. Prices were within four or five points of these figures around 2 o'clock with the market rather nervous and unsettled.

Mills of the world took this week 356,000 bales of American cotton against 000 this week last year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Spot steady; middling 31.75c.

New Orleans Spot.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—Spot steady; 25 points higher; sales on the spot 335 bales; to arrive 700. Low 28.00c; middling 30.50c; good 31.62c. Receipts 7797. Stock

WHEAT TREND IS IRREGULAR ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. — Wheat bulged sharply at the start today and then reacted. There was good buying for Eastern account and also some further covering by shorts. Commission houses sold on the bulges and later there was spreading between Chicago and the Northwest, sales being made here against purchases in the spring wheat markets. Foreign news was much more favorable to the bull side. There were sales of 250,000 bushels of wheat for export over night. Vessel owners of the United States and the Canadian Government officials were said to have reached an agreement in regard to moving grain from the Canadian head of the lakes to the seaboard. Milling demand for wheat was fair. Wheat had some recovery toward the last on covering by pit shorts. Last prices were ⅛@⅝c lower. Local cash sales were one car of wheat; 11,000 bushels of corn; 176,000 oats and 50,000 barley.

Wheat closed ¼ to ⅝ lower. December $1.06¼@1.06⅜; Mayy 111⅛@1.11⅜; July $1.07⅛@1.07⅝.

Corn scored a good rally at the opening on buying by active local traders because of the strength in wheat and the unsettled weather over parts of the corn belt. Prices reacted later but support was good around the previous closing level. Country offerings to arrive were at prices above the market but buyers were reluctant to take hold. Shipping demand was light. Cash corn was unchanged to ½c up for old and 1@4c lower on the new.

Corn closed ¼ to ½ higher; December 74¼@¼; May 71⅜; July 72¼@¼.

Oats were higher early and then reacted with other grains. Cereal interests were the best buyers.

Oats closed ⅛ to ¼ higher; December 41⅜@¼; May 44¼.

There was good commission house buying of provisions and this resulted in higher values.

Lard closed 5 to 15c higher and ribs 5 to 7½c higher.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

DIFFICULTIES OF SMITH FAMILY ARE TAKEN INTO POLICE COURT

John, His Wife, Stepmother and Brother Give Their Versions of Trouble.

The Smiths, up on Prather avenue, had a difference of opinion, and yesterday when the smoke of conflict had cleared away from that ancient battle ground of family difficulties, the Police Court, a casualty of $10 to the coffer of John P. Smith, 1441 Prather, was reported.

On Oct. 9 August Verdot was hired to do some carpenter work on the home of Christopher Smith, the father of the family, who lives next door to John. He was quietly pursuing his trade, he testified, when John looked through the picket fence, which divides the paternal home from his own, and cast aspersions at him.

These verbal indictments became so threatening, the carpenter continued, he was forced to go in search of a patrolman and have John arrested. He thought John had been drinking a little, he said. So did the patrolman who had made the arrest. John's stepmother, Mrs. Christopher Smith, then contributed her bit to the offensive, and said some things which weren't complimentary to John. Mrs. Smith, more than 70, told the court her husband would have been there, but he wasn't able. And then Michael J. Smith, another brother, told what he knew of the affair, and though John's wife got on the stand, her testimony was evidently outweighed by the others.

According to John, all the other Smiths were wrong. He summed up what he considered the cause of this particular difficulty, and all previous ones, in one sentence. "That big stiff," said John—it is believed he was referring to Michael—"has been after me ever since we had the argument about that ground for the water line."

En-ar-co Motor Oil Is Real Lubrication

Here's Why—All refiners make lubricants just as all cooks make biscuits, yet there is as much difference in oils as there is between the delicious light, flaky biscuits mother makes and heavy, soggy apologies for biscuits some restaurants serve. In each case the raw materials are practically the same, but the "making" is different.

In making En-ar-co Oils we average over a million tests a year. It is only by this multiplying of tests that perfect products can be made. This thoroughness in our Scientific Refining process is the protection offered to users of our products.

Your motor will run better and last longer if the Lubricating Oil is taken out every 500 miles and fresh oil put in. We do it for you with Asta of the Pirate Heart!

AT HEART ASTA MORGAN was a pirate. And she came by it honestly. In her veins ran the fierce and fiery blood of Morgan, the buccaneer of former days, who sailed the Spanish main and took by force the things that pleased his fancy—gold and jewels, silks and spice and rum—and the young Spanish noblewoman whose wondrous beauty descended straight to Asta.

But gone were the days of glory. Asta, whose ancestor had ruled the Indies with a bloody, iron hand, lived with her drunken father in a squalid grass-thatched hut upon a squalid jungle-covered West Indian island, far removed from all the finer things of life that she felt should be hers by right.

Within her burned a fierce resentment at her surroundings and a boundless contempt for the loutish men and slatternly women who made up her world! But the dregs of ignominy were not reached until her father told her that he had traded her in marriage to the man whom she hated most of all the men she knew.

Is it any wonder, then, that when the great white yacht dropped anchor in the little harbor and Bob Wade came ashore, the soul of Asta Morgan burst into flame, and she determined to possess these things by right of conquest?

These are the opening incidents of one of the mightiest novels of modern times—"The Girl Who Came Out of the Night," by Rida Johnson Young, author of "Little Old New York," immortalized on the screen by Marion Davies. Everybody in the English speaking world will be reading this serial soon and discussing it.

Never in all your association with men and women nor in books have you come across a girl like Asta Morgan, nor have you heard or read a story such as hers. It begins in Metropolitan for November.

The powerful and beautiful work that was begun as an appreciation of the living ends as a tremendous tribute to the dead. Over night, Joe Mitchell Chapple's biography of President Harding became a great historical document of priceless value, to you, your children and your children's children. Written exactly as Mr. Harding would have it, were he still among us—it is the story of a great American with the heart of a child who, as he said himself, "was just plain folks." President Harding personally selected Joe Mitchell Chapple as his biographer, and Metropolitan as the magazine best fitted to tell the story of his life and work to the people he loved so well.

Stories Such as These Make Metropolitan the World's Greatest Story Magazine

"What Every Woman Must Learn." The way in which Roger Chandlee lost the love of the wife whom he adored is a tale unique among all the tales you have ever read, and the way in which her love returned in all its radiant glory is as a beautiful dream come true.

Many may doubt that a woman's love could be lost and found again in such a way, but when they have finished reading they'll know that in "What Every Woman Must Learn" Louis Graham Francies has struck a true and beautiful human chord that gets response in "smiling lips and tear wet eyes."

"Behold This Dreamer,"* By Fulton Oursler. The story of a modern Joseph, who, borne into the great city upon a fiery chariot with blood-splashed wheels to fulfill his destiny, met Potiphar's crimson wife, from whose blandishment he fled. This powerful and in places terrible story was written in protest against the other Josephs who did not flee. Unlike anything you have ever read. It will thrill you, terrify you, delight you. Read it.

"Her Last Chance,"* By Don Byrne. When a girl has had six good chances and missed them—seen them drift away to marry other girls—and then the final, ultimate and best chance of all comes her way, the desperation of the gambler who has thrown his last dollar on the table is nothing compared to the desperate game this girl will play. Here is an absorbing and intensely human story that will haunt your memory for many a long day.

More Important Than Your Food

Good health depends largely on sound sleep. You get the sleep of your life on a Red Cross mattress because its filler of Kapoc Floss goes through the special Red Cross process which makes it resilient, comfortable, sanitary and shape gently to the body. Its delightful softness wafts you into sound, peaceful slumber.

This process also makes the Red Cross self-ventilating. It is easy to restore this mattress to its original shape with a penetrating sun and air bath over two chairs, because it's almost half as light as ordinary mattresses. Comes in sealed, sanitary carton.

Don't buy a "Just-As-Good," but insist on a Red Cross Mattress. Look for the label on each mattress for your protection.

R. H. L.—Information concerning the rules of procedure for the obtaining of a patent, can be had at the Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

STEADY READER.—The lowest temperature in St. Louis since January, 1918, occurred January 12, 1918, when the temperature was 17 degrees below zero. One degree above zero was the coldest temperature during the winter of 1922 and 1923. This occurred on February 5.

S. S.—Piqua, Ohio, is situated on the right or West bank of the Miami River, and on the Miami and Erie Canal. The site is a level plateau, which is separated by the river, here crossed by several bridges. The city has manufactures of flour, shafts, poles and handles, carriages, furniture, stoves and ranges. It is also a farming district. The population is 13,906. The "Call" newspaper is published there. The name of the Chief of Police may be obtained by writing to the paper and requesting it.

META.—Fortunes may be told at a halloween party by the traditional "three bowls." Place three bowls or saucers (as they are more convenient) on a table, one filled with water, one with milk, and the other empty. Each maiden is then blindfolded, turned around three times, and started in the direction of the bowls. If she dips her finger in the water, she will marry a bachelor; if in the milk, her husband will be a widower; while if her finger touches the empty dish she will remain single. After each one makes the test, the order of the bowls must be changed, so as to prevent those who watch, from knowing which is which.

R. W. B.—Forest fires continued to exact a heavy toll from the Nation's forests during the year 1922. Losses in Oregon and Washington were especially severe, but for the most part were confined to private property. Fires on the northern shore of Lake Superior destroyed considerable areas of timber. The addition of 100 men to the national fire guard forces assisted materially in preventing and suppressing incipient forest fires, and the building of roads and trails in hitherto inaccessible regions greatly increased the effectiveness of the fire fighting programs. Carrier pigeons were utilized with success during the year for carrying messages regarding the character of the fires in difficult areas. Marked attention was paid to the subject of fire prevention, both by foresters themselves and by others interested in the welfare of the forests.

IGNORANT.—(1) Bran is the coarse, husky, outer coat of wheat, rye and other cereals, which after grinding is separated from the flour by sifting or bolting. (2) Gluten meal and gluten feed are the by-products, resulting in the manufacture of starch, or glucose from the starch of the corn kernel. Their principal use is as a feeding stuff for farm animals. The product differs greatly in composition according to the process of manufacture. Gluten feed is the entire residue of the kernel, including the germs and the hulls. Gluten meal does not contain the corn hulls. (3) Hominy is maize soaked to remove the hull, and then broken or coarsely ground. (4) The bulk of the world's corn crop is produced in the northern portion of the Mississippi Valley. (5) Flint corn in numerous varieties has a large, hard kernel, either white, yellow, red, orange, blue or striped. The ears are from six to 12 inches long, and the plants usually grow from four to eight feet high.

B. F.—To clean a silver article which is only slightly tarnished, mix 3 parts of best washed and purified chalk, and 1 part of white soap, adding water, till a thin paste is formed, which should be rubbed on the silver with a dry brush, till the articles are quite bright. Cleaning with the usual fine powders is attended with some difficulty and inconvenience. An excellent result is obtained without injury to the silver by employing a saturated solution of hyposulphite of soda, which is put on with a brush or rag. The article is then washed with plenty of water. (2) To clean dull gold, take 80 parts by weight of chloride of lime, and rub it up with gradual addition of water, in a porcelain mortar, into a thin even paste, which is put into a solution of 80 parts by weight of bicarbonate of soda, and take 20 parts by weight of salt, in 3000 parts, by weight of water. Shake it, and let stand a few days before using. If the preparation is to be kept for any length of time, the bottle should be placed, well corked in the cellar. For use, place the tarnished article in a dish, pour the liquid which has previously been well shaken over it, so as to just cover it, and leave it there for a few days.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

JACK.—It would be best for you to consult a lawyer in your case.

K. D. X.—She can still sue for alienation of her husband's affections, after she has been divorced from him.

P. M.—You can sue the person from whom you purchased the automobile, for his failure to furnish the title to it. You should consult a lawyer.

SUBSCRIBER.—Twenty per cent is the maximum commission which may be paid to a promoter for selling stock in a new corporation in this State.

M. J. V.—If the gossip you mention continues, and if you say that she is not married, we advise you to consult a lawyer regarding a suit for slander.

A READER.—Write to the General Land Office, Interior Department, Washington, D. C., for information concerning your claim for Government land.

MAYOR.—You could be fined for using a license issued for a Ford on a Chevrolet automobile but we cannot say what amount the fine would be.

JASMINE—If you were over 21 years of age when you signed the contract, the contract is legal, and they can get a judgment against you. If they get a judgment, they can garnishe your wages at any place where you work. However, if you are the head of a family, only 10 per cent of your wages can be garnished.

NO NAME.—A parent is not liable for the acts of his minor child, committed without his knowledge or authority, express or implied, except in cases where the parent's negligence has made it necessary for the child to commit the act, causing the injury complained of, and probable that the child should commit it. A parent is not under any criminal liability for actions of his minor child, to which he is in no way a party; his liability for such acts arises only when he has counseled, aided or abetted the child therein, in which case he would be liable without regard to the parental relation. In the case referred to by you, unless the child was acting with his father's knowledge or authority in stealing the money, the father would not be under any liability.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

M. K.—We do not think you will find the application of castor oil alone of much benefit to the hair, and do not advise its use. The following, which contains a small quantity of the oil, is suggested instead: Tinct. cantharidis, 7 drams; tinct. cinchonae, 1 ounce; tinct. benzoin, 3 drams; spirit lavandulae, 6 drams; olei racini (castor oil), 1 dram; alcohol, enough added to make 5 ounces.

MRS. F. R. A.—The first thing for you to do is to have the discharge examined under a microscope to determine whether or not a venereal disease is present. If such an examination is negative, then the condition is a leucorrhoea, which may be caused by either a local or a constitutional condition. In either event, you need the services of a physician, and we advise that you consult one. Temporarily use a douche as follows: Take equal parts of salt, sugar, and cooking soda. Mix this thoroughly and of this mixture dissolve two teaspoonfuls to the quart of water used in the douche.

D. M. C.—We think that you misunderstood our previous advice. You must have stated you had a lump, and not a pain in your breast. Even under such a condition, we could not more than advise you that such a lump was suspicious, as all lumps in a woman's breast are not necessarily cancerous. A simple soreness without a definite mass, which can be felt, is not suspicious of a cancerous growth. We do not think the tablets, although we do not know what they were, would cause the pain you mention. A physician who has the advantage of a personal examination, is able to give you more exact advice than we, who depend entirely upon symptoms as stated by the person making the inquiry.

Two Texans Meet in Barn Just After Dusk and Shoot It Out.

By the Associated Press.

TEAGUE, Tex., Oct. 26.—Details of one of the grimmest pistol duels Texas ever saw were revealed here by Sheriff David Terry of Navarro County. The dead are Norwood Huckaby, scion of a family prominent in Freestone County for more than half a century, and Charles A. Williams, until recently a resident of Navaro County.

The fight, according to the Sheriff's story occurred in a little room in the barn of T. F. Young Jr., at Young, in Freestone County, shortly after dusk Wednesday.

Left hands locked together, their right hands clutching smoking revolvers, which spat bullets until neither man could summon strength to pull the trigger. Huckaby and Williams died within a few minutes of each other.

Huckaby was a widower with four children and lived at the Young home. Returning to the home shortly after dusk, Wednesday evening, Huckaby went on to the barn with his horse. A few minutes later Williams, accompanied by a son and another young man, drove up to the barn. A volley of postol shots was the first intimation to those at the house that anything was amiss between the two men.

The cause of the shooting scrape is believed to be an old quarrel between the men.

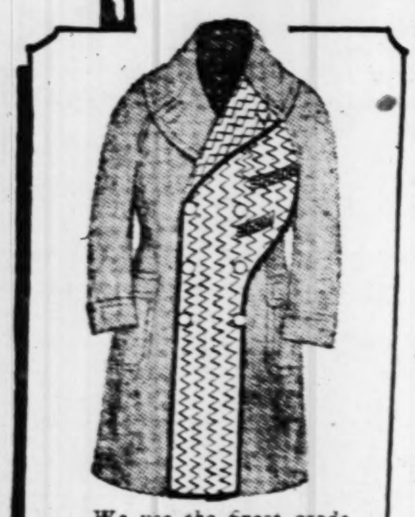
Bond's Clothes

At BOND'S You Get a Better Tailored Garment You Pay Less Money!

EVERYDAY— everywhere Bond's tailored clothes are receiving the severe test of actual wear. The tailoring standard adopted in Bond's own tailor-plant of "building the style in" instead of "pressing it in" has invariably stamped Bond's tailored clothes on the minds of Bond's patrons that they are unequaled anywhere even at much higher prices.

At Bond's the middleman never gets a "look in"—that's why we can afford to give you these reliable tailoring features—they don't cost you an extra penny.



We use the finest grade of canvas and pad that canvas by hand to build a coat front that stays in shape despite weather and wear.

All-Wool Plaid Back Overcoats
One and 2-Pants Suits

$30 $25 $35

Operating our own tailor plant as we do, we are in a position to supply you with the newest styles, first. Then too our system of reaching the wearer direct eliminates the middleman entirely and saves you all the expense of distribution involved in the usual manner of clothes selling.

We sell for cash only!—we never expect you to pay for the fellow who never pays. Credit may be convenient but it's expensive. Come to Bond's—you'll always get a better tailored garment for less money!

Please Keep These Facts in Mind

In the making of Bond's tailored Clothes, we use the finest dependable woolens from America's foremost mills.

The Overcoatings are rich plaid-back woolens—good to look at—and really warm!

The Suitings are all full weight, averaging from 14 to 16 ounces.

Every inside seam that is visible to the eye is piped with silk or satin.

Every garment built in Bond's own tailor plant has a hand-filled, band-shaped collar. The buttonholes are made by hand. A linen tape securely stitched around the entire edge of a Bond garment keeps the edge smooth and straight at all times.

Bond's clothes will compare favorably with any garment anywhere selling from $10 to $20 more than Bond's price!

Sally Gives Carmyle Taste of Her Good American Mind

Mostly Sally

By P. G. Wodehouse

A CONTINUED STORY

"VLA!" he observed, with the satisfied air of a man who has successfully performed a difficult conjuring trick. He smiled at Sally expectantly, as though confident of applause from this section of his audience at least. But Sally's face was set and rigid. She had been snubbed, and the sensation was as unpleasant as it was novel.

Snubbed! And by a blue-chinned Englishman! She found herself now disliking Mr. Carmyle with an almost Gingerian intensity. Was it for this that her fathers had bled? Did he suppose that the Spirit of '76 was in Cain's storehouse? If she wanted to talk about Ginger—yes, if the whole British Empire raised its eyebrows.

Is Sally Sure She Loves Gerald Foster?

SALLY NICHOLAS, the heroine of the story, is on her way back to America from Paris where she has been sojourning for several weeks. She hopes to be present when Gerald Foster, to whom she is engaged, produces his new play.

Sally, it must be understood, is a girl who has just come into a moderate sum of money left her by her father. She and her brother, Fillmore, were virtually reared by an uncle. They quit his home when they reached the age at which they were to receive their father's money. Sally met Foster at the New York boarding house where she and Fillmore went after quitting the uncle's house.

During her stay in Paris she made the acquaintance of Ginger Kemp and Bruce Carmyle. Kemp wanted to marry her.

Is Sally sure of her love for Gerald Foster?

"I think Mr. Kemp had hard luck."

"If you will excuse me, I would prefer not to discuss the matter."

Mr. Carmyle's attitude was that Sally might be a pretty girl, but she was a stranger, and the intimate affairs of the Family were not to be discussed with strangers, however prepossessing.

"He was quite in the right. Mr. Scrymgeour was beating a dog. . . ."

"I've heard the details."

"Oh, I didn't know that. Well, don't you agree with me, then?"

"I do not. A man who would throw away an excellent position, simply because" . . .

"Oh, well, if that's your view, I suppose it is useless to talk about it."

"Quite."

"Still, there's no harm in asking what you propose to do about Gin—about Mr. Kemp."

Mr. Carmyle became more glacial.

"I'm afraid I cannot discuss" . . .

Sally's quick impatience, nobly restrained till now, finally got the better of her.

"Oh, for goodness' sake," she snapped, "do try to be human, and don't always be snubbing people. You remind me of one of those portraits of men in the eighteenth century, with wooden faces, who look out of heavy gold frames at you with fishy eyes as if you were a regrettable incident."

"Rosbif," said the waiter genially, manifesting himself suddenly beside them as if he had popped up out of a trap.

Bruce Carmyle attacked his roast beef morosely. Sally who was in the mood when she knew that she would be ashamed of herself later on, but was full of battle at the moment, sat in silence.

Sally Leaves Carmyle Seated at Table

"I am sorry," said Mr. Carmyle ponderously, "if my eyes are fishy. The fact has not been called to my attention before."

"I suppose you never had any sisters," said Sally. "They would have told you."

Mr. Carmyle relapsed into an offended dumbness, which lasted till the waiter brought the coffee.

"I think," said Sally, getting up, "I'll be going now. I don't seem to want any coffee, and, if I stay on, I might say something rude. I thought I might be able to put in a good word for Mr. Kemp and save him from being massacred, but apparently it's no use. Good-bye, Mr. Carmyle, and thank you for giving me dinner."

She made her way down the car, followed by Bruce Carmyle's indignant, yet fascinated gaze. Strange emotions were stirring in Mr. Carmyle's bosom.

SOME few days later, owing to the fact that the latter, being preoccupied, did not see him first, Bruce Carmyle met his cousin Lancelot in Piccadilly. They had returned by different routes from Roville, and Ginger would have preferred the separation to continue. He was hurrying on with a nod, when Carmyle stopped him.

"Just the man I wanted to see," he observed.

"Oh, hullo!" said Ginger without joy.

"I was thinking of calling at your club."

"Yes?"

"Yes. Cigarette?"

Ginger peeped at the proffered case with the vague suspicion of the man who has allowed himself to be lured on to the platform and is accepting a card from the conjurer. He felt bewildered. In all the years of their acquaintance he could not recall another such exhibition of geniality on his cousin's part. He was surprised, indeed, at Mr. Carmyle's speaking to him at all, for the affaire Scrymgeour remained an unhealed wound, and the Family, Ginger knew, were even now in session upon it.

"Been back in London long?"

"Day or two."

Carmyle Asks Kemp for Sally's Address

"I heard quite by accident that you had returned and that you were staying at the club. By the way, thank you for introducing me to Miss Nicholas."

Ginger started violently.

"What!"

"I was in that compartment, you know, at Roville Station. You threw her right on top of me. We agreed to consider that an introduction. An attractive girl."

Bruce Carmyle had not entirely made up his mind regarding Sally, but on one point he was clear, that she should not, if he could help it pass out of his life. Her abrupt departure had left him with that baffled and dissatisfied feeling which though it has little in common with love at first sight, frequently produces the same effects. She had had, he could not disguise it from himself, the better of their late encounter; and he was conscious of a desire to meet her again and show her that there was more in him than she apparently supposed. Bruce Carmyle, in a word, was piqued; and, though he could not quite decide whether he liked or disliked Sally, he was very sure that a future without her would have an element of flatness.

"A very attractive girl. We had a very pleasant talk."

"I bet you did," said Ginger enviously.

"By the way, she did not give you her address by any chance?"

"Why?" said Ginger suspiciously. His attitude towards Sally's address resembled somewhat that of a connoisseur who has acquired a unique work of art. He wanted to keep it to himself and gloat over it.

"Well, I—er—I promised to read" . . .

"I shouldn't think she gets much time for reading."

"Books which are not published in America."

"Oh, pretty nearly everything is published in America, what? Bound to be, I mean."

Yourself

By J. J. MUNDY.

WHAT are you working for in the place where you are employed—popularity with your fellow workers or the best interests of your employers?

When it comes to deciding whether you will favor some friend to the detriment of the company which employs you, what do you do?

Do you stand up and defend the company against these who work with you?

Even when you know your companions at shop or office are wrong, have you the loyalty or the courage to stand up for your firm?

In other words, are you a really loyal employe?

When you get the viewpoint of putting your firm's interest first, then you will get some satisfaction out of each day's work for your firm.

A man or a woman who is always ready to chime in when the heads of the firm are criticised is a good person to steer away from when you get outside the business house or factory.

If you cannot be loyal while working for a man, get into a business where the superiors do suit you.

You are molding your character every day, and conditions must be right if you want it to steadily improve.

YOUR HEALTH

by ROYAL S COPELAND M.D.

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM NEW YORK

FORMER COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH, NEW YORK CITY

EVERY woman envies the crowning glory of abundant and beautiful hair. More even than the dresses she wears, the styles are determined by the way my lady's hair is dressed.

It is a great thing to have lots of hair. I can testify to the many times my poor head has escaped serious bumping because my shock of coarse hair has saved me from disaster. It is almost equal to the leather helmet the football player wears.

What your crop of hair will be depends on several things. In the first place, it depends on your heart. You may think that is a funny statement, but almost invariably a bald-headed man has a weak or soft-beating heart. His blood is not sent in a forceful stream to the extremities of the body. In common with the hands and feet, the scalp is stingily supplied with blood. Consequently the roots of the hair are not furnished with the nourishing fluid essential to function and growth.

You would not expect a plant or a tree to grow and thrive unless its roots were given abundance of water and nourishing soil. It will not grow in barren sand. There must be substance and moisture.

No more can the hair grow unless it is irrigated and nourished. Just as the tree must have the minerals essential to its progress so, too, must the hair be given the mineral elements needed in its development.

When hair is burned, don't you recall what a terrible odor arises? This is due to the liberated gases, perhaps from sulphur and other minerals found in hair.

You see, therefore, that you may have a good heart, but unless you eat the right food you cannot grow hair. Good hair and good nourishment go hand in hand.

A very interesting feeding experiment was made in one of the public schools in New York City. The Dairymen's League volunteered to give all the milk necessary to supply this big school. Twice a day the children were given milk to drink.

The most remarkable change in these children, many of them in the homes of the very poor, was the change in the appearance and growth of the hair. Instead of being dead and lustreless, it became bright and shiny.

The point about this is that good nourishment is essential to the growth of the hair. Don't be misled into thinking that fatness and good nourishment are the same thing. You will point out fleshy people who are bald and think that overthrows my theory. But it doesn't, because fatness and soundness of body are not the same thing.

Recently it has been the "style" to bob the hair. Taking advantage of the fad many a woman has cut off her thin tresses in the hope that bobbing might thicken the hair. Of course it will not, because the length of the hair means nothing. A hair is a dead thing—it is the root which lives.

To stimulate the growth of hair, the scalp must have treatment. Melt together a teaspoonful of olive oil and a teaspoonful of vaseline. While still warm rub this into the scalp at the roots of the hair, using a soft toothbrush. Do this every day.

Avoid hard, heavy and tight hats, which squeeze the blood-vessels of the scalp and reduce the flow of blood to the hair. Give yourself fresh air, sunshine, exercise, good food and lots of sleep.

These simple rules will do much to help you. Of course there are a few stimulating applications which have some value, but after all what your head of hair will be depends largely on you.

Add one-fourth teaspoon of salt, and a few grains of cayenne, a few drops of onion juice or enough to flavor the sauce delicately, and one-half tablespoon of finely grated horse-radish.

BEAUTY and HEALTH

By Dr. Lillian Walker

AFTER the cleaning process described so often in these columns, apply a good cold cream to the face with massage movements. Take a little cream on the fingertips and rub in tiny circles from below upward—always upward—and not too forcibly, as the heavy downward strokes make the muscles sag and droop.

Wrinkles should be ironed out in the opposite direction to that in which they are formed. Give special care to the little lines around the eyes, between the brows, at the angle of the nose and in front of the ears. These are the points at which Father Time is apt to leave the imprint of his fingers, and it is an easy matter to dispose of them if one is vigilant.

After five or 10 minutes' massage, remove all excess of cream and mop the face with cold water containing a few drops of tincture of benzoin. This tones up the muscles and contracts the pores.

In the morning bathe the face with cool, soft water for its refreshing effect, which is all that is necessary. An elegant preparation to use upon the complexion for a morning bath contains milk of almonds, 1 ounce; rosewater, 1 pint. This is gently tapped on the face and allowed to dry in. It is astringent and wonderfully beautifying.

A paste that is not only healing to discolored and blemished skins but that has a rejuvenating effect upon the complexion and is therefore an excellent thing for use before dressing for the day or evening consists of one ounce of strained honey, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, the whites of two eggs, six drops of oil of bitter almonds and powdered oatmeal. Let this remain on the face and neck for an hour or two, then wash off with warm water and dust lightly with rice powder. This has almost a magical effect upon some skins, leaving them soft, pink and as velvety as a baby's.

Unheeded Waste.

SOME folks have net economies, they save on this or that, some men won't buy a high-priced tie and some wear last year's hat. Some save the coupons from the soap and some half-sole their shoes, while round about folks loudly shout and praise their careful views. Economy, economy, you stand us in good stead; the rainy day might steal away our means of meat and bread. So wise men ask but simple things, eschewing costly gauds; it's well to know that pomp and show are often only frauds. It's great to see how many chaps each year cut down their bills; plain food and dress they daily stress and learn the miser's thrills. But I would ask one question here of all whom I can reach: by land or seas, Choctaw, Chinese, have any saved on speech? No doubt you've met a host of men who pinched on food and rent, who spent no cash and dined on hash or fasted, well content; but have you found in any place a fellow so absurd that he would seek to be unique by saving any word? Oh, have you heard one weigh with care a speil of any kind? Instead, don't they just say their say as heedless as the wind? A barker'll use six thousand words in views on high finance, tramps chat of marks, of brigs and barks whenever they've a chance. Each chap will tackle every theme, volcanos, golfing, birds; an awful bore, yet none deplore this reckless waste of words.

.·. Children's Bedtime Story .·.

By Thornton W. Burgess

We ne'er suspect how often we Are watched by those we do not see.
—Jumper the Hare.

STRANGE things are to be seen at times in the Green Forest. Every one of the little people who live there can tell you this. But no stranger sight was ever seen than that which Jumper the Hare saw early one October morning from his favorite hiding place. At least that is what Jumper thinks.

He had seen a hunter with a terrible gun seat himself on a log and wait. He had seen handsome Mr. Grouse alight just a short distance from that hunter, and he had seen that hunter lift this terrible gun and point it at Mr. Grouse. There was nothing strange in this. Jumper had seen things like this before. But that hunter hadn't fired the terrible gun. He had sat pointing it for a moment or two, and then slowly taken it down and rested it across his knees. After this he had sat there for a long time, watching Mr. Grouse.

After awhile there had been the whirr of another pair of stout wings and Mrs. Grouse had joined Mr. Grouse. Together they had moved over beneath a big beech tree and begun to pick up beechnuts. Not for an instant did they fail to be watchful. They knew that the terrible hunting season was on. They didn't miss the rustle of a leaf. If a leaf fluttered down from a tree their heads were up instantly, and they listened and watched to make sure that that rustle was not a warning of danger. Yet all the time a hunter with a terrible gun was watching them. He could have killed them at any time, but he didn't even lift his terrible gun again. Do you wonder that Jumper thought this the strangest thing he had ever seen?

Mr. and Mrs. Grouse continued to pick up beechnuts until they could eat no more. Then they went over to a little sandy place and took a dust bath, just as you have sometimes seen hens do. It was clear that they had no suspicion whatever that any one who could harm them was near. And all the time the hunter with the terrible gun across his knees sat motionless on an old log and watched them. Jumper didn't know what to make of it. It was a new experience to Jumper.

"They think they are all by themselves," said he to himself with a noiseless chuckle.

For the matter of that, it was a new experience to that hunter. If he had stopped to think about it he wouldn't have known what to think of it himself. For the first time since he had first had a gun he had no desire to kill. The longer he sat there and watched Mr. and Mrs. Grouse the more interested in them he became. He forgot that he had a gun. For the first time he was really seeing the birds he had so often tried to shoot. For the first time he was learning the meaning of real sport.

"They think they are all by themselves," said he to himself with a noiseless chuckle. "They haven't the least idea in the world that they are being watched. I am having a chance to see them just as they are at home. My, they are handsome!"

Just then way off in the distance there was a bang of a terrible gun. Instantly Mr. and Mrs. Grouse were up on their feet with heads held high, while they listened and looked keenly in all directions. Then as if they had settled in their own minds that that danger was far, far away, they once more settled down to their dust bath. The hunter smiled, and Jumper the Hare couldn't help thinking that it was a pleasant smile. Truly it was a strange scene.

Most children delight in bird stories, and there are intensely interesting stories on bird life that mothers will do well to read as bedtime stories. An occasional visit to the "bird house" in the park will be an instructive outing and the children will find great pleasure in picking out the birds mother has read about.

Animal stories are likewise most interesting to children and a trip to the zoo may form another day's outing. It will be such fun to see the animals they have heard such fine stories about. These outings will furnish subjects for many interesting talks during the winter and a close bond of companionship between mother and child will be established.

FAVORITE STORIES

By Irvin S. Cobb

A BATCH FOR THE GOLFER.

ALL proper golf stories have, or should have, a Scotch background. I remember an experience of my own. I was having my first try at the ancient pastime on the links of a country club of which I was a member. Our professional, a lank Aberdeenian, strolled out and stood watching me for a moment in silence. After several efforts I finally succeeded in driving the ball off the tee. Filled with pride, I addressed the lone spectator.

"Well, Jock," I said, "what do you think of that for a beginner?

"Well," he said slowly, and weighing his words carefully and evidently meaning to do exact justice as between me and his revered tribal sport, "your form is incredibly and and your stance is awful. You don't keep your eye on the ball and you lift your head and evidently you've never heard that following through is of any help. But you are correct in one particular—you are wearing regular golf stocking."

Somebody was telling me lately of an American who was playing on one of the Scotch courses with an old native for a caddy. He had a short shot for a certain hole.

"I think I'll use my midiron here," he said, measuring the distance with his eye.

"Ye'd do better wi' your cleek," said the caddy.

Despite this advice the visitor insisted on using the midiron. The ball struck the lower edge of the green, rolled straight and true for the cup, and dropped in. The player had made a perfect one.

"There," he cried triumphantly, "what do you think of that?"

"Not so bad, sir," said the old Scot, begrudgingly, "but I still think ye'd done better with yer cleek."

Of course, though, the climax in this regard is reached when you find a Scotch golfing story with an added background expressive of the proverbial Scotch traits of frugality and acquisitiveness. According to scandalous rumor prevalent on this side of the ocean, there is a ground rule on a links near Edinburgh which reads as follows:

"NO BALL IS TO BE CONSIDERED AS LOST UNTIL IT STOPS ROLLING."

SAYS LEASES HAVE LEFT NAVY NEARLY WITHOUT OIL

Senator Walsh Makes Declaration During Committee Hearing on Leasing of Teapot and California Reserves.

ROOSEVELT TELLS OF FAMILY HOLDINGS

Assistant Secretary of Interior States Fall Disregarded Practice of Office in Making Leases.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—After summoning Harry F. Sinclair to Washington to tell his story of the leasing of the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve, the Senate Public Lands Committee devoted all of its session today to hearing other witnesses and adjourned shortly after noon with the announcement that Sinclair probably would be heard Monday.

During the morning's session the oil magnate sat in the committee room ready to go on the stand, listening to testimony by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt of the Navy Department and Assistant Secretary Finney of the Interior Department, both of whom had appeared without previous announcement that they would be questioned.

From Roosevelt the committee heard some further details of leasing of the reserve to the Sinclair interests together with a statement of financial investments made in Sinclair companies by members of the Roosevelt family in years past.

Finney was questioned about the general policy of oil leasing, and he told the committee that in several respects, Albert B. Fall, who, as Secretary of the Interior, signed the Teapot Dome lease, had reversed the position taken by the Interior Department during the Wilson administration.

Doubts if Fall Had Authority.

Upon questioning by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, Finney said that so far as he knew Fall had obtained no authorization from President Harding for leases issued the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Co., covering 2000 acres of land claimed by it in what is now Naval Reserve No. 2, in California. Senator Walsh insisted that under the leasing law such leases could only by made by authority of the President and Finney said that until Fall became Secretary it had been the practice to obtain always a written authorization from the White House.

Finney also testified that after the Wilson administration had instituted proceedings to recover from Standard Oil interests a section in Naval Reserve No. 1, in California, Secretary Fall had reopened the matter and ordered the proceedings abandoned. The committee then had read into the record the lease made to the Pan-American Petroleum aand Transport Co., controlled by Edward L. Doheny, by which Secretaries Fall and Denby granted that company substantially the same rights with regard to the Naval Reserve No. 1 as were granted the Sinclair interests in the Teapott Dome Reservation.

Senator Walsh declared during the session that the evidence now before the committee had proved that the Government not only has disposed of its control over naval oil in the Teapot Dome reservation, but that between the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co., the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Co., and the Standard Oil Co., it had disposed also of substantially all oils upon the two naval reserves in California.

Roosevelt Family Holdings.

The committee heard from Theodore Roosevelt an explanation of investments made in years past by the members of the Roosevelt family in the Sinclair companies.

Roosevelt said he was a director of the Consolidated Sinclair Co. when it was originally organized and held stock in it until the winter of 1918. He added that in 1920 his wife purchased some stock in the company, but sold it at a loss in 1922. His brother, he said, is not present vice president of one of the Sinclair subsidiary companies, with which he has been connected since 1919.

His attention first was directed by Secretary Denby to the proposed transfer of naval oil reserves to the Interior Department, Roosevelt told the committee, after a Cabinet meeting in April, 1921. Soon thereafter, when a proposed executive order to make the transfer effective was submitted to him, he said he suggested a modification which subsequently was incorporated before the order
